Two women wounded in shooting

by TOM VON MALDER

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lella Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Petykowski, 28 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reportedly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

Park projects scheduled to be done next year

Buffalo Grove Park District officials expect next year to complete several projects financed by a 1971 bond issue.

Once the projects are finished, said Park District Dir. Stanley Crosland, officials may begin considering another referendum to finance development of future park sites.

Crosland said the remaining funds, estimated at about 10 per cent of the $1.25 million bond issue, will be spent on The Raupp Memorial Museum and Cambridge park projects.

He said park officials were hoping to finish the projects by the end of this year but problems obtaining land and weather-related construction delays will make that impossible.

er-related construction delays will make that impossible.

Crosland said the park district wants to develop a park site east of Buffalo Grove Road south of Dundee near the Cambridge-on-the-Lake development, but acquisition of part of the land still is tied up in court.

He said park officials have been waiting for more than a year to obtain the property, about three acres through condemnation proceedings.

Some $50,000 worth of developments will have to wait until the park district obtains the land, Crosland said.

He also said maintenance and minor improvements have been delayed due to what he termed "terrible weather."

THE DISTRICT IS preparing to relocate the old Levitt and Sons Inc. sales office to a site on Denham Lane in Lake County. The building will be used as a museum.

Before conducting another referendum, however, Crosland said park officials want to complete the projects from the 1971 bond sale even though all the funds are earmarked.

"The board has stated many times," he said, "we feel we have an initial responsibility to complete these projects and do a good job with them before going back to the public."

FUNDS FROM the 1971 bonds are being used to cover land costs and several park development projects. They include indoor and outdoor swimming pools and installations of tennis courts and other equipment.

He said another bond issue eventually will be necessary to obtain more funds to finance the development of new park sites as the village gains population.

Operating expenses and small-scale improvements are paid with tax revenues, but those funds are not used to pay for building a park on "raw, undeveloped land," Crosland said.

Some federal grants have been received, but not enough to meet the growing park district needs.

CROSLAND SAID he expects that within the next year or so, the park district may acquire another 15-20 acres through land donations new developers in the village are required to make.

Without a referendum, he said the parks would be lacking funds to develop those sites with lighting, baseball diamonds, playground equipment and tennis courts.

He said he couldn't estimate how large a bond sale the parks would ask.

"It's advisable to get in before the population arrives — to have parks in advance," Crosland said.

He said park officials would begin preparing for another referendum sometime next year after completion of current projects.

Village gets deed for public works garage site

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson Wednesday said he has received the deed for the 4.3-acre site across from the village hall where a new village public works garage will be built.

Larson said he received the document after giving a recently revised zoning ordinance to Louis Ancel, an attorney for Harold Friedman, owner of the land.

The village was given the land in return for approval of multi-family zoning around the Buffalo Grove golf course.

Phoenix Corp., developers of the project, plans to build 800 housing units on the golf course perimeter.

Omni-House asks volunteers

Omni House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling is looking for college interns and adult volunteers for its Youth Advocacy Program.

The program is an extension of the Community Advancement Program under the Dept. of Children and Family Services in Chicago. College interns and adult volunteers will work with referrals, many of them wards of the state who have been previously institutionalized or living with foster families. Omni House will be working with referrals from the Northwest suburban area.

Volunteers will be carefully screened to provide youths with information and guidance in educational opportunities, vocational training, job opportunities, recreational activities, individual counseling and group discussions.

Volunteers will be guided by individual and group supervision. For more information, call Lois Brott at the Omni House at 541-0190.

A Thanksgiving to remember A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

Thanksgiving Morn

By 10 o'clock all must be ready; for in those good old times we eat dinner at noon. Yes, and we go to bed at dark.

In the morning at 5 o'clock a smell of new gingerbread, confused with the fragrance of Johnnycake, wakes us all. The little mother has rolled out first; skipped into the kitchen; raked open the fire and "set things going." You will smell sausages frying, in a moment. O, Lord! what a comfort there is in a nose! And that is why our Yankee noses were all so long. There were so many good things to smell. If we got to poking them into matters of religion and politics, it was only an afterthought.

There was no snow on that day that I remember and there had been none — not even a hard frost to pull down the red leaves and the yellow ones. Indian summer did not come as a separate gleam of sunny days after a spell of cold, but was a prolongation of the genuine October glory.

Bless my soul! But one can never in these days know what an old-fashioned autumn was or was like. There is now an everlasting toot, or screech of engines, tearing peace in two and splitting up the harmony of Indian

Here is the latest set of winning numbers in the Illinois Lottery.
In the Weekly Lotto contest:
32 41 46 03 09
Matching three of these two digit numbers is worth $20. Four is worth $100. All five is worth $5,000.
In the Weekly Bonanza and Millionaire contest:
891 593 467
Matching two of the 3-digit numbers in either game makes you eligible to win $300,000 (one week later) or $1 million (held every two months).

200,000 expected for Woodfield Lottery drawing

Woodfield Shopping Center has been selected as the site for the third millionaire drawing of the Illinois Lottery with the largest crowd ever to witness the event expected at 6 p.m. Dec. 20.
An estimated 200,000 persons may jam the world's largest shopping center in Schaumburg on what traditionally is one of the biggest shopping days of the year. More than 20,000 will be in the mall to see a new millionaire crowned and more than $400,000 in other cash prizes awarded to qualifiers.
It's part of a Christmas special at the retail outlet, which will host the 19th Bonanza drawing at 10:15 a.m. Dec. 19 and sponsor its own minidrawing in which several all-expenses paid trips to Florida's Walt Disney World will be given away.

In a 32-hour period, the Lottery will hand out more than $2 million in a marathon prize spree, beginning with the selection Thursday of the $300,000 winner and the $50,000 runnerup. Friday night, the third millionaire in five months will be chosen. A $100,000 prize also is up for grabs.

WOODFIELD OFFICIALS are making plans to hold a "Second Chance Drawing," which would include persons who buy tickets in December but fail to win. Shoppers will become eligible to win a trip or merchandise simply by putting their name, address and telephone number on the back of their losing tickets and depositing them at as yet undetermined locations around the shopping center.

Lottery officials said Woodfield was chosen as the first Northwest suburban location to host a drawing because it is a major attraction to shoppers from throughout Illinois and surrounding states. They pointed to the shopping center's parking facilities for 17,500 automobiles.

When Dec. 20 comes to a close, Lottery spokesman said, the state will have sold 100 million Lottery tickets and allocated $22 million in cash prizes to more than 500,000 persons. The state also will have made $22 million for its general-revenue fund.

Qualifiers for the next millionaire drawing must turn in their tickets by noon Dec. 17. The Dec. 12 drawing at McCormick Place in Chicago is the final drawing for the millionaire contest.

MEANWHILE, Wednesday's Thanksgiving-eve Bonanza prizes were awarded and a Des Plaines man, Robert A. Bolin, won the $50,000 second prize. A 47-year-old immigrant from Hong Kong won the $300,000 prize at the drawing in Bloomington. There were no $10,000 prizes because there were not enough qualifiers.

Bolin, a printing foreman at Rand-Whitney in Des Plaines, raised his fist in a victory sign when Lottery officials announced he won the $50,000.

He is married and has two daughters. He said he has no idea what he will do with the money. He bought the winning ticket at the Jewel Food Store, 1500 S. Lea St., Des Plaines.

House panel OKs bill approving state lotteries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Wednesday approved legislation to exempt state-run lotteries from the federal anti-gambling laws.

The measure, approved by voice vote, originally was prompted by U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, who said the state lotteries were in violation of federal anti-gambling laws that prohibit the transporting of information about lotteries across state lines.

Saxbe gave Congress 90 days in which to correct the legal conflict before the Justice Dept. would consider taking any legal action against the lotteries.

The bill would amend the federal anti-gambling statute to allow the publication and broadcasting of advertising, lists of prizes and winners and other information concerning state lotteries.

The measure would also permit the mailing of newspapers across state boundaries which carry advertisements and other information about the operation of the lotteries.

Other provisions of the bill would permit the transportation or mailing of tickets and other materials used in state lotteries.

The bill will presently affect 13 states: Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Delaware.

2 women wounded in shooting spree

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling. Lella Edgerton, 46, of Wheeling, was struck in the side of the head by a bullet or pellet fragment as she was riding in an auto. The woman's condition was described as fair and doctors at Holy Family Hospital are expected to operate on her today. The second woman, Barbara Potykowski of Palatine, was hit in the hand, apparently by a glancing bullet or pellet fragment, and did not require treatment. Police later confiscated a pistol from a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

Area man saves worker's life

A Wheeling man was credited with saving the life of a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in Wednesday in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park. Tom Hallquist rushed from his office and revived Ed Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay. Nowicki remained hospitalized Wednesday night in critical condition. Hallquist, who returned to work after the rescue, said: "I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all."

Palatine needs more firemen

An insurance rating agency has found that the Palatine Fire Dept. is substantially undermanned and predicted that a round-the-clock fire protection system to begin Jan. 1 will worsen the problem unless more firemen are hired. The part-volunteer department will start 24-hour service with full-time firemen on a 7-day-a-week basis at the beginning of the year. The agency found the department now has 84 per cent less manpower that it should have during the day and 79 per cent less at night. Nine more full-time firemen are needed, the agency's report said.

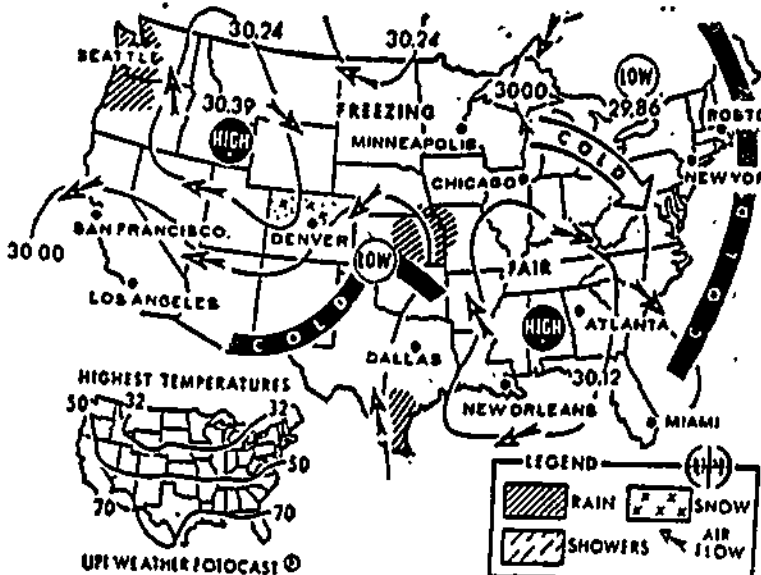

Arlington feels fund pinch

Slumping automobile sales is starting to put the pinch on finances in the Village of Arlington Heights. Car sales account for the biggest chunk of the village's sales tax revenue and because of the decline in auto sales due to economic conditions, the village anticipates a drop in its income. "I won't say we're running nervous, but we are trying to pull back," said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Helton sentencing delayed

The sentencing of convicted killer Ronald A. Helton was postponed Wednesday until Dec. 11, so his attorney Melvin Kamm can file post-trial motions. Helton was convicted Nov. 6 of the 1968 robbery-slaying of Fred J. Tallon, 64, during an $87 holdup of the Arlington Park Shell service station.

Murder-suicide in Milwaukee suburb

A woman from Greenfield, Wis., Mrs. Mildred Jansen, who has been despondent since her husband died last September, Sunday shot and killed her son David, 5, and her mother, Mrs. Helen Bronchala, 70, before turning the gun on herself. The death-suicide was discovered following a telephone call to the home which was answered by Mary Jansen, 9, who was also shot on Sunday. The girl lay bleeding from wounds in the chest and abdomen for two days. She told the caller her mother killed because she "wanted everyone in heaven with Dad for Thanksgiving."

Navy jet crashes in Michigan, 5 dead

A twin-engine U.S. Navy jet plane crashed Wednesday while attempting a landing in overcast and snowy weather at Kellogg Airport in Battle Creek, Mich. Authorities said five persons aboard were killed. Maj. Norman Osborne, security officer for the base, said the flight originated at the U.S. Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla.

Abzug: let new Congress vote on Rocky

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., urged Wednesday that the vice presidential nomination of Nelson Rockefeller be put off until the new Congress convenes in January. In testimony before the House Judiciary Committee hearings, House Republican leader John Rhodes called for approval of Rockefeller and said the former New York governor "has not been fiscally irresponsible" as Rocky's detractors have charged.

Propose limit in presidential home area

The House Judiciary committee Wednesday proposed strict limits on Secret Service spending on the private homes of future presidents and vice presidents. The measure would limit the Secret Service's permanent expenditures for protective devices and facilities to only one privately owned presidential home.

Why Mitchell didn't volunteer information

In exchanges so caustic they were interrupted by Judge John Sirica, John Mitchell testified Wednesday he had not "for obvious reasons" volunteered information about high level involvement in the Watergate burglary. "What obvious reasons?" asked prosecutor James Neal. "The re-election of the President of the United States," Mitchell replied.

Court upholds adult bookstore convictions

The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the obscenity convictions of adult bookstore operators in Moline and Rockford, ending a five-year court battle that had gone to the U.S. Supreme Court and back. Defense Attorney Don Reno Jr. of Champaign said the ruling will not mean massive closing of adult bookstores, but it will give prosecutors power to go in and arrest operators if they so choose. More than 300 obscenity cases were being held up in Illinois courts pending the decision.

Chicago

Fletcher guilty of Raymond's murder

Silas Fletcher was found guilty of murder and aggravated kidnapping charges Wednesday in the slaying of Hillside policeman Anthony Raymond more than two years ago. The jury of seven women and five men deliberated five hours before returning the verdict in the Cook County Circuit courtroom of Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald.

29 arrested in massive narcotics ring

Twenty-nine persons were arrested Wednesday in a massive, secret crackdown on a narcotics ring that authorities said netted drug dealers in Chicago millions of dollars. A spokesman for the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration said the arrests put a major dent in drug traffic on the North, West and Northwest sides.

Kissinger, Chinese talk seen as friendly

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with Chinese leaders twice Wednesday in a "very friendly" atmosphere that indicated progress in their talks. Neither Kissinger nor the Chinese disclosed the subjects discussed, but the signs were that there was something more than simple cordiality in Kissinger's fourth and fifth meetings with Chinese leaders.

10,000 plan freedom march in Saigon

Opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu Wednesday accused his government of violating the constitution and said they will go ahead with a planned march by more than 10,000 persons Thursday in Saigon. An organizer of the march, Roman Catholic priest Dinh Binh Dinh, said: "It was the refusal of the government to allow public demonstrations that gives us one more reason to demand more freedom and justice as stipulated by the constitution."

Police in San Juan on alert

Police in San Juan, P.R., were put on a state of alert Wednesday when a wave of sabotage that had crippled the island's water supply, spread to the electric service as well. A high powered bomb damaged a power substation in the metropolitan area early in the day, while another damaged a sewage treatment plant of the public water agency. If necessary, it was reported the national guard may be mobilized.

The market

Stock prices slightly higher

The Dow Jones Industrial average, ahead nearly 12 points with slightly more than an hour of trading to go on the New York Stock Exchange, dropped back to finish with a gain of 2.03 to 619.29 Wednesday. Standard & Poor's index gained 0.47 to 69.94. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 16 cents. Advances topped declines, 827 to 535, among the 1,794 issues crossing the tape. Volume totaled 14,810,000 shares, compared with 13,600,000 traded Tuesday. The market will be closed for the Thanksgiving holiday, but will be open Friday.

At risk of deepening the recession

Burns calls for heavier gas taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board called Wednesday for heavier taxes to discourage gasoline consumption even at the risk of deepening the recession.

Testifying before Congress' Joint Economic Committee, Burns joined Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton who, despite President Ford's persistent opposition, still list higher gasoline taxes as a possible conservation option.

Burns said the United States must reduce its reliance on foreign oil to achieve a "fundamental" goal of getting members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to cut prices.

"If the price of oil remains at anything like its present level — and there are repeated warnings in OPEC countries to move it still higher — there will be a massive redistribution of economic and political power among the countries of the world," Burns said. "This of itself carries dangers for our country's future."

He said he recognized the consequences of the "policy of austerity" he advocated and added he would like to see poor people and those depending on cars to get to jobs sheltered somehow from the effects of heavier gasoline taxes. He said gasoline consumption could be reduced by "a sizable tax on gasoline" or a tax on imported oil or on automobiles according to their weight or horsepower.

In other economic developments Wednesday:

• The government reported the nation's economy is on its longest slide in five years, suffering its worst slump on record in September with leading indicators declining 3.3 per cent.

• Unemployment lines lengthened by 110,200 persons the first week in November with an estimated 2.2 million workers receiving jobless benefits. The number of persons applying for unemployment compensation rose dramatically in every state except Alaska, Georgia, Nevada and Virginia.

• In the auto industry, the hardest hit by inflation and recession, 80,000 workers began an unwelcome layoff Thanksgiving Day that may not end for months. Another 120,000 auto workers will be out of work through New Year's Day.

• The United Mine Workers scheduled weekend meetings in coal mining areas to explain a revised wage contract called "the fastest labor settlement in this decade" by UMW president Arnold Miller. If the union's 120,000 miners, on strike since Nov. 12, ratify the contract they could be back in the mines by late next week.

The falter wage package is certain to drive up labor costs in coal-dependent industries such as steel and energy, and ultimately consumers will pay more for many products.

• Led by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., more than a third of the Senate called on the Federal Trade Commission, the Commodity Exchange Authority and the Justice Department to investigate the sharp rise in sugar prices.

• President Ford ordered top federal officials to provide an "inflation impact statement" with all major legislative proposals and rules to show how the actions involved would affect the cost of living.

• A group of Democratic congressmen threatened to go to court if necessary to halt President Ford from using the mass media to promote his anti-inflation program known as WIN.

Anne Armstrong quits; hint major reshuffle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday accepted the resignation of Anne Armstrong, highest ranking woman in his administration, and aides said other Nixon holdovers could be out of the Cabinet by year's end.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, in announcing that Mrs. Armstrong was stepping down as a counselor to the president, said no successor would be named and he made little effort to dampen speculation that a major reshuffling of personnel would follow.

"We don't have any other personnel announcements today," Nessen said, adding a moment later: "We are just going to announce any Cabinet changes when they are made."

Among those expected to resign are Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, Budget Director Roy Ash and William Timmons, head of the White House office for congressional relations.

Deny Selassie death sentence

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopia's military government denied reports Wednesday that it had passed a death sentence against former Emperor Haile Selassie, the African monarch whose stand against Fascism before World War II stirred the world.

The military regime, whose leaders rebelled earlier this year and ousted the 82-year-old "Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah," said Selassie was being held under guard in Addis Ababa for his personal safety.

The military government's statement came after a day of continued troop movements in and around the capital and anxiety raised by the broadcast of the press reports from outside Ethiopia.

In Washington, the Ethiopian Embassy and the State Department said they also had received assurances that reports of Selassie's pending execution were untrue.

A military government spokesman said the emperor is alive and is being held under guard in the capital.

The spokesman categorically denied the reports in two Beirut newspapers that the former emperor had been moved to a town about 36 miles outside the capital awaiting execution.

"This is a pure fabrication," he said referring to the reports in newspapers Al Nahar and L'Orient Le Jour in the Lebanese capital quoting "Western diplomatic sources in Beirut."

The Ethiopian spokesman said such reports are "not only irresponsible but deliberately fabricated to discredit Ethiopia's present popular movement and to mislead the world at large."

During his 57-year reign, Selassie survived the invasion forces of Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini, a revolt by his palace guard, the decolonization of Africa, but not a coup by youthful military officers that overthrew the government.

There have been increased fears about his personal safety since last Saturday when 60 former high ranking military and civilian officials were executed, including Selassie's grandson and former deputy commander of the Imperial Navy Rear Admiral Eskinder Destia, two former premiers and the former head of the military council itself.

Waldheim: U.N. force needed; PLO arrests 26

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Warning that the Middle East situation is "potentially explosive," Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Wednesday asked the Security Council to keep the U.N. Peacekeeping Force between Syrian and Israeli forces for another six months.

Waldheim said in a cabled report on his mission to Syria, Israel and Egypt that the operation of the 1,200-man force in the Golan Heights buffer zone was essential to maintaining peace in the area and to help establish a just and lasting peace in the region.

If the council gives its almost certain approval to Waldheim's recommendation, the U.N. Disengagement Observer Force would stay on the Golan Heights until May 31, 1975.

The council was expected to meet Friday to consider Waldheim's report.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the Palestine Liberation Organization said it had arrested and would put on trial 26 persons allegedly involved in the recent hijack by four Arabs of a British Airways VC10 jetliner to Tunisia.

The PLO, cracking down on dissident guerrillas, already has asked the Tunisian government to hand over the hijackers but they were still in Tunis. PLO members said Tuesday the four Arabs would be given death sentences if surrendered to the PLO.

Shafik Al-Hout, PLO representative in Lebanon, announced the arrests and said the accused would be put on trial in open court when all evidence against them had been collected.

He told a news conference that incidents such as the Tunis episode, carried out by an outlaw guerrilla faction opposed to PLO leadership, harmed the Palestinian cause. Al-Hout did not reveal the names of those arrested.

Government study: many victims fail to report crimes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government study concluded Wednesday only one-third of the rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults and burglaries that actually occur are reported, mainly because the victims believe nothing can be done.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, a Justice Department agency, said during the first six months of 1973, a survey showed about 16.6 million victims reported the crimes to police. In addition, only 3.9 million of the police crime reports were relayed to the FBI for use in FBI crime statistics.

The FBI uses police reports to draft its crime statistics, and the FBI statistics have long been relied on as the standard measure of crime level in this country.

A major reason for the gap between the numbers of crimes found in the survey and those which show up in FBI reports was that victims do not bother to report crimes to police, said LEAA Administrator Richard Velde. "By far the most predominant reason was that the individual does not want to be bothered—he feels it is not worth the effort," Velde said.

"The public is turned off by the criminal justice system," Velde said. "It will be a rude awakening to many criminal justice professionals when they find out how poorly they are serving the public."

Larceny was the leading unreported crime, with approximately 11 million found in the LEAA survey compared with only 2.4 million reported to police. The survey estimated burglaries at 3.69 million compared with 1.86 million reports, followed by rape, robbery, aggravated assault and auto theft.

The survey also indicated that black males were more likely to be crime victims than either whites or females, and the young rather than the elderly were more likely to be victims of crimes.

Longest living heart recipient dies at 49

• The world's longest living heart transplant recipient, Louis Russell, 49, died Wednesday in Richmond, Va., after surviving six years and three months with the heart of a 17-year-old boy who was killed in a shooting accident. The longest surviving transplant recipient now is Betty Anick, who received her heart at St. Luke's Hospital, Milwaukee, on Oct. 21, 1968. . . . In Johannesburg, South Africa, Ivor Taylor, 58, the world's first man with two hearts, is gaining strength after his unique operation Sunday and the hospital said Wednesday his hearts are in "excellent" condition. In the first operation of its kind, heart transplant pioneer Dr. Christian Barnard gave Taylor a second heart to beat alongside his own.

A Thanksgiving to remember

'Tis a terrible trial when one must know if all things are ready, and each dish well cooked and not one overdone. Bless my soul!...

AND THE OLD woods are gone, and the great orchards, and the wild sumacs and the brown beeches that crowned the knolls and the green hemlocks that faced the west wind so bravely on the top of the ridges. And the old-fashioned folk are gone, who knew nothing about the Congo Free State, never ate a banana and were not believers in Japanese art.

Now it is, one can have no peace. All the world is pounding on our doors at daybreak with its gossip from Timbuctu to Labrador. Dear me! and the ologies. When I was a lad then there was only theology and that covered all the land and all one's life and one life at least beyond this one. But now, there are a dozen of them from geology to cosmology and from sociology to anthropology. I can no more stroll out and kick about the leaves in a careless way, but must see in every leaf and bud, and in the breezes that blow them, a science...

A year is a wonderfully full affair. It is packed, from first to last, with good things; only one must know how to see them.

The Dinner

Now she wields a shovel. It is six feet long; she is only five. She faces it bravely. The shovel is entirely flat and all of iron. Now she thrusts it full length into the oven. After a few preliminaries it is drawn out.

In again it goes; this time carrying a huge chicken pie. In again — a turkey! In again — a butternut pudding! In again! Mystery!

"Don't speak," she always said, "it upsets me! If you had all this to tend to, you wouldn't want anyone 'round jabbering."

She imagines it is the universe she is running. Dear little mother You look as red as a beet! The two cats stand near the leaves on the hearth—they, too, are only smelling. They would no more dare to touch a loaf than we. Ah, such cats! They were trained. But all cats in these days are like thieves. It was the magic of the little woman. How she ruled us all!

"Boys, you shall set these tables out of doors by the pink bed on the offset and you shall be quick, now."

THE LITTLE mother had spoken. What! Thanksgiving out-of-doors?

The bustle began now in earnest. 'Tis a terrible trial when one must know if all things are ready, and each dish well cooked and not one overdone. Bless my soul! but how the little mother moved about. She, who would die for a kitten, was now terribly stern. Nothing must get in her way, not even the grenadier grandmothers.

She ran a splint from a new broom into the chicken pie and drew it out without vouchsafing a word; only one could see that she knew. Then she ordered a peck of pears and gillflowers up from the cellar. Then she turned the turkey in the pan and basted it.

"Fill all the pitchers with cider from the second barrel," she cried. "Have you finished checking the butternuts?"

YES, AND THE chestnuts are roasted. The butternut pudding lacks five minutes of being done. The vegetables, one by one, are examined.

The potatoes are drawn to the mouth of the oven; one of them, over hot, slips from her hands and drops to the brick hearth and flies into a thousand pieces with a slight explosion.

A huge squash is split open, and its roasted contents scooped out and buttered. Onions and blood-red beets and sweet turnips take their turn. Cake and cake tarts are sorted and piled on homely dishes. The blue and white set of plates and cups is brought from the closet; and there are some old china cups for the grandmothers; and the sugar bowl that came over in the Mayflower.

Both grandmothers — the tall one, and soon after, the short one — were on hand early. There was whispering and nodding in the corners and running back and forth from the big Dutch oven to clear the deck for action.

As I told you, it was still summer. Around the valley and up and down the hillsides, there were but two sounds that I remember; one was the muffled sound of chaise wheels carrying the gathering families to their dinners and the other was an occasional crow of a rooster. I think they crowded simply to make sure their heads were still on; for how could one tell what had not happened when there were such goings on?

BLESS MY soul, what a tumult! Dogs are barking; girls are screaming and mother, with a long-handled brass skimmer in one hand and a toasting fork in the other, runs to the door. "The cousins have come, father!"

Poor mother! It is well they did not come any sooner; but girls then were girls. Helen seizes the shovel and with a splint, pulled out of the new broom, faces the oven. In goes the shovel, out comes the chicken pie. The splint is thrust down to the core. It is done exactly.

She then seizes on the turkey and bastes it well. Do you not see the old-gold color and the rich juices run down the sides? There was never such a turkey as that — twenty pounds clear and fatted with the best corn.

Cousin Jim had already gone for our father and now they came together. "'Tis perfect," said our father.

THEN THE LITTLE mother drew a long sigh of relief and looked about critically, as much as to say, "To be sure, but I might have done better! Yes, there is just a half a pinch more salt needed in the stuffing; and if it were to be done again, I would sprinkle six caraway grains on the cookies instead of seven!"

Our father's eyes are half shut; a sober smile rests all over his face and his hands are clasped across his abdomen.

"Mother," he said, "I smell seven distinct smells; they make music in my head."

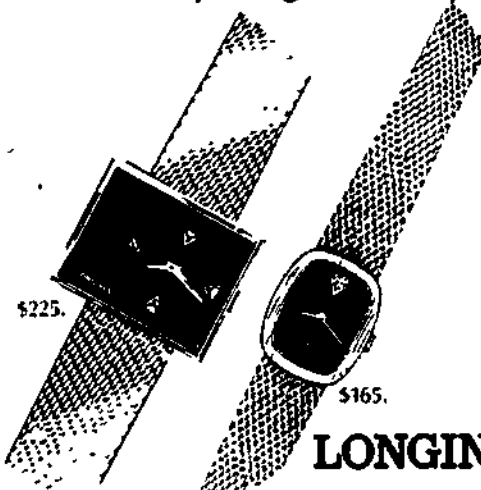

Harmony, he meant. Ah, that father was a joker, but he was wise. He was happy. Yes, father, you are right. A good Thanksgiving dinner is full of music — first in the head and then in the belly; and then again on both belly and head — and they two make the heart.

ELECTRIC CIRCUITS and repair of appliance cords are studied by students at Thomas Junior High School in Arlington Heights as part of a "mini-course" offered in numerous junior highs allowing students to take classes geared to their interests. John Weaver and Sheri Friebus work with a circuit board.

Guitar, sculpting, co-ed shop

by BOB GALLAS

Leaky faucets, guitars, sculpting, electronics and play productions are all becoming part of the regular school day at several junior high schools in the Northwest suburbs.

The schools are offering "mini courses," unusual or offbeat not-for-credit classes geared to student interests. The same classes are offered in two school districts, but on a credit basis, as part of the regular school day, graded the same as traditional courses, and are turning kids on to learning.

"It works well with our philosophy to expose students to a lot of ideas," said Donald Stipe, principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School. "With short courses you can do that," he added.

When children present

Do I have to drive 28 m.p.h. in a school zone when the children are in their classrooms. If the traffic sign says I must do so only when school children are present?

No, the children must be physically present in proximity to the road before you have to obey the 20 m.p.h. speed limit.

65% of Stevenson grads in college

More graduates of the 1974 class at Stevenson High School in Prairie View enrolled in college this year than the 1973 class.

Of the 178 graduates, 65 per cent are attending college, an increase of 7 per cent over the 1973 graduating class.

Of the 116 graduates attending college,

PALATINE HILLS, like other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, offers about 25 courses each year besides math, English, history and science.

Students can choose two 40-minute classes every 10 weeks, ranging from guitar and home handyman to co-ed shop and cooking.

At Thomas Junior High School, Arlington Heights, students can sign up for a special eight-week course five times a year. Teachers at the school say grading hasn't taken away any of the fun but has improved the courses.

"We wanted to give the classes more meaning," said Ruth Rowe, home economics teacher at the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school. "Before, the class met only once a week which wasn't enough time. It was just fun and games, a place to go."

"By inserting it in the daily schedule, the students are more receptive," Mrs. Rowe said.

BESIDES EXPOSING students to a variety of ideas and skills, the mini-courses also benefit the traditional courses, teachers say.

The classes allow the students mobility and a chance to let off steam, Stipe said. "It brightens up their day and gives them something to look forward to," he said. "You can't expect kids to sit still all day."

While critics of the mini-courses say the quick courses aren't long enough to teach anything, school officials say they don't have to.

"The students are just exposed to basics in class, but you should see what they bring back to school. Things they've done at home on their own," said Stipe. The principal pointed to case after case of needlework and handmade items displayed throughout the school.

"THE TEACHERS turn the kids on and give them just enough basics to go home and do it themselves," Stipe said.

The courses also have other advantages, teachers say. Students can find out early what they like and dislike, rather than finding out too late the career they've chosen doesn't appeal to them.

Stipe said it is difficult to gauge the success of incorporating unusual and different types of classes into the school day because the idea is so new. But he said early studies have shown the idea to have very positive effects on youngsters.

"The kids have a better self-image, and more confidence in themselves."

Males can marry at 18

How old must a male be before he can marry without his parent's or guardian's permission?

According to a recent ruling of the Illinois Supreme Court, males can marry at age 18 without consent of their parent or guardian — the same age as females. Prior to the ruling, males could not marry without such consent until they were 21 years old.

Police to mail books giving facts on drug abuse danger

If one youth in Buffalo Grove can be spared Jodi's fate, village police will be happy.

The story of Jodi's death from a drug overdose is told in a book police are preparing to mail to some 3,300 village residents.

The publication, "A Reason For Tears" will be sent to parents with children of junior high and high school age informing them of drug abuse dangers, Police Chief Harry Walsh said.

Walsh said the book, published nationally by a New Jersey organization known as Help, (Help Educate Loyal Parents), will be mailed next month.

The book contains illustrations of narcotics abused by youths and a chart listing the symptoms and effects parents can watch for if they suspect their children are on drugs.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette, who has had four years of training in narcotics law enforcement, says the chart is one of the best he's ever seen. "It's super-informative," he said.

Walsh said the book also is designed to show "We care about young people to help them avoid this pitfall — we're not interested in just busting, busting, busting."

Blanchette said the book will be a tremendous aid to the department's drug abuse program saying, "this is something people can take home and read."

"We're hopeful of making parents aware of the fact that drugs do exist in Buffalo Grove even though it's a quiet bedroom community," Blanchette said.

WALSH SAID HE got the idea to distribute the book in Buffalo Grove while attending a police chief's convention in San Antonio, Tex., two years ago.

Printing and publication costs were defrayed by selling advertising in the book to local merchants. "The businessmen in town have been very generous," he said, "because the ads are not cheap."

Police statistics show 38 narcotic incidents in the village in October, and 31 drug-related offenses reported in September.

Wheeling man saves construction boss' life

by STIRLING MORITA

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

HALLQUIST WAS administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Nowicki when Schaumburg firefighters arrived at the scene. The firemen worked feverishly for 45 minutes to dig out the trapped Nowicki and then transported him to the hospital in a department ambulance.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kick. "He knew what he was doing."

Police said Trentino Canale, who was in the ditch with Nowicki, reported that the walls of the eight-foot ditch caved in, pinning his boss to a large auger. Canale freed himself from the wet clay and ran to the nearby Starline office.

Hallquist said Canale came into the office and said to call the fire department. Another employee called, and Hallquist ran to the ditch, west of the building.

"I WENT THERE, and there was no response. I didn't like his color at all," Hallquist recalled. "He was not breathing at all."

Hallquist administered resuscitation, and Nowicki started breathing on his own. When firefighters attempted to free the man, Hallquist helped keep the oxygen mask on Nowicki's face. "He was certainly helpful throughout the extrication," Kick said.

Kick added it was difficult to dig in the ditch because there was about a ton of "soupy" clay around the victim, the owner of Norwick Plumbing of Wood Dale.

Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

War resister 'boycotts' amnesty plan

by WANDALYN RICE

Vietnam war resisters are "boycotting" President Ford's "earned reentry" amnesty program because "we are fighting for the right to resist an unjust war," a former Chicagoan and war resister said Wednesday at Harper College.

Steve Grossman, a 28-year-old Chicago native who has lived in Toronto, Ont., Canada, for two years, told an audience of about 20 persons, including members of the Harper Veterans Club, that they must "be on guard against being told that amnesty means meeting the needs of the exiles in Canada — they are the smallest group in need of amnesty."

Grossman, nearing the end of a two week, 13-city speaking tour sponsored by the National Council for Universal and Unconditional Amnesty, said men who have undesirable discharges from the armed service, those who didn't register for the draft at all or are in military and civilian prisons are more in need of amnesty than "the predominately white middle class people who are in exile."

HE ATTACKED Ford's amnesty plan as a "phony," which results in "harsher penalties for deserters and resisters than they were getting before the amnesty program." He said he and the NCUUA support an amnesty program that would include all men with undesirable discharges, rather than just those who were AWOL, as Ford's plan does, and would acknowledge "the right to resist an unjust war."

He fled to Canada two years ago after being indicted for refusing induction. He was drafted after he had received four years of student deferments and a deferment for three years' service in the Peace Corps. He gave up his deferment, he said, because he came to believe that "by deferring myself I was legitimizing this system and this war."

Grossman explained that resisters have 15 days after reentering the country to turn themselves in to the amnesty program and after that period face arrest. "I came back 12 days ago in Louisville," he said. He refused to answer any questions about his plans after the 15-day period expires and told his listeners to "draw your own conclusions" about that refusal.

During his tour he has found most people receptive to the idea of unconditional amnesty, he said. "The question of amnesty is the same as the war — the war is amnesty. The evidence of this war is on the table for all the world to see and what we have to do is make people see that the question of amnesty is the other side of the war. If the war is wrong, then resisting the war can't also be wrong."

GROSSMAN SAID he is not a pacifist and believes World War II was a "just war." "I think the heart of the question of amnesty is the right to the truth about the aims of the war," he said. The aims of the Vietnam War, he said, "were covered up with lies from the beginning." The only hostility Grossman encourtered from his small Harper audience was when a woman objected to his statement that the United States government in Vietnam was acting as an imperialist country. "You're voicing the party line," the woman protested. Grossman explained, "It's not a party line. But that's what it was and we're going to be involved in another imperialist war if we don't learn from the past."

STEVE GROSSMAN, who went to Canada two years ago to avoid the draft, says President Ford's amnesty program is "phony."

The Veterans' Club, made up predominantly of Vietnam veterans, invited Grossman. He said that he agrees with Ford on one point — that there has to be reconciliation between people involved with the war.

"I think it is important that there be reconciliation among families such as mine and that there be reconciliation between those of us who believed the lies and fought the war, and those of us who resisted the war," he said. "I do not want to see reconciliation with the war machine or with the system that creates wars such as these."

Coles County to ask election be invalidated

The Coles County (Ill.) Board will ask the state Board of Elections to void the Nov. 5 election because "video voters" malfunctioned throughout the county.

The board will ask the state to set a date for a new election.

Three other resolutions to void the county's contract with Frank Thornber Co. of Chicago for purchase of the machines also were approved. The county will attempt to recover $120,000 paid for the machines.

Lee County (Ill.) also has voted to end its contract for purchase of the machines.

Coles County Republicans opposed the resolution Tuesday and said the resolutions were attempts by Democrats to cover election losses. Seven of 10 county board members will leave office Dec. 1.

Moline Downs sale OK'd

ROCK ISLAND (UPI) — The sale of bankrupt East Moline Downs racetrack to the Blackhawk Racing Assn. of Chicago for $2.7 million was approved Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge Robert D. Morgan. Stockholders' approval is needed to finalize the sale.

Morgan rejected a reorganization plan by stockholders, which called for a loan of $1.1 million from a Florida land development firm and the sale of 500,000 shares of stock at $1 a share.

Morgan ordered a vote by the track's 4,000 creditors and said he will hold a final hearing by Jan. 10.

Downstate officials indicted

BROOKLYN, Ill. (UPI) — Three aides of former Brooklyn (Ill.) Mayor George Thomas have been indicted for extortion by a federal grand jury.

The three — Dale Rutherford, a Mount Vernon financial agent, David Johnson, a planning engineer, and John Cook, an assistant engineer — were charged Tuesday with aiding Thomas' extortion of contractors for a Brooklyn pumping project.

Thomas, 57, resigned as mayor after pleading guilty in September to accepting $4,000 in kickbacks from contractors in 1972. He could face 20 years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Thomas' guilty plea was the first entered in the investigation of kickbacks on public contracts in several East St. Louis communities.

Champaign-Denver flights

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — Ozark Airlines will begin direct air service from Champaign to Denver next spring.

Charles Ehler of Ozark said flights from Champaign to Denver with stops at Peoria and Sioux City, Iowa will begin April 1.

The airline will seek authority from the Civil Aeronautics Board to serve Denver nonstop from Peoria without stopping in Sioux City.

Ozark also is reapplying for authority to fly from Peoria and Champaign to Cleveland and Detroit.

Pekin to remain 'Chinks'

PEKIN (UPI) — Derogatory or not, Pekin High School students want to remain the "Chinks."

With disregard for criticism the school has received for calling its athletic teams the "Chinks," students voted in an advisory referendum Tuesday to keep the nickname.

Pekin Supt. William Holman said 1,034 students voted in favor of the name and 182 students voted to change it.

Holman said the city board of education will decide fate of the nickname.

Chinese-American organizations have protested the school's 30-year-old nickname on the grounds it is derogatory to persons of Chinese descent.

High court taps new clerk

The Illinois Supreme Court Tuesday named Cletis L. Woods to succeed Justin Taft as its chief clerk.

Woods, 54, of Springfield, has been the chief deputy clerk for 24 years.

Taft, whose six-year-elected term expires in January, said he wanted the job, but "for some time they've been talking about wanting a lawyer."

Taft, a Republican, was defeated Nov. 5 in a bid for the Illinois House of Representatives.

The chief clerk's annual salary is $25,000.

More labor troubles . . .

The Sheaffer Pen Co. plant in Fort Madison, Iowa, remained closed Wednesday during a labor dispute and McGraw-Edition Co. said 300 employees in a Canonsburg, Pa., electrical plant will be laid off.

Production in the Sheaffer plant was halted Monday when negotiations between United Auto Workers Local 1531 and the firm ended without a contract for about 1,100 production and maintenance workers.

UAW local President Bill Baker has accused the firm of staging an illegal "lockout" of employees and also with attempting to break the union. He said Tuesday the unionists were "still locked out" and said the local has filed unfair labor practices complaints with the National Labor Relations Board.

McGraw-Edition said its layoffs were triggered by uncertain economic conditions and the final phaseout of a product line.

The Canonsburg plant, which employs about 3,000 persons, makes power transformers and power circuit breakers for electric utilities.

Don't fret about comparative test scores

It can sometimes be pretty hard for a parent to tell exactly what a child is learning in school since kids seem to become uncommunicative when they're asked, "What did you learn in school today?"

When I was small, I finally convinced my parents the question was impossible to answer. I came home every day without the slightest idea what I had learned. Somehow, it just seemed that I got smarter and smarter, because of small, almost unnoticeable additions to my knowledge.

I suspect that's the way it is for most school children. And because it's so hard to see daily progress, teachers and parents fall back on other ways to tell if children are learning. The most common "other method" is the test.

STANDARDIZED tests, however, don't measure exactly what a child has learned. Instead, those tests, like the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, measure what a group of test writers think a child should know at a certain grade level.

Because of the inherent distaste for standardized tests a lot of educators also are sympathetic for the school officials in Wheeling-Butte Grove Dist. 21, where a group of parents are complaining because they believe the district's average test scores on the Iowa Test are too low.

There are some ironies in the Dist. 21 controversy. The test scores in Dist. 21 are just about the same as the national average — and the complaint from at least some of the parents is that the scores should be above average because the school district has upper-middle-class people.

In other words, while people in many major cities are worried because students in the schools score way below average, some residents of Dist. 21 are worried because their children are average.

That doesn't mean the people in Dist. 21 shouldn't be concerned. But I think they should ask themselves if they are looking at the right thing when they express their concern about the quality of the schools.

FIRST OF ALL, almost every parent in the nation would say they want their child to score above average on standardized tests. The only problem is that the goal has to be impossible for half the people. An "average" implies some people are above and others are below — and if you had a group

by Wandalva Rice

with an average IQ of 200 (100 points above the usual "average"), a child with an IQ of 180, while in the genius range, would be below average.

Also, standardized test scores, besides measuring what test writers think children should know instead of what they are taught, can be manipulated. A teacher who wants to have a high average test score for her class can suggest that students who probably will do poorly stay home from school the day the test is given.

There are some places, in fact, where whole classes that might be below average on tests take field trips the day tests are given. This may not happen in the Northwest suburbs, but it does happen.

BECAUSE OF problems with standardized tests, then, it may be that parents in Dist. 21, and in other districts, who are concerned about education should focus their concern on other areas.

Some parents in Dist. 21, for example, are upset about a year-old new grading system that grades a child on "effort" rather than comparing him to the other children in the class. I'm sure other parents and teachers think the grading system is good. This would be an area that could be discussed without the confusion that pervades test scores.

There probably are other areas that can be discussed where the quality of education can be better addressed than test scores. That doesn't mean that no one should pay attention to test scores — just that debates about the scores may not be the best way to question the quality of education.

Admission to the 8 p.m. performances is $1 at the door.

The Elk Grove High School debate team scored 15 wins and five losses while taking six awards at the Dist. 214 Invitational Debate Tournament over the weekend at Rolling Meadows High School.

On the varsity level, the team of Cheryl Kettler and Carol Swanson took the third-place team trophy with three wins and one loss. Miss Swanson also won the fifth-place varsity speaking award. Miss Kettler won the second-place varsity speaking award.

On the junior varsity level, the team of Bob Kinn and Steve LaForge took the third-place team trophy with a 4-0 record. Howard Hess took the third-place Individual Speaking Award for the junior varsity division.

On the novice level, John Reed finished second in Individual Speaking. Elk Grove High School's next debate tournament will be at Rockford East High School Dec. 7.

Peggy Kast, a senior at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, won a $75 prize in graphics in the recent Lake Erie College fourth annual high school art festival in Painesville, Ohio.

Miss Kast's intaglio print was chosen from 1,200 entries, submitted from 93 schools.

An Elk Grove High School senior, Cheryl Kettler, has been selected to participate as a member of a panel of high school students on a television show to be aired in January.

Miss Kettler was named panel moderator in competitive auditions against 21 other Chicago area students. The program will be taped Dec. 11. It will be aired over WMAQ-TV, Channel 5.

Trumps are ruff on losers

North's five-club response to Blackwood showed all four aces. South thought about bidding seven for a moment and then decided to take what should have been a sure profit at six.

The play looked simple enough. He led a low spade to his king at trick two and continued with a second spade to dummy's ace. West showed out and all of a sudden there were problems. South had a sure trump loser and there were some slight worries about his fourth heart.

He solved the problem nicely. His next play was to cash dummy's ace of hearts. Then he led a heart toward his hand. East could ruff if he wished, but in that case he would be ruffing South's losing heart. So East discarded a diamond.

South took his queen of hearts, entered dummy with the king of diamonds and led another heart. East could do nothing better than to discard again. South won that trick with the king of hearts, led his 10 of hearts and ruffed in dummy.

East could overruff, but once more he would be ruffing South's losing heart. Again, careful play had prevailed.

Sponsored by junior class

70 artists to appear at Meadows High fair

More than 70 artists will display their works and skills Saturday, Dec. 7 at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd.

The fair, the first to be sponsored by the school's junior class, will feature a variety of arts and crafts. Professional and amateur artists and craftsmen from both the Northwest suburban area and out of state, will display oil paintings, wood clocks, copper enameling, handcrafted jewelry, needlepoint and macrame wall hangings.

A blacksmith will show wall sconces and a glass blower will exhibit handblown glass. An artist will display stained glass and a potter also will exhibit.

Some artists will demonstrate their skills and portraits will be painted while people are attending the fair.

First, second and third-place ribbons and honorable mentions will be awarded after judging by Rick Abbott, a Prospect High School art teacher, Jens Brasch, a Rolling Meadows High School art teacher, and Gary Drake, art teacher at Arlington High School.

The junior class at Rolling Meadows will use proceeds from concessions at the fair to help finance the junior-senior prom.

Teachers learn about learning

NI-Gas president raps federal energy report

by LEA TONKIN

Increased pollution and soaring costs would result from the implementation of proposals in the Federal Energy Administration's recently issued Project Independence report. That's the criticism leveled by C. J. Gauthier, president of Northern Illinois Gas Co. and chairman of the board of the American Gas Assn.

"In recommending that utilization of natural gas and oil be switched to coal and coal-based electricity, the report admits a doubling of the amount of sulphur dioxide emissions into the atmosphere, which would pose a serious threat to those suffering from, or prone to upper respiratory diseases," Gauthier said of the Project Independence report. The recommendations amount to a reversal of the clean air mandate adopted by the federal agencies years ago, he said.

Gauthier said he favors an energy policy aimed toward development of nuclear, solar and other forms of energy in addition to natural gas. But the Project Independence report "relegates oil and gas to fundamentally petrochemical feedstocks," he said. A 23 per cent increase in the wasted energy would be caused by the switch to an all-electric energy system, he said.

Gauthier favors the deregulation of natural gas prices at the wellhead by the Federal Power Commission, and offshore drilling for gas on the Atlantic intercontinental shelf as measures that would provide the gas industry added reserves. There are costs to pay for this program: the potential of blowouts at offshore oil and gas wells, and rising cost for natural gas must be balanced by the public with the demand for power, Gauthier said.

He estimates the cost of natural gas would rise an average 8 per cent a year if the FPC allowed deregulation of wellhead prices, based on figures supplied by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "There is no question that the era of inexpensive energy has passed," Gauthier said. He believes the "conservation ethic" together with stepped-up research and resource development will enable the nation to meet environmental and energy demands.

Palatine parley Wednesday

Coming up: the Palatine and Environmental Problems organization will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Palatine Village Hall.

Emission testing at O'Hare

Emission testing of automobiles — both military and civilian — was conducted at the Defense Contract Administration Services Region's Chicago quarters at O'Hare Airport last week. The emissions of two major pollutants, carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons were tested, with approximately 33 per cent of the vehicles requiring minor adjustment to curtail harmful emissions. The program was conducted by Raymond Waters, DCSAR environmental and energy coordinator; John Saxon, of the department of environmental control for the City of Chicago, and Col. Sloan Gill, commander of the 928th Tactical Airlift Group based at O'Hare.

Walker's veto upheld

The Illinois Senate Friday failed to override Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of Senate bill 589, a victory for the Illinois Pollution Control Board and several environmental organizations. The bill would have required economic impact studies for existing and proposed pollution control regulations.

Radiation study begins

The Atomic Energy Commission regulatory staff, in cooperation with the Federal Aviation Administration and the Air Transport Assn., is conducting a study to evaluate radiation exposure from packages of radioactive material to workers at airport cargo terminals. The four-week study was launched Nov. 15 at six U.S. airports including O'Hare. Data will be evaluated and a report issued after the study.

Wheeling firm charged

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency filed an enforcement case against a Wheeling landfill site charging the owner, William Freeding, and the Landfill Engineering Co. with operation of the site without the required state permit. The case was filed before the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

Freedling, contacted at his Skokie office, said the landfill at the intersection of Milwaukee and Deerfield roads is no longer operational. The only activity at the site is "dumping dirt as a final cover," he said.

Dam a bane to bats?

Dr. Richard Meyer, a zoologist, testified Wednesday in federal court in St. Louis, that construction of the proposed Meramec Park dam would accelerate the decline of the Indiana bat. Meyer said halting the $63 million project would not stop the eventual extinction of the bat. He testified in the second day of a trial before U.S. Dist. Judge H. Kenneth Wangelin on a suit by the Sierra Club against the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Waters backed up by the proposed dam near Sullivan, Mo., would flood caves believed to be inhabited by the Indiana bat, an endangered species that Meyer described as "a beautiful bat."

Pollution board newcomers

Gov. Daniel Walker recently named Philip Zeilinn as a member of the Illinois Pollution Control Board. Zeilinn was head of Philip Zeilinn Associates, a planning and zoning consulting firm. He also served as assistant commissioner of planning for the Chicago Dept. of Development and Planning. Zeilinn replaces Roger Seaman, who resigned from the board to return to private law practice. If he is confirmed by the Illinois Senate, Zeilinn will serve in the $30,000-a-year post until July 1977.

Anti-litter hearing slated

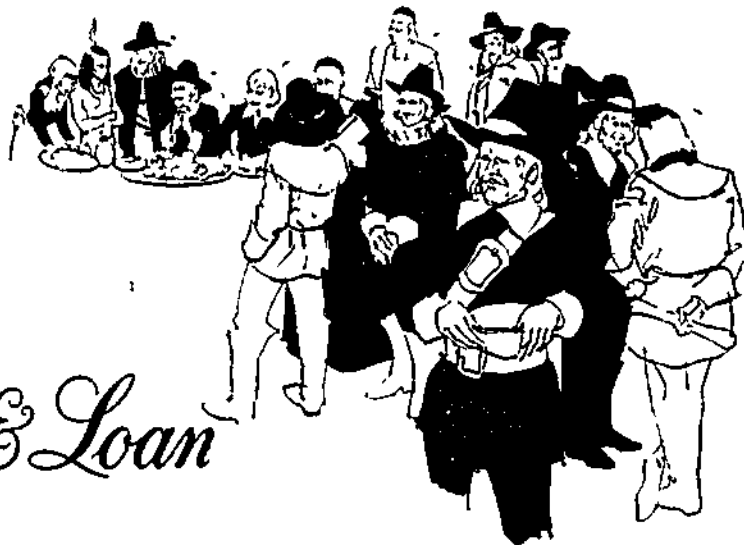

Anti-litter proposals will come up for a hearing Dec. 3-4: The Illinois Pollution Control Board scheduled the hearings on the proposed beverage container regulations. The board has studied the results of the State of Oregon experience under a similar no-return bottle and can regulation and has slightly modified its proposal. The hearings will be held at the Field Museum in Chicago starting at 10 a.m.

The IPCB had proposed a nickel a container charge for throw-away beverage containers as a means of eliminating the litter problem caused by consumers who dump the containers along roadsides and other areas. The deposit would encourage people to return the bottles to be recycled, the board said. The measure is opposed by the Illinois Manufacturers Assn. and the Glass Bottle Blowers Assn. The opponents believe that unemployment in the glass container and other industries would be caused by the rule.

Thanksgiving Day - 353 years later.

Thanksgiving 1974 is a good time to remember that for more than three centuries Americans have weathered troubled times and hardships. Not mere survival but triumph is an American tradition, a spirit that still moves our country today.

Let us remember to be Thankful.

RTA sets closed parley on chairman

THE HERALD Thursday, November 28, 1974 Section I — 11

The Regional Transportation Authority board sidestepped the issue of a full-time chairman Wednesday but set up two days of executive session next week to discuss the issue.

Board member Ernest Marsh of Chicago tried to reintroduce CTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky's name last week at a public board meeting, but was ruled out of order because it wasn't on the agenda. The subject was on Wednesday's agenda at Marsh's request, but he declined to press the issue because one Chicago board member was absent.

Avoiding a possible second tie vote on Pikarsky, whose name was defeated 4 to 4 in a public vote Oct. 17, will give the board members time to discuss the situation and perhaps arrange a compromise.

PRESSURES ARE believed to be increasing for the suburban board members to accept Pikarsky, with some guarantees of service to the suburbs. Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, named as a compromise candidate for chairman last week, reversed his decision to be placed in consideration, and endorsed Pikarsky instead.

Also, a multi-billion-dollar federal subsidy program for transit systems was signed in Washington, D. C., this week, but the RTA will have to be in operation to claim any funds. Pikarsky has estimated the Chicago area could get $240 million in operating subsidies and assistance in the six-year federal program.

RTA law requires at least six votes for selection of the chairman, who will serve a five-year term. The RTA board is being threatened, however, with at least two bills in the Illinois General Assembly that would take the selection process away from it and place it in the hands of the governor.

SPECULATION THAT a compromise to gain at least two suburban votes is in the works was stimulated recently when board member Richard Newland of Waukegan met with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. Further impetus was given when Marsh attempted to bring up Pikarsky's name again at the last board meeting. Observers were convinced Pikarsky's name would not be brought up again for another routine deadlock, and that Marsh must have had the six votes.

No executive sessions to discuss the chairmanship have been conducted since the public vote in which Pikarsky and former American Airlines president George A. Wardo were defeated. Although the long executive sessions have been planned for Monday and Tuesday, temporary chairman Joseph Tocco said no new names can be introduced without a five-member vote to accept new nominations.

D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston said some new names have come up since the board closed off nominations, but Chicago board member Nicholas Bosen said the four city members will not agree to reopen nominations.

ALSO AT WEDNESDAY'S meeting the board accepted a report from its committee studying bus company emergency grant requests, and denied aid to three firms. The subcommittee said Valley Transit Systems of Justice, the Waukegan and North Chicago Transit Co. and the suburban Transit Co. of Oak Lawn did not need emergency aid now, as defined by the board's attorneys. The companies were asked to submit more information.

Last week the board approved two grants totalling $785,354 for United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines and south Suburban Safeway Lines of Harvey because the firms were in danger of going out of business. United would have been unable to meet its payroll, said John Hanck, president.

The board has been cautious in awarding grants because of possible liability for errors. Each grant was approved 6-2, and members have repeated that they would feel more comfortable with their actions if a chairman were chosen.

NIPC asks RTA to pick chairman

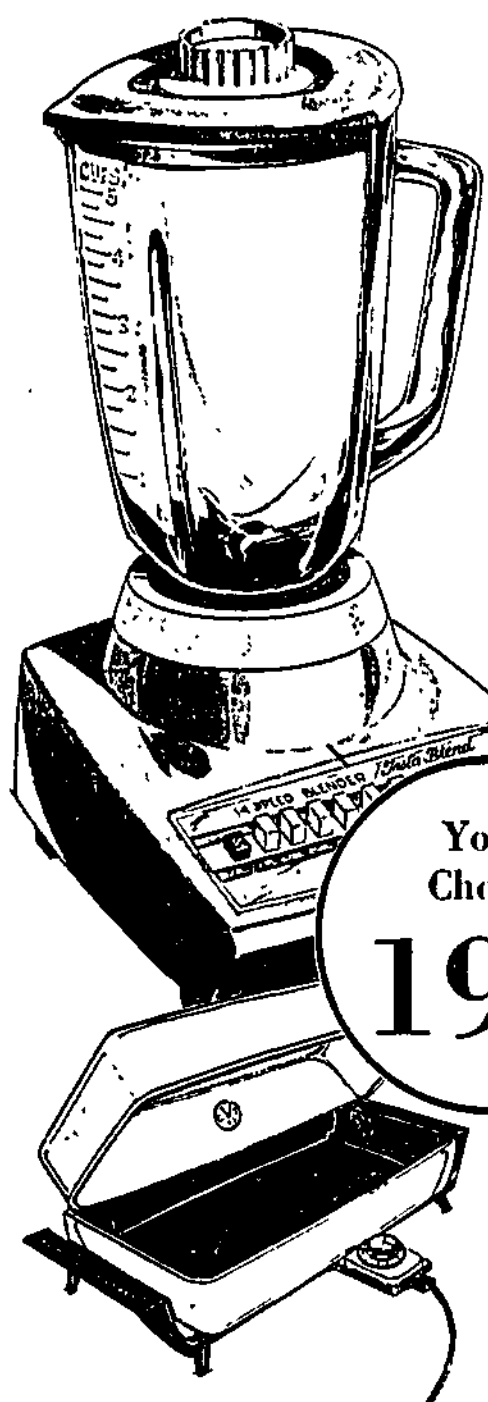

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission is drafting a resolution urging the RTA to select a chairman as soon as possible so transportation plans for the area can continue.

NIPC adopted a revised 1995 Transportation System plan recently after a televised public hearing and endorsed a five-year Mass Transit Development Program. NIPC spokesmen said that although NIPC does have some responsibility for planning regional public transportation, the lack of an RTA chairman is holding up progress.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Lower blood pressure

My father who is 63 is in general good health. About four months ago, while having a checkup, his doctor told him his blood pressure was too high (146) and that he had to use medication.

Last month his pressure was 131, and this month it was 127. The doctor told him he would have to take these pills for the rest of his life. They are Hydrodiuril and he takes two each day. His pressure is now 127 over 80, and I personally don't think that 146 is high. My own pressure is 154, and my doctor said I don't need any medication. Do you think that these pills are really necessary for my father?

Oddly enough, doctors don't agree on when to treat high blood pressure. In general the lower the pressure is, the less likely a person is to develop changes in the arteries that lead to heart attacks and strokes. Both the upper and lower readings are important in making the decision, and you didn't state what your father's lower reading was before he started treatment.

A woman with similar pressures and low blood cholesterol might do much better without treatment than a man with higher cholesterol readings. Each case has to be looked at individually. The truth is your father's pressure of 127 over 80 is a better reading. The type of medicine he is taking is very mild and not likely to cause him any problems.

I understand that two doctors at the University of Rhode Island have discovered an enzyme that can be added to milk and thereby enable people who don't have this enzyme to drink milk. I would like to know the name of this product and where it can be purchased.

You are right. Milk sugar is a double sugar, and it has to be split by the enzyme lactase in the intestine before it can be absorbed. For the large number of people, mostly adults, who do not have this enzyme using milk can cause lots of discomfort and indigestion-type complaints.

The enzyme product is not available yet. The method has been developed at the laboratory level. It takes a long time from laboratory to shelf in our society. That applies to lots of things. That is why, in part, that we have so few uses of nuclear energy 30 years after its discovery.

The product may not be put on the market, but instead dairies may decide to market a special milk that has already been treated with the enzyme. Another advantage here is that the milk would taste a bit sweeter than normal milk. Splitting the double sugar causes the sweet taste. This will mean people who like sweets would not need to use as much sugar, and hence calories. That would be helpful to many people. I'm as anxious as you are to see the new products when they are on the market.

Surgeon's report

Rehabilitation improving for mastectomy patients

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors are stepping up efforts to rehabilitate women treated for breast cancer and ease their return to a full life at home and work, a Syracuse, N.Y., surgeon said.

Dr. Daniel Burdick, professor of surgery at the Upstate Medical Center, New York, told a national conference on advances in cancer therapy that the five-year survival rate of between 50 and 75 per cent shows women can lead long, productive lives after breast removal.

He said most women are able to return to full activity "and even strenuous physical activity may be performed without limitation."

"New efforts are under way at present to emphasize these facts to insurance and industrial leaders so the post-mastectomy patient can take her rightful place alongside other members of the working force," Burdick said in a paper prepared for a session on breast cancer opening the three-day conference.

The National Cancer Institute, which is sponsoring the meeting with the American Cancer Society, estimates 89,000 new breast cancer cases will be reported in the United States this year.

BURDICK SAID rehabilitation of the breast-cancer patient should begin with her first visit to her surgeon and follow with honest and considerate discussions on the nature of the problem and plans to deal with it. After surgery, Burdick said the favorable aspects of the case should be emphasized to provide "constant hope and encouragement."

"No patient is beset with more anxieties and concerns than the woman who has been treated for breast cancer," the paper said. "With the development of any new symptom, the patient will relate this to her disease and to the possibility that this represents recurrence until she is reassured by her physician, after adequate examination has been carried out; that no recurrence exists."

BURDICK SAID MEANINGFUL relationships must be developed between the patient, her family and all members of the medical team.

"A program for rehabilitation, therefore, is more than a program — it is a philosophy of caring, an attitude of hope and encouragement which each member of the cancer team must bring to the patient; and attitude which says, 'this patient has a future.'"

Heart-transplant future lauded

DALLAS (UPI) — A Stanford physician said more than 60 per cent of heart transplant patients can expect to live at least a year and future recipients may survive 10 years.

Dr. Edward Stinson of the Stanford University Medical School said transplants are now considered true therapy for treating heart disease and no longer just research.

"I think it's reasonable to expect a modest increase in survival rates," Stinson said. "I would expect that five or 10 years from now recipients from operations this year will still be walking around when mechanical hearts become available."

Stinson said he eventually expects development of mechanical hearts that work as well as another human heart. The main advantage of mechanical hearts will be unlimited shelf life, he said.

"We have already demonstrated we have increased life expectancy with the transplantation," he said. "Without the operation, potential recipients died within a month and those who receive transplantation survived five or six years after the operation."

The longest living transplant patient is Lewis Russell Jr., a schoolteacher in Indianapolis, who underwent surgery in August 1968.

Dusan Vlado, who was the second oldest living recipient, died in Los Angeles earlier this month. Stinson said preliminary findings showed Vlado died of coronary artery disease which blocks the main vessels of the heart and was once the major cause of transplant patient deaths.

Herald opinion

There's cause for thanks

The nation has seen better years in which to celebrate Thanksgiving.

A faltering economy at home and threatened economic anarchy abroad, a looming planet-wide food crisis, rising tensions in world trouble spots — all cast long shadows over the beginning 1974 holiday season and into 1975.

But there have also been far, far worse years.

Consider 1621, which tradition remembers as the year of the first Thanksgiving in America. The Pilgrims had lost half their tiny band of some 100 souls to disease during the terrible winter before. Their colony on a raw and inhospitable continent was by no means established and secure.

Yet those who remained gave thanks — not merely for mere survival but for the opportunity which the God they worshiped still offered them to build a new life in a New World for themselves and their posterity.

Or consider 1863, the year of Lincoln's Thanksgiving Proclamation, from which we date our modern observance.

The nation was in the midst of the most bitter war in its history, before or since. Though there had been a great victory for the North at Gettysburg in July, no one could foresee how many more months of bloodletting, of brother killing brother, were still to be endured.

Yet the people gave thanks — not for mere survival but for the promise of peace — for the opportunity, as Lincoln was later to say, "to bind up the nation's wounds" and to join, North with South, to fashion an even stronger and more perfect Union.

True, there have been more placid years than 1974. But if anyone knows of a time when there were no crises on the horizon, when life was better for the greatest number than it is today, when the future was less forbidding and more promising than it is today — when, in short, Americans had more reason to be thankful than they have today — let him step forward and we will listen to his case for calling off the holiday.

Until then, we will give thanks for our own and our country's blessings this Thanksgiving, as Americans have always done, and as they always will.

Bob Lahey's column

'Press conferences are out of hand'

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

This American institution called The Political Press Conference has gotten out of hand.

It is a device loved and respected by politicians at all levels, and it is much abused by them.

It is an object of continuing hope to newsmen in daily quest of something to report, and it is usually disappointing to them.

Since the presidential press conference was institutionalized by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the technique has filtered down through the various political levels to the point where it has now become the thing to do to call a press conference if you wish to announce that you are a candidate for the local park district.

The trouble is that most press conferences are summoned by politicians who:

- Have an announcement to make which could as well be done in the letters sent out announcing that a press conference is to be held.
 - Have one thing to say and don't wish to discuss anything else.
 - Have nothing to say.
 - Need some television exposure.
- Television — it is said without rancor — is of course a contributing factor to the proliferation of the press conference.

Television news directors, it is suspected, allow themselves to be lured into covering press conferences for the same reason that the pencil press does; in case anything is said, they don't want their boss to learn about it from another station, or newspaper.

It seems to be instinctive even to novice politicians that news organizations live in fear of missing something that their competition is going to have on the 6 o'clock news or in the morning edition. It is a rare reporter or editor who can ignore an invitation to a press conference and not go around with a nagging thought that he may have made a mistake.

But the trouble with the press conference is not entirely attributable to the politicians who hold them. The "press" itself contributes as much to the ills of the institution as do the politicians.

There is hardly a living American above the age of eight who is not familiar with the mob scene involved in the Presidential press conference on television, with limelighting reporters hollering and screaming to get the attention of the Man, and often coming up with questions that do not deserve the consideration of the local building inspector. All this is brought to mind by the recent visit to Chicago by Donald Rumsfeld, White House chief of staff who used to be the congressman in this neighborhood.

Rumsfeld went to great lengths to avoid a press conference. Before his arrival, his staff assured reporters who inquired that he would set aside a couple of hours to visit with reporters in an informal atmosphere, but they insisted he did not want a press conference.

At the appointed hour, the White House executive arrived at the hotel suite which was properly equipped with coffee and munchies — ignored by the reporters — and he was besieged by no less than 16 reporters.

The informal, conversational atmosphere which he sought was effectively destroyed, when he finally found a place to sit, by dungaree-clad young ladies and bearded young men who jammed six microphones in his face and proceeded to sit mute while other voices in the room quizzed Rumsfeld about events long since past and with which he had little to do.

There was, in the shouting and hollering which ensued, little chance for Donald Rumsfeld to talk about himself or his function in the present administration. The press turned his visit into a Press Conference. And it produced nothing.

Hondurans laud support

I would like you to publish this letter from Mrs. Norma de Solano, the Honduran consulate. This official document can only try to thank those individuals and organizations who helped anonymously.

A very special thanks to Paddock Publications for telling the story, Joe Swickard for his thoughtfulness and kindness.

My heart is full of love and gratitude for people like Mrs. Betty Haag, Julian Leviton and Betty Park of the Suzuki Talent Institute. Every one of their students helped my people.

There are so many others: Rabbi Bruce M. Freyer, Highland Park; St. Mark Lutheran Church, The E-Hart Girls and Service Unit 642, Mount Prospect; Cub Scout Pack 358, Boy Scout Troop 94 and Holy Spirit Church, Hoffman Estates; Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine; Arlington Countryside Chapel, St. Edna Church and St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights; The Neighborhood Bible Studies, Prospect Heights; The Thrift Shop, Glenview Naval Air Station and Major Greg Lee, U. S. Marine Corps.

Thank you all for your concern, your prayers and your generous help. My people are eternally grateful.

Our map's incorrect

I have just finished reading the Palatine Herald of Nov. 12. I refer to your printed map of the flood hazard in this area. I know this is a copy of an old map that you published several months ago, but you still have Reseda West Development in the flood area, when actually on your map Reseda West is shown in the wrong location.

If you will look back at the issue in which you first published this map, the same mistake was made. A day or two later, you printed a retraction and that Reseda West was not, repeat not, in the flood zone, yet since that time and your retraction you continue to show Reseda West in the wrong location and still call it a flood hazard area. Since your paper, which I have grown to respect since I became a Reseda West property owner, can continue to make this mistake, who can set HUD straight?

On the printed map, the area which is shown as Reseda West is actually an empty field. This may not be important to you or HUD, but it's very important to my neighbors and myself.

Now the question, which is correct, your first retraction, or what you have been printing lately?

Anthony J. Natch
A Reseda West resident

EDITOR'S NOTE: The retraction is correct. Reseda West is not in the flood area.

Letters welcome

The Herald welcomes and encourages letters from readers. Letters are published in "The Fence Post" column; no anonymous mail is considered for publication, and we will not withhold names on request. Candidate 'neglected'

During the recent election campaign there was an independent candidate, Roger Kotecki, running for the General Assembly from the Second District. The League of Women Voters of Palatine feels that The Herald was very unfair in not even mentioning Mr. Kotecki's candidacy.

I contacted Bob Lahey, political editor, the week before the election to inform him of the independent candidate. I was assured that he was aware that Mr. Kotecki was running for the legislature and that his exclusion from the special campaign section of The Herald was "an oversight." He implied that the situation would be rectified before the election.

While the League does not support candidates for office, we do feel that all legitimate candidates are entitled to equal press coverage.

'Feelings hurt'

Your beautifully planned and executed Panorama section arrived with The Herald this morning and I found it exciting and informative reading.

However, I was disappointed, as I am sure some 10,000 other people might have been, to discover that you completely ignored the Prospect Heights community. I am well aware that we are not an incorporated village, but we are proud of our community services — fire department, post office, park district, school district and beautiful new library — and the long history of rural living that "Prospect Heights" means to so many people.

You state on the second page that "... we found that we had to leave out a lot of things." I am sure this is true, but I think at least a page for Prospect Heights might have been in order.

I am very sure that you have hurt many feelings, and I hope that in the future such editions will acknowledge our thriving area. We are proud and happy to be a part of Prospect Heights.

Blasts Buffalo Grove president

Dear Gary Armstrong, Buffalo Grove village president:

In view of the article in the Nov. 13 Herald where you and also Mr. James Shirley say, "the Lake County voters can come out on any Monday and be heard." I was just one of the many Lake County residents who were present and wanted to be heard at the village hall meeting where the Phoenix "rentals" were railroaded through. You, Mr. Armstrong, said we only have time for one comment from the people present. It was unfortunate that Mr. Driscoll had to catch a plane and the whole meeting agenda was moved up so that he could vote and yes, you again, Mr. Armstrong could break the tie. Oh yes, we in Lake County really are heard on a Monday night! That evening was a fine example.

Last week I read where time was taken to discuss naming of streets after past presidents. Oh yes, that is important!

We can't even have a municipal fire department because you seem to think the golf course is much more important. Aren't fires and lives more important?

Oh yes, as of yet we have not read the news of the ownership of the Buffalo Grove golf course? At the village meeting it was announced it would be in our hands in two or three days.

I come to your meetings, but I agree because we live in Lake County, it's like living on the other side of the Berlin wall! When are we going to become a village concerned with people needs?

Any time a question as big as the Phoenix development rentals and as long as the residents have been fighting it — yes, I agree with Mr. Osmon, maybe you better look back and see how much time you gave Lake County residents on that issue or for that matter anyone in the entire village!

The meetings I've attended tend to look like a cut and dried matter before they reach the floor.

I don't see any interest for a village municipal fire department? Why? The money is to be spent for the public works garage which is only because of our being railroaded into the great Buffalo Grove golf course. I like golf and open space but how am I going to enjoy it when it's impossible right now at times to play golf. I'd rather see a life saved by Buffalo Grove mobile intensive care unit out in Lake County than anything.

Hersey defended

I would like to write a reply to the Fence Post letter written by David Reiser, choral director of Palatine High School (published Friday, Nov. 8).

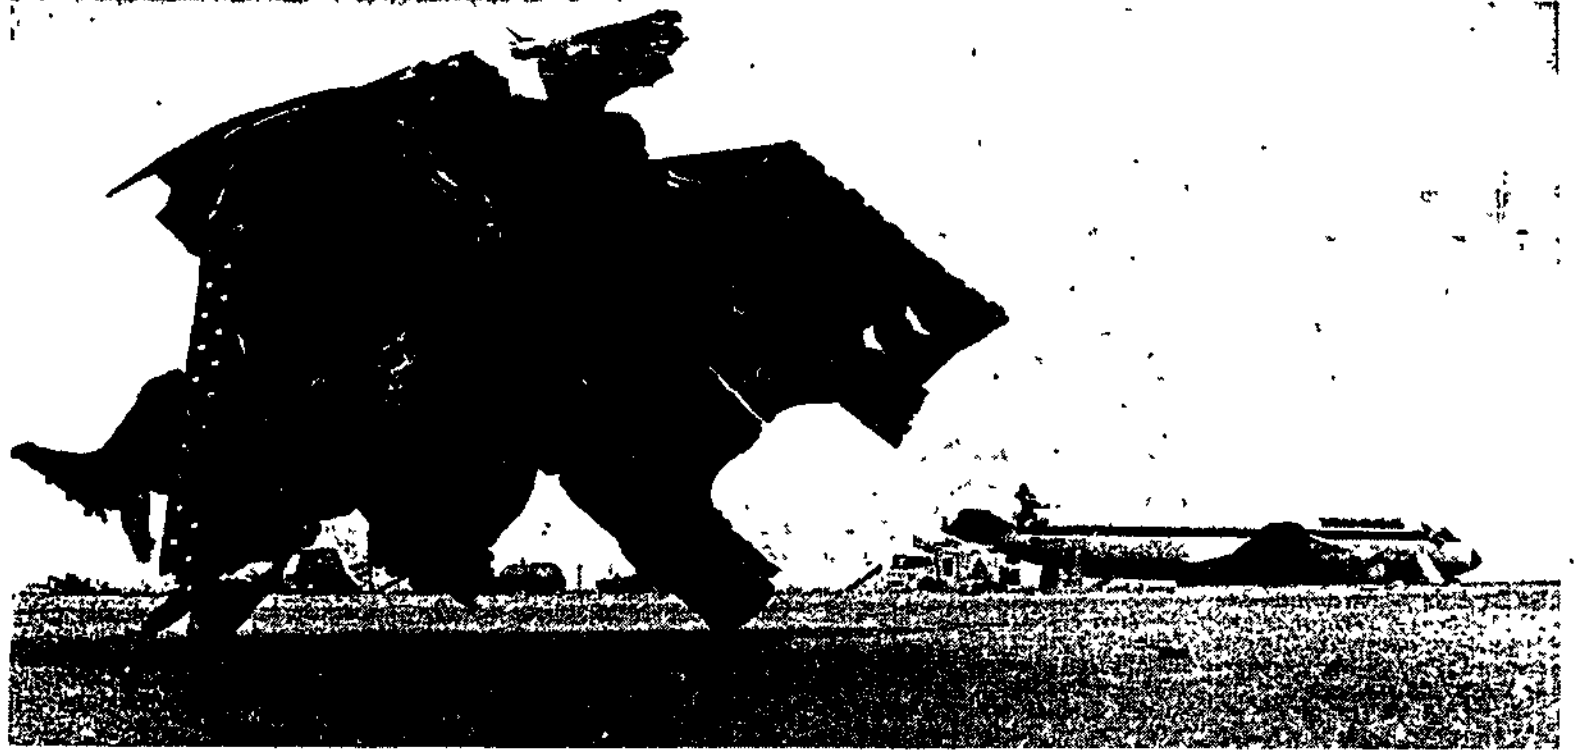

He stated in the article that he "was shocked to read of the $15,000 gift by the State of Illinois to help finance the Hersey Band trip to the Rose Bowl Parade."

I have only one thing to say to this statement. In the few years that Hersey has existed, they have won many awards not only with the band, but also athletics.

Very few schools have done as well as Hersey has for its age. I'm sure that if Palatine's high school band or chorus or what have you or any high school band etc., in any other part of the state can do as well as Hersey's band and be invited to the Rose Bowl Parade they would be helped by the state, too, if necessary.

'72 O'Hare crash still haunts crew in the tower

ALMOST TWO YEARS have passed since the foggy, snowy evening when two jets collided on a runway at O'Hare Airport. A grueling federal hearing determined the cause as failure of the traffic control system to insure separation of planes on the ground. Ten persons died in flames that engulfed one plane.

by STEVE FORSYTH

Nothing indicated the thick fog on Dec. 20, 1972, would be anything more than an inconvenience.

There had been fog like this before, with no major problems. At O'Hare Airport, jet traffic was slowed but not stopped by the reduced visibility.

Holiday passengers were making their way to family and friends when the fog suddenly took on the countenance of tragedy and became a killer on Runway 27-Left.

Most of the details from the two-year-old crash involving a Delta Airlines Convair 440 and a North Central Airlines DC-9 are now history, but Patrick O'Brien, 28, still finds his daily life affected in many ways.

O'Brien was the ground controller in the airport tower directing the Delta flight 934 when it mistakenly taxied across runway 27-L and was struck by the outbound North Central Flight 573. Ten persons died in that collision.

IN THE TWO years after the crash, O'Brien lost his medical certificate to work as an air traffic controller, suffered a painful ulcer and was divorced by his wife of five years.

The other two tower men who were involved in the crash incident are also out of the business. The supervisor, Russell Lawson, took vacation and sick time for several months until he was eligible to retire, O'Brien said. Lloyd Eastburn, air traffic controller handling the takeoff of the North Central plane, was transferred to Denver, but a short time later a blood vessel burst in one eye and partially blinded him.

All three of the principal figures in the tower that foggy night have been forced into new lives, but O'Brien feels he has capitalized on the changes.

A more relaxed person now, he is studying anthropology at Harper College and planning on a career that is far removed from the anxiety and emotional stress of an air traffic controller at the busiest airport in the world.

O'Brien wants no more of the ulcers and tension he had before, and would be very happy digging for historical remnants in remote locations.

O'BRIEN, THE STUDENT, describes his former job as nearly a "living hell." He got into it because of U. S. Navy training, but he had no particular commitment to that kind of career. Following his military training he received FAA instruction in Oklahoma City, Okla., and was assigned to Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling for six weeks before being transferred to the O'Hare tower.

Even though he had not completed training for the tower duties, he was qualified for ground control and some other positions. The night of the crash he was routinely handling inbound and outbound ground traffic to relieve another employee. He had been sent up to the tower about 5:40 p.m.

Working high above the airport is rigorous, O'Brien says. "You're making life-or-death decisions for eight hours — you're not allowed to make mistakes." The longer a person works at the job, the faster he gets "up" for it and the longer it takes to "come down" after the shift is over, he says.

Under such tremendous pressures, including overtime because of the shortage of controllers, the men react in different ways, but O'Brien says it was taking him several hours at night to relax before he even wanted to talk to his wife or anyone else.

WHY DOES ANYONE take these jobs — power, prestige, money? "That about covers it," O'Brien said. The pay is high for the training involved. "Most of the men have no college." Starting salary is around $11,000 and many controllers are making more than $20,000.

On Dec. 20, O'Brien had been occupied with a "lost" pilot on Delta flight 750. The pilot had not landed at O'Hare before, and O'Brien said it took about 40 transmissions to get him one mile through the fog to the holding pad.

While O'Brien was handling 750, Delta 954 landed and cleared off runway 14-L. "I called 954, got no answer and told the other controller I didn't have him. Then 954 called me, but all I heard was 'Delta 954, we're with you!'"

A tape recording later showed that the pilot had also said he was "inside the bridge" on the taxiway toward the terminal. O'Brien said he didn't hear anything about location, so he told the pilot (Continued on Page 16)

Crew scarred by 1972 O'Hare nightmare

Normally, if the pilot had radioed as soon as he got off the runway, O'Brien's direction would have indicated where the plane was. If the plane had gone too far the pilot would not have been able to make the turn, O'Brien said.

From the actual location of the plane, the pilot took O'Brien's message as a logical step — for the pad at runway 32-L. But O'Brien meant 32-R, which would have been a safe maneuver. The left pad required crossing runway 27-L.

IN THE FOG, the two planes were out of sight of each other until the last moment, when some passengers reported seeing lights. The North Central pilot ordered a climb and almost cleared Delta 954, but the planes collided and the North Central jet crashed into the runway several hundred yards away. The Delta jet was damaged but no one was injured seriously. It came to a stop nearby.

The crash was not immediately obvious to the airport tower. A sickening orange glow in the fog meant something was burning near the 27-L intersection, and the controllers searched for North Central flight 578, on the radar. Nothing. They tried the radio. Still nothing.

Emergency equipment raced to the scene, but there was still no realization that Delta 954 was involved. Police found a man on the runway who pointed to the plane from which he had escaped, and 954 was identified.

After a crash, all tower personnel involved are routinely relieved from duty. "When I was relieved, I found the other controller (Eastburn) on a couch, with firemen giving him oxygen. There were rumors he had a heart attack, but he had just hyperventilated because of the anxiety. I went to the hospital Dec. 23 for emergency treatment for the same thing," O'Brien said.

"It (the crash) was just one of those things when circumstances come together. Five seconds either way and there would have been no crash," he said.

The pressure began to take its toll. "For the next month, through the hearing, I couldn't eat, sleep — I was just lost. My wife seemed lost, because she didn't know what to do.

"The hearings started (in mid-January). I had to walk out when one North Central passenger testified. I was called and I testified for six hours. I still contend I never gave 954 any taxiing instructions. I said, 'If you can, pull over.' I did feel very responsible, however."

During the hearings, O'Brien said, "I was angered by some of the pilots, particularly on 954. After the hearing I took off for a week, just to get away.

"I felt the pilots were trying to blame us. The instructions I gave 954 were just to locate him on the ground. If he couldn't have pulled over to the right, I would have known he had passed the turnoff point."

The hearings took several days, some of them in Washington, D.C., but the National Transportation Safety Board panel wouldn't come up with a conclusion and report until August.

"I went back to work, but on the second day we had the same situation with the snow," O'Brien said. "I was totally overcautious, and called for someone to take over. I worked at simpler jobs for three days. My stomach was hurting, and I found out I had an ulcer. So I lost my medical certification. Six months later the ulcer went away, but I still had anxiety, and I still cannot get medical certification."

O'Brien was given a choice of other jobs with the Federal Aviation Administration after the hearing results came out in August, but he didn't want any of them.

THOSE HEARING results blamed the crash on "failure of the traffic control system to insure separation of aircraft during a period of restricted visibility." The board cited O'Brien's failure to designate the "right" runway pad, disuse of a controversial piece of ground radar equipment to locate taxiing aircraft, and failure of the Delta 954 crew to seek clarification of the controller's communication.

With the changes in O'Brien's life came a new direction and new goals. "A lot of my priorities have changed," he says. "A lot of aggression is gone, and there is no burning desire to go out and move up. I'd rather live a subsistence existence."

Supported by the GI Bill and medical disability payments from the government, O'Brien is immersed in his study of man and man's history. "I find it fascinating studying different cultures, present and past." He adds, "I want to be able to relax and enjoy life."

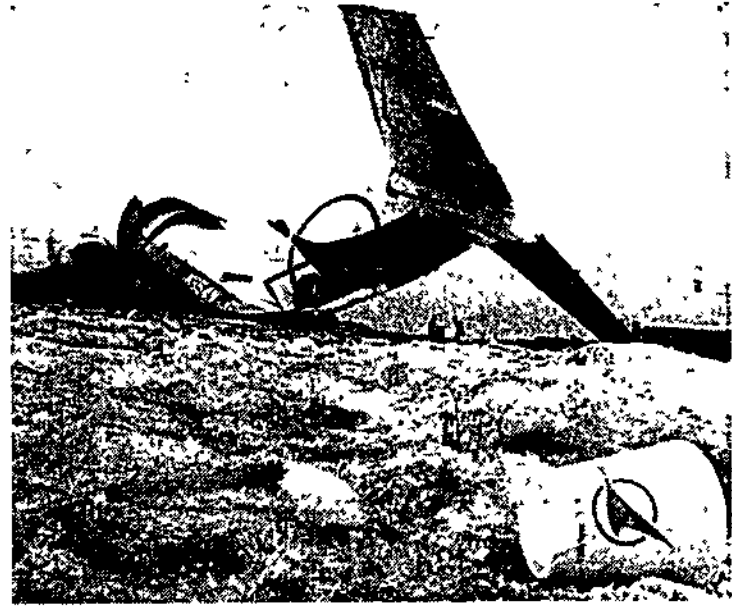

His plans include application for a scholarship to study an archeological site near Campville in southern Illinois. The 12-week program is sponsored by Northwestern University. O'Brien then plans to add two more years of college for a bachelor's degree.

Living in furnished apartments and owning little but his clothes and a stereo, O'Brien is avoiding many of the hassles of life, although he is not avoiding people. He has become active at Harper through the Veterans' Club and is the club representative to the Student Senate. Recent projects include a fund-raising program to send a young leukemia victim to Disney World with his parents.

BEFORE THE DISASTER at O'Hare, O'Brien was letting his life happen, letting it run itself. He found himself in a job for which he had not aspired, but he let it happen. Now he feels in control of his life and is leading it the way he wants it to go.

When he returns to visit friends at the O'Hare tower, he says, half of them envy him and the other half ask him when he is coming back — or can't he "take it."

O'Brien is convinced the latter half will be thinking like the rest before long. Working in the tower is that kind of job.

FORMER FAA ground traffic controller Patrick O'Brien has good reason to remember the details of this two-plane fatal crash Dec. 20, 1972, at O'Hare Airport. He was directing one of the planes when the accident occurred.

PATRICK O'BRIEN, 26, now a full-time student at Harper College in Palatine, prefers a quiet, simpler life than the tense career he had as an air traffic controller at O'Hare Airport.

County denies car-emission tests needed

County officials disputed a need for suburban auto emission testing Wednesday en route to celebrations of the annual Thanksgiving feast. The forecast was that more of them would make it safely through the holiday traffic crush than ever before.

The National Safety Council's highway fatality projection for the holiday weekend from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to midnight Sunday, Dec. 1 was the lowest in the six years it has been making Thanksgiving holiday projections.

The council estimated that between 525 and 625 persons will die in traffic fatalities, compared to last year's estimate of between 625 and 725. The actual number of deaths last year was 542, well below the estimate, and experts gave the credit for the decline to the gasoline shortage.

The Safety Council projects that between 27,000 and 32,000 persons will be the victims of disabling traffic injuries on the Thanksgiving holidays this year. During Thanksgiving 1973 there were 23,800 disabling injuries.

County officials disputed a need for suburban auto emission testing Wednesday with statistics that showed a decrease in suburban car traffic and pollution in the Loop.

"Any program of mandatory auto testing in the county will have little or no impact on downtown air pollution," said Philip J. Mole, county environmental control director, after delivering a study of Loop traffic to U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials.

The EPA last year ordered testing of 13 million suburban cars to reduce pollution in the Loop and the county board refused to approve the $3.5 million test program.

Mole said that suburban traffic contributes only "one-half of one per cent" to Loop pollution and that retrofitting of 500 Chicago taxicabs with antipollution devices will be "six times more effective."

"Carbon monoxide levels in the Loop are decreasing. Suburban vehicles do not have the impact that they were purported to have," Mole said.

MOLE SAID THAT a "small percentage" of Northwest suburban cars were found by a team of 35 investigators who checked 133 parking garages in the Chicago business district. Fewer than two per cent of Loop cars were registered to owners in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect or Schaumburg, he said.

About 5 per cent of suburban vehicles were owned by Des Plaines residents, the study showed.

Loading suburbs were Skokie, Park Ridge and Evanston with 8 to 16 per cent of suburban cars in the Loop.

The study, which tracked travel of 13,000 cars entering the Loop and which checked licenses of an estimated 24,000 cars parked in Loop garages, disputed totals used by the EPA to order mandatory testing for all cars in the county.

Differences in EPA and county pollution estimates include:

- Parked cars. About 31.2 per cent, not an EPA estimated 41 per cent, come from suburban areas.

- Moving vehicles. Only 19 per cent, not an EPA predicted 28 per cent, are suburban.

- Loop traffic. A combination of parked and moving car traffic indicates that suburban motorists are about 22 per cent, not 32 per cent, of Loop traffic.

- Air pollution. Carbon monoxide has dropped 30 per cent since 1971 tests at the Civic Center showed.

- Chicago traffic. Cars registered to Chicago owners have increased in the Loop from 54 to 66 per cent.

The study indicated that nearly 10 per cent of cars parked in the Loop are driven from outside Cook County.

To expedite your order for these items, address it to December Withdrawals, Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036. There is a 50-cent handling charge for each order.

FIRST-DAY cancellations for the retarded children 10-cent stamp totaled 412,882.

THE IRISH POST Office plans to issue seven commemorative stamps during 1975.

The subjects will include International Women's Year; European Architectural Heritage Year; Europa; European Amateur Golf Team Championships; Contemporary Irish Art; Bicentenary of the Foundation of the Presentation Order; and the 1975 Christmas issue.

Details on dates of issue and denominations will be announced later.

THE 1974 MINT SET, containing one of each of the stamps issued by the U.S. Postal Service during the year, will be placed on sale early in December.

The sets are $3.50 each and will be available from your local post office or from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Santa needs helpers at post office

The Chicago Post Office, said Postmaster Emmett E. Cooper Jr., receives more than 13,000 "letters to Santa" every Christmas season and is in need of Santa's helpers to fulfill many of the requests.

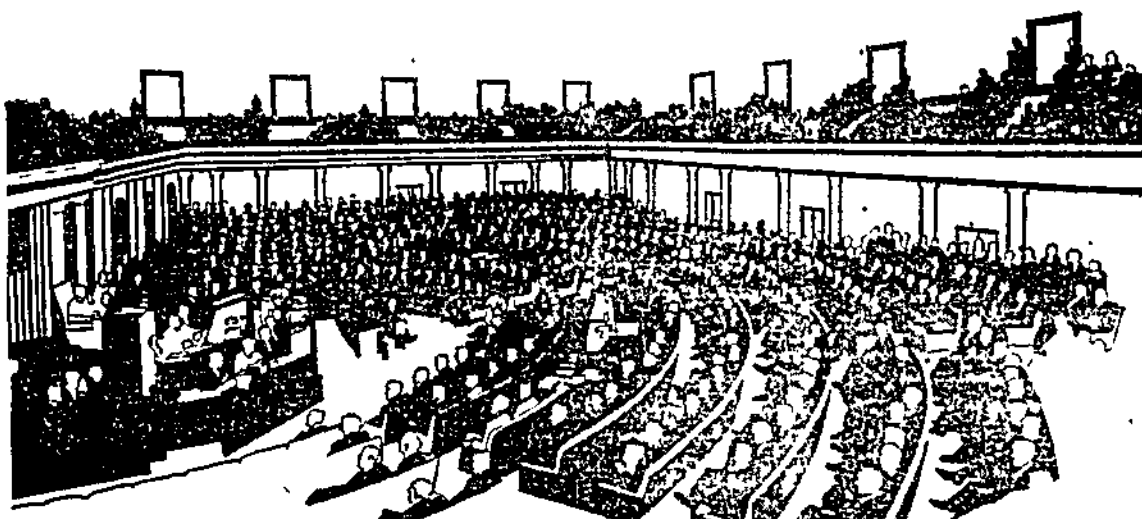

The Santa mail started early in July, Cooper said, but many of the letters will go unheeded and unanswered unless individuals and organizations "open their ears and their hearts to them."

Individuals and groups willing to become Santa's "helper" can do so by calling Cooper's office at 353-2151 or 353-2152 or by writing him at 433 W. Van Buren St., Chicago 60607.

Harper College board to meet public Dec. 9

Residents of Arlington Heights will have a chance to question the members of the Harper College Board of Trustees Monday, Dec. 9, when the board holds an information meeting in the village.

The board will send invitations to the meeting to leaders of various citizens groups, said Pat Lewis, director of college relations. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

NEW YORK — NBC's blockbuster film "The Godfather" Part 2 was the top program last week, but CBS, backed by its comedies, swept the next 10 shows and kept its first-place spot in the ratings for the 1974-75 season.

The ratings for the week ended Sunday, according to the A. C. Nielsen survey released Tuesday, were: CBS 21.4; NBC 20.7, and ABC 15.6. The seasonal averages for the American TV Championship to date are: CBS 20.5; NBC 20.2, and ABC 15.8.

The top 10 shows were:

1. NBC, "The Godfather."
2. CBS, "All in the Family."
3. CBS, special, "Charley Brown."
4. CBS, special, "Happy Anniversary."
5. CBS, "The Waltons."
6. CBS, "M*A*S*H."
7. CBS, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."
8. CBS, "The Bob Newhart Show."
9. CBS, "Good Times."
10. CBS, "Kojak."

Although CBS retained the No. 1 position for the season, a spot it has held for the last 18 years, some TV analysts expected "The Godfather" to vault NBC into first place.

HOWEVER, THE RATINGS the Paramount film received Monday night were offset by the poor performance of TV remake of "Great Expectations," which gave Friday night to CBS. "Expectations" was the 44th show last week. NBC usually takes Friday with "Sanford and Son," "Chico and the Man," and "Rockford Files."

Television in review

by Frank S. Swertlow

NBC also had another weak night Thursday and lost points Sunday to CBS' "Kojak" and "Mannix."

Nevertheless, NBC is expected to keep the rating game a two-horse race for the remainder of this season. Marvin Antonowsky, NBC vice president for program administration, said if his network can bolster its Thursday night ratings, NBC will pull closer and closer to CBS.

WHAT HAS BEEN becoming more and more evident for the first part of this season is that CBS' basic lineup is stronger than NBC's, especially with the murderer's row of comedies on Saturday and Monday nights. NBC, however, introduced more shows this year and seems to have fared better in that department while CBS dropped a higher percentage of its new product.

Even if NBC fails to unseat CBS, the network probably stands to make more money this year. It is in a better position to charge higher advertising rates for the remainder of this season and can charge more for the beginning of the 1975-76 year.

NBC ANNOUNCED it replaced last night's World Premiere Movie "Death Stalk" with "Punch and Jody" because: "Upon review of tonight's schedule, which begins with 'Winnie the Pooh,' NBC felt 'Punch and Jody' would be a more compatible program with the theme of the evening."

NOTES — The 1975 Entertainment Hall of Fame Awards will be telecast live from Los Angeles from 10 to midnight by NBC Feb. 22. Those 20th century creators and performers whose lifetime contributions to the lively arts have enriched the culture will be honored.

Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, whose odd stories have been turned into animation specials for CBS from time to time, will have his first story written specifically for television on the network this season. Four earlier specials, to be repeated, were adapted from Dr. Seuss books for children. The new one is "Dr. Seuss' The HooperBloo Highway," which deals with an imaginative thoroughfare down which new humans are sent to earth.

Tenants will soon get a new lease on life

by LEA TONKIN

A change in the traditionally lopsided balance between landlord protection and tenants' rights will be evident to many area apartment dwellers, the next time their lease comes up for renewal.

Apartment managers throughout the Chicago metropolitan area will likely hand the tenant an entirely new lease that's described by its authors as the fairest lease ever written.

Depending on the acceptance of the new lease form by tenants rights supporters, it may serve as a standard in the property management industry or a steppingstone to state legislation spelling out landlord-tenant obligations.

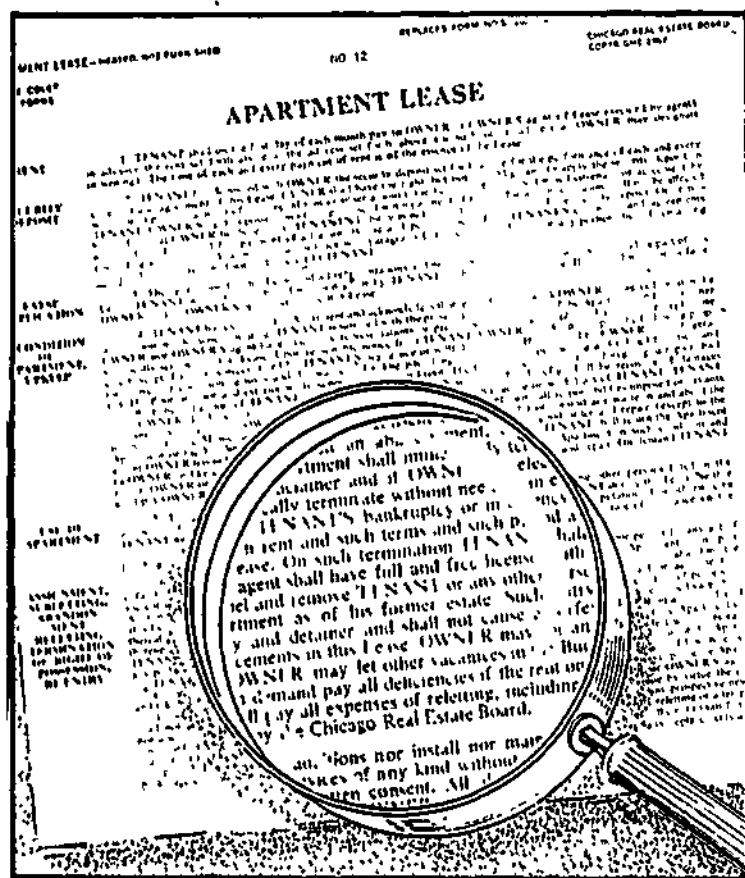

Launched by the Chicago Real Estate Board as a reform in the landlord-tenant relationship, the new Form 15 lease represents a major break with previous forms. The standard lease form is widely used in Chicago area suburbs and is used for approximately 30 per cent of the apartment leases arrangements in Chicago.

"PERHAPS THE FIRST reaction to this new lease form will be that it is incredibly long," said board president Leo J. Sheridan, Jr. "It is indeed almost twice the length of the previous Chicago Real Estate Board leases, which Form No. 15 replaces."

What the new lease does accomplish, said Sheridan is disclosure. "A good lease form, by clearly, thoroughly and fairly setting forth each party's rights and obligations is designed to give each party confidence that his goals will be respected by the other."

TENANTS WILL NOTICE the following revisions and provisions of the new lease form:

- The elimination of the confession of judgment clause. The clause had waived the tenant's legal rights in disputes with the landlord.
- The elimination of the provision that the tenant waives service of notice of termination of the lease. The tenant must be given notice of the termination if the lease is in default.
- Standards of maintenance are outlined in the lease. The landlord's obligation is stated for plumbing, water, heating, appliances and the maintenance of the building.

- The tenant's obligation in maintaining the apartment, appliances and building are spelled out. The tenant is held responsible for acts of persons who come or enter an apartment building with his permission.
- A more specific definition of abandonment is provided. Sheridan said the old lease form was criticized because a two or three week vacation could have been defined as abandonment.

- Subletting provisions are included. In the event of a tenant's death, the lease provides that the lease may be generally terminated by his survivors.
- A provision allows a tenant to terminate the lease with 30 days' notice if the landlord fails to live up to his responsibilities.
- A late charge provision calls for a $5 added charge for rent mailed in after the fifth day of the month, and $10 if mailed in after the tenth.
- The lease prohibits rent withholding by tenants. "Rent withholding works against the public policy of encouraging the maintenance of decent dwelling units," Sheridan said.

• The landlord must give 30-days' notice if he decides to terminate the lease because of the tenants' false statements on the application.

• The security deposit is not the last month's rent. It can be used to cure a tenant's default or damages. The landlord must otherwise return the deposit with any interest required by law within 30 days of the end of the lease.

THE NEW LEASE FORM is the result of two years' work by the board's property management council. Among the authors of the new form are William Lyman, of Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance Corp.; Harold Rider, President of Realty & Mortgage Co.; and William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. Frank Winter of Kirland & Ellis served as consultant.

"All of this is a balancing act. That's one of the reasons why the lease is so long," Lyman said. It's not a perfect document, he said, "but it's the fairest negotiated with the tenant in the history of real estate." The lease offers a clear statement of responsibilities and a good alternative to landlord-tenant legislative proposals, he said.

Board members indicated widespread use of the new lease form throughout the Chicago metropolitan area can be expected. This was seconded by Chris Barich, of the Arlington Heights property management office of Baird & Warner, Inc. The Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago, an affiliate of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago, plans to consider the new lease form this week.

THERE IS SOME disagreement about the extent of reform offered in the new lease form. State Rep. Joseph Lundy, D-Evanston, said, "I'm encouraged that there is some movement in this area. I don't believe that the concessions by the real estate board have eliminated the need for legislation. If anything, they have pointed up the need for added legislation."

Lundy said he plans to file a revision version of a tenants' rights bill he introduced in the last session of the General Assembly. The bill is based on the model landlord-tenant bill drawn up by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. At least five states passed legislation based on the uniform code. The code provides obligations of the landlord and the tenant, and provides for rent withholding in prescribed circumstances. Lundy criticized added "objectionable provisions" of the new lease form, as the charges for late payment of rent.

"While the lease language has changed, and reads better from the tenant's standpoint, those improvements are in areas where the courts have already decided the issues," said Jeffrey Jahns of the Chicago Council of Lawyers housing committee. He said municipal codes already provide that apartment units should be maintained, and criticized late charge provisions as usurious.

"In sum, it looks nice. But on analysis, it shows no improvement," Jahns said. Provisions for rent withholding in limited circumstances would "not throw everything out of whack," he said. He favors passage of the model landlord-tenant bill as the answer to the tenant's rights question.

Rising apartment costs show 10% rent increase next year

When the heavy apartment leasing season gets in full swing next April, tenants will likely encounter a minimum 10 per cent boost in rental rates. That's the prediction of Chris Barich, branch manager for the Arlington Heights property management office of Baird & Warner, Inc.

THE RENT INCREASES will reflect a similar rise in operating costs, Barich said. Among the factors that have contributed to this upswing are fuel costs, cleaning supplies, roofing and other materials for routine maintenance and labor costs.

Meanwhile, the slump in new apartment construction is tightening up the supply of available rental units. Barich said that for apartment buildings in the Northwest suburbs, the average 5.9 per cent vacancy rate will drop within the next year. Vacancy rates are down to the 1.2 per cent range in certain areas of Chicago's Northwest side, he said.

"IN THIS AREA, a minimum price for a one bedroom apartment is $200 and up, and for a two bedroom unit, it's $240 to $250 and up," Barich said. Deluxe two bedroom apartments may cost the tenant $280 to $300 a month and more, he said. Efficiency apartments are in the $180 to $190 a month bracket.

APARTMENTS MOST in demand are those located near railroad and bus lines, Barich said. He added that an increased number of potential tenants seek the lower priced units that do not feature the use of a pool or other amenities. "With the economy turning downward, people are more willing to do without frills," he said. Barich's firm manages approximately 1,000 units in the Northwest suburbs.

Chris Barich

A spokesman for the Institute of Real Estate Management in Chicago said the high cost of construction financing will likely cause a continued slowdown in apartment construction. "This will tend to decrease vacancy and increase occupancy," he said. "Sometimes it has a tendency to raise rents." In addition to operating costs, other factors are location, the type of building and the age of the property.

The institute recently published its 1974 Income/Expense Analysis — Apartments, condominiums and Cooperatives based on data for 1973. The report indicates rents and income for multi-family dwellings rose on a national average of 3.4 per cent during 1973. The increase in income was offset by a 10.6 per cent jump in operating expenses. Consequently, a 5.5 per cent increase in net operating income was noted on a national basis in comparison with 1972 figures. The report said the trend will cause an increase in rents and the overall cost of living involved in multi-family housing.

Chamber of Commerce asks

What's your remedy for inflation?

"What's your remedy for inflation?" That's what the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce asked its 19,000 members in a recent survey of inflation's effect on their business and the state's economy.

The overwhelming majority of businessmen and women responded: "Slash government spending and balance the budget. Increase productivity. Ease regulations on business."

Some 47% of the executives surveyed expect business generally to slow down in 1975, while 36% believe it will stay about the same. A majority of the respondents also agreed that in 1975 the inflation rate will either decrease or stay about the same as now, and that we should adjust ourselves to a "slow-growth" economy. Most oppose wage and price controls.

Analysis of survey results will be sent to President Ford, Congress and the State Legislature, said Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the statewide business organization. Brann said the detailed survey was a followup to an earlier poll of members, which showed inflation to be the single most pressing problem facing businessmen and women today.

In addition to the recommendations about government spending, regulations and labor productivity, other typical comments included: "More tax incentives for capital expansion . . . Keep money tight . . . Reduce power of labor unions . . . Keep the banks solvent."

Survey results in detail:

• Deficit government spending was cited as the biggest single cause of inflation by a 54% majority.

• In 1975, the inflation rate will decrease, according to 39%, while 35% expect it to stay the same. 26% see an increase.

• Asked about "inflation's effect on your decision to launch new business ventures or expand existing operations," only 20% said they are making investments as planned.

Tight money hurts small businessman

The administrator of the Small Business Association said the economy needs more than a balanced federal budget, but a budget surplus for several years.

Thomas S. Kleppe said inflation, tight bank loans and government deficit spending are clouding the future of small businessmen. He said small business cannot remain competitively strong "if its sources of capital, materials and competent personnel are dominated and controlled by big corporations."

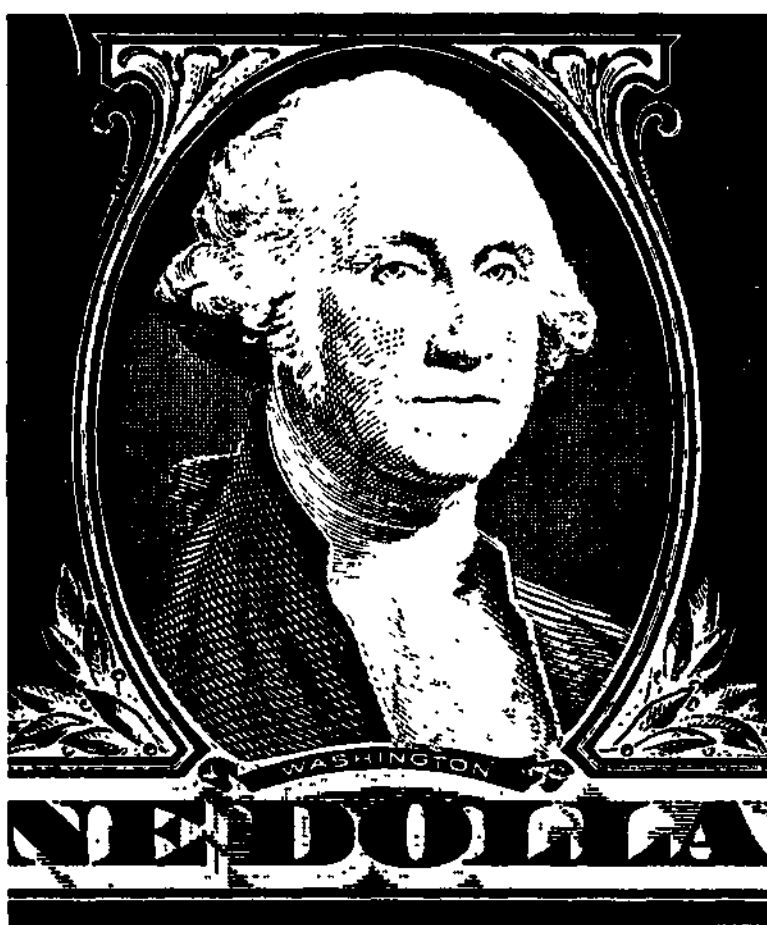

"In any inflationary period, the small businessman is hurt first and the hardest," said Kleppe. "Currently, skyrocketing costs of supplies, labor, fuel and equipment are squeezing him out of the competitive market. He's pinched for working capital, sources of supplies and credit extensions. He's further troubled by shortages of critical materials, high interest rates and the tight money situation."

Kleppe said it took 173 years from 1789 through 1962, for the nation to reach a $100 billion federal yearly budget outlay, but only nine years more to add another $100 billion. It now appeared it will take just four years to add still another figure of that size, since the fiscal 1975 expenditure estimate is $304 billion.

"It is my firm belief," said Kleppe, "that we cannot have a wide open money policy, if the economy of the United States is to improve. The only possible way we can lick inflation is by coordinating federal spending. I would like to see the government bite the bullet and take positive action to not only balance the budget, but to create a surplus for several years."

"This money budget surplus could then be leveraged for business expansion and to create new jobs, which would in turn inject new life into the economy and make it grow," Kleppe said.

Kleppe addressed the National Convention of the Printing Industries of America.

Rising costs cause inflation

The vast majority view of businessmen see "rising costs of all kinds" as the "greatest pressure" created by inflation.

We should adjust ourselves to a slow-growth economy.

One answer to present inflationary pressures is an expansion of plant capacity.

Inflation will have a detrimental effect on state and local governmental revenues.

We need additional tax incentives for capital investment, energy conservation and environmental improvement.

The present high interest rates are in part the result of a policy to fight inflationary pressures, thus the government should keep money tight until inflation is brought under control even if interest rates remain high and money remains hard to get.

If inflation has not begun to taper-off by the end of 1975 the government should reimpose wage and price controls.

Trade restrictions will help reduce the impact of inflation because when we ship our products overseas the profits go with the products.

The president should have the authority to adjust tax rates within specified limits, thus fine-tuning the economy.

In view of the current inflation rate, I believe cost pressures will cause state government expenditures to outpace revenue.

Do you believe the federal government has the necessary powers to bring inflation under control?

Do you think the federal government has the resolve and determination to bring inflation under control?

Schaumburg moved into first place as a housing leader in the Chicago metropolitan area in the Bell Federal Savings Survey of New Building for October.

The municipality reported permits issued for construction of 655 homes and 512 multi-family units for the first 10 months of the year. Mount Prospect ranks second in the report with permits for 76 homes and 1,039 multi-family units during the same month in 1973, the Bell report said. The number of housing units issued permits during October reached 2,136 compared to 2,956 permits the same month in 1973.

Construction in the six county Chicago metropolitan area during October declined 28 per cent from figures reported for same period.

Single family home permits decreased 23 per cent, from 1,459 to 1,116 units in October compared to figures a year earlier. Permits for multi-family units declined 32 per cent from 1,497 to 1,020 units.

The combined total of permits issued for single family and apartment units in the first 10 months of 1974 show a 49 per cent decrease compared to 1973 figures, reaching 19,744 permits compared to 38,855 in 1973.

Apartment renters wait

Midwest apartment renters wanting to own their homes will wait out the present tight money and high inflationary trend before they make the big move, a mortgage specialist predicted.

Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies Inc., Philadelphia-based national real estate financing firm, said a survey of renters in urban areas of a nine-state region shows more than 34 per cent of them classify themselves as potential home buyers.

"But with tight mortgage money and rising prices, only a handful are considering purchasing a house within the immediate future."

The survey covered Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

"The single crowd prefers in-or near-to-the-city living," Dennison said, "because of the proximity to work and diverse entertainment facilities which many of them find appealing."

Dennison said some of the stop-gap measures adopted by urban area dwellers as they adjust to the inflationary spiral include:

- Portable decorating, in which the key is to furnish using accessories that can be easily moved to a future home.
 - Hanging colorful or otherwise attractive rugs to disguise a dull wall.
 - Wise use of plants and their wide range of colors and sizes and shapes.
 - Home entertainment, which usually runs less expensive than "a night on the town."
- Dennison would not predict when mortgage money would become more readily available, but he said Midwestern renters prove they are amazingly adaptable in their apartment style living.

Small Town U.S.A. on rise

Small Town U.S.A. is on the rise. So reports the real estate arm of Esmark, Inc., Chicago, a diversified company with additional major interests in foods, chemicals, energy and financial services.

Esmark notes that the number of small towns and cities in the United States increased from 1,767 in 1960 to 2,143 in 1970 — an increase of about 21 per cent. Today, in 1974, the number of small cities stands at 2,340 — up more than nine per cent in the last four years. By 1980, that number could well reach 2,650.

The company points out that the fastest growing towns and cities throughout the nation are those with populations between 10,000 and 100,000.

"While the percentages of population in rural and large metropolitan areas have declined in recent years, smaller cities have been booming.

"Today, approximately three-fourths of our people have opted for urban living," Esmark observes, "and more than half of those urban dwellers have chosen the smaller city as a way of life."

The report gives some reasons for the new small town boom:

They are generally diversified and economically sound communities offering a variety of housing preferences and a broad range of recreational facilities — "a little something for just about everyone."

Taxes and the cost of living are generally lower here than in the larger metropolitan centers. Housing is usually lower-priced, and the average per-person costs can be as much as half that of a large metro area.

There is often, in a smaller city, a greater sense of community and more involvement. "Studies illustrate that citizen participation in local government is lesser in large metropolitan centers — small town residents believe their local governments are more responsive to their needs."

Small cities can combine the best of both worlds — urban advantages coupled with a rural-oriented flavor. "The growth of small town America," Esmark points out, "has created a whole new spectrum of demands and challenges. This population increase has created a growing demand for more housing, schools, churches, shopping centers and, in some cases, office buildings."

"In recent years, smaller cities have experienced a spurt in commercial development as well. In some cases, industries moved away from the metro centers in order to expand.

"In other instances, businesses discovered that their employees were becoming increasingly reluctant to commute long distances into downtown areas. So the firms simply relocated, moving to where their employees resided."

Does this mean the demise of the big city?

"Definitely not — but by decade's end there will be a dramatic increase in the numbers of people claiming to live in Small Town U.S.A.," the Esmark report concludes.

Edward Smith elected director

M. Edward Smith, Smith Pipenhagen Realtors, Arlington Heights, was elected a director of the National Association of Realtors at the Association's annual convention in Las Vegas.

Smith was elected for a three-year term. As a director, he will assist in policy making for the Association, and in deciding the thrust of Realtors programs for the coming years.

The National Association of Realtors has more than 600,000 members in 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

$10 million boost announced

A $10 million boost for the housing industry here has been announced by Robert W. Fish, president of the Illinois Division of Kaufman and Broad, Inc. Fish said $10 million in Federal Home Loan Bank Funds has been obtained through Kaufman & Broad's affiliate, International Mortgage Company, and will be immediately available to K&B purchasers at 8 1/4 per cent interest.

Fish said the funds will provide financing for approximately 300 new homes and added that the government-guaranteed loans will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. The funding will come through International Mortgage Company.

The K&B official said his firm recognized the need for substantial mortgage funds in the Greater Chicago area. "We have been experiencing a slight pickup in sales during the Fall," he stated. "This $10 million boost should put us in high gear," he added.

Fish, a corporate vice president as well as division president, said he has been optimistic about the building industry turning around by the middle of 1975. "We now feel that this additional program will help turn it around earlier," he commented.

Kaufman and Broad is erecting single family houses, town homes and condominiums at several locations in the Greater Chicago area at Barrington Square, Hoffman Estates; Pine Meadow, Quail Run, Stone Mill and Meadowbrook, all at Bollingbrook and Woodgate at Montross.

The Illinois Division of the nation's largest multi-national housing producer has continued an aggressive sales and building program during the "doldrum" months in the construction industry. The division is readying new models for early winter showing.

Matanky syndicates apartments

A 240-unit "French-flavored" apartment complex known as "Town Square Apartments" in Schaumburg has been syndicated by Eugene Matanky and Associates, Inc., 5301 N. Broadway, Chicago, and will now be managed by the firm.

The twin five-story buildings at 220 and 300 S. Roselle Road were built by Morwell Construction in two stages. The first building went up in 1970 and the second in 1971.

Winkelhake joins Quinlan & Tyson

Alan Winkelhake has joined Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors, as a real estate sales representative in the firm's Palatine area office.

Alan Winkelhake

His appointment was announced by Robert Sturn, office sales manager.

Winkelhake, a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, has previous experience selling real estate in the northwest suburban area.

He is a graduate of Amundsen High School and served in the U.S. Marine Corps, attaining the rank of sergeant.

Winkelhake and his wife, Paulette, have two children, Andrew, three, and Sara, one. Residents of Palatine for the last three years, they live at 55 North Linden.

Matanky advised that despite the present credit crunch and fears of a recession the buildings were over subscribed in less than 15 days. "We are presently syndicating two other properties," Matanky said. "We see an upswing in real estate coming in 1975 and so do our investors."

The Matanky firm with six offices throughout the north section of Chicago specializes in syndications and sales of large investment properties as well as homes and condominiums. The firm will celebrate its 20th anniversary this coming year.

Financing of the "Town Square Apartments" was handled by the original mortgagees with Arlington Federal, Avondale, Crawford and Elgin savings and loans participating.

The "Town Square" buildings are fireproof and soundproof, complete with mansard roofs and soft-tone face brick. The 90 one-bedroom and 150 two-bedroom apartments have ceramic baths and color-keyed kitchens with ample counter space. Some of the units have built-in dishwashers.

Each apartment features an entry foyer, individually controlled heating and air conditioning units and wall-to-wall carpeting. The two bedroom apartments have one-and-a-half bathrooms.

The two buildings are on a ten-acre site complete with swimming pool and bath house.

The paneled building entrances boast a quarry tile floor, while the walnut lobbies are adorned with walnut woods and red carpeting.

The Matanky organization plans to spend in excess of $500,000 to update and rehabilitate the properties under the supervision of two of Matanky's property managers, Lee Squires and John Condor. Two complete health-centers are on the drawing boards of architect Richard Newman with saunas, whirlpools and exercise rooms for all tenants in each building. In addition a huge recreation room will be built on the lower level of each building. Lobbies are being redecorated and new models set up by Fred Fell of Interiors, Inc.

Wood promoted to vice president

Robert Wood has been promoted to vice president of the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Co. The announcement was made by Robert L. Nelson, president of the company.

Robert Wood

Robert "Bob" Wood will continue to function as sales manager of the Nelson Palatine sales office and will also become involved in total corporate planning, sales administration and marketing.

Wood is a real estate broker and has had considerable experience in many major new home developments in the northwest suburbs before joining the Nelson organization in 1970. He is a member of the Nelson and MAP Million Dollar Sales Club and resides with his family in Barrington.

Janeth Mandell joins Home Town

Pat Madl, manager of Home Town Real Estate in Hoffman Estates recently welcomed Janeth Mandell to the staff as a sales associate.

Jan has been a resident of the north and northwest suburbs for the past 17 years. She attended the University of Iowa where she majored in business.

Before entering the real estate profession, Jan worked for Allstate Insurance Company in Skokie, was an Avon representative, a Shaklee distributor and an employee of Schaumburg Airport. Jan presently resides in Schaumburg with her husband, Richard and their 4 1/2-year-old son, Tommy.

Home Town has five offices in the M.A.P. Multiple Listing area and is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Countryside provides child care facilities

Modern housing design, recreation facilities, moderate prices and a care-free, convenient lifestyle have exerted a strong appeal to young families at countryside, the L. F. Draper and Associates planned unit development in Chicago's northwest suburb of Palatine.

Young families have small children, so the developers decided early in the planning stages for the 100-acre community to provide for their care, along with facilities for adults. These include an enclosed mall shopping center, garden restaurant and an assortment of swimming pools and tennis courts. Housing comprises both rental apartments and condominiums, which just have gone on sale in the $25,500-$39,500 range.

"The objective at Countryside has been to provide total community facilities, within walking distance of residents' homes," said John Smolenski, vice president of sales and marketing. "It seemed logical to include child care."

Result is Kid's Country, a 3,600-square-foot building specifically designed for the needs of pre-school children, 175 of whom are enrolled in morning and afternoon periods, for ages three to five, and afternoon kindergarten sessions.

The facility offers more than merely a place for a mother to leave a child for part of a day, according to Ms. B. J. Anderson, president of Kid's Country, Ltd., a non-profit organization that leases the building and surrounding fenced play area from the developers.

"Our philosophy is to assist the child in developing — in each child's own special way, and to enhance his learning opportunities," said Ms. Anderson. "An open classroom approach is used, enabling children to choose individual activities."

"A teacher/pupil ratio of one to eight enables our teachers to interact and expand the scope of activity of each individual child when he or she is ready, whether it's mathematics, art, music, dramatics, muscular activity or even reading. Along with individual pursuits, group activity also is encouraged."

Architect Paul Magliere designed Kid's Country to be in architectural harmony with the rest of Countryside, with an exterior of the same dark brick and stained timber used in both housing and commercial structures. Inside, he relied on Ms. Anderson's specifications, to create two separate open classrooms, built, finished and furnished to a child's scale. Large windows bring the outside in.

"We've tried to create an environment to which children not only can relate, but in which they feel free to explore," Ms. Anderson said.

Kid's Country was begun in September, 1972, with 11 children. State-licensed as a pre-school day-care center, Kid's Country actually operates with two half-day sessions, 8:45-11:30 a.m. and 12:45-3:30 p.m. for three- to five-year-olds, along with an afternoon kindergarten. This schedule is in operation, September through June.

A summer program, for children three through six, utilizes the Countryside Bath and Tennis Club for morning swimming classes.

Kid's Country was designed to serve the residents of the Countryside community, as well as surrounding suburbs, Ms. Anderson reported.

Condominium apartment homes, offering one or two bedrooms, plus a patio or private balcony, make up the final phase of Countryside construction, Smolenski said. Conventional financing is available for qualified buyers. And, as a means of offering early occupancy, the Draper organization has arranged to have buyers who have signed purchase agreements and obtained mortgage commitments to move into their new homes after making earnest money deposits.

"Until purchase transactions close," Smolenski pointed out, "buyers will make monthly payments equivalent to rent, all of which except for maintenance assessments will be added to deposits in order to build up down payments. During this pre-closing period, the developer will pay real estate taxes."

Countryside is located on the Northwest Hwy. (U.S. 14), just west of Quentin Road, about two miles west of the Palatine business district. Furnished condominium models, on Sterling Drive 6/10 of a mile north of the main entrance on Northwest Hwy., are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

ONE OF TWO open classrooms in Kid's Country shows furnishings scaled to child size. Pets, projects and playthings are on easy-to-reach tables and shelves. White line on carpeted floor, foreground, is part of a circle inside which children sit surrounding a teacher, in storytelling sessions.

Two local realtors win advertising awards

Kunkel & Co., Des Plaines, has won a first place award for Commercial and Investment Brochures and an honorable mention for Institutional Advertising Brochures, and Gladstone Realtors, Elk Grove Village, has won honorable mention for Commercial and Investment Brochures and Institutional Advertising in the 30th Annual Advertising Awards Contest sponsored by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

The contest undertakes the gigantic task of sorting out and recognizing quality advertising efforts from entries drawn from more than 300,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates in the United States and Canada. Intended to promote professionalism in the real estate field, winning entries in 13 categories were chosen — from a total of more than 1,100 entries submitted — on the basis of excellence of design, effectiveness of approach and successful presentation of the corporate image. Contest judges included experts in the fields of advertising, architecture and graphic arts. The categories included: Billboards, Classified Advertising, Commercial and Investment Brochures, Display Classified Advertising, Institutional Advertising Brochures, Letterheads-Business Cards-Envelopes, Office Interiors, Office Exteriors, Radio Advertising, Residential Brochures and Signs and Television Advertising. Entries were displayed over 1,800 square feet of exhibit space in the NIREB Exhibition Booth at the 67th Annual Convention of the National Association of Realtors.

NIREB, with a membership of more than 33,000 brokers and sales associates, is the largest educational affiliate of the National Association and awards the designations C.C.I.M. and C.R.E. to proven professionals in the fields of commercial investment and residential real estate.

2 Continental men attend convention

During the six day convention the more than 16,000 realtors listened to such noted speakers as Dr. Joyce Brothers (psychologist-columnist), Dr. Anthony Downs (chairman of the board, Real Estate Research Corporation), Hon. James T. Lynn (secretary, U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development), Governor Mike O'Callaghan of Nevada and Congressman F. St. Germain of Rhode Island.

The convention was adjourned following the highlighted speech by President Ford on Thursday.

Look For Our Unique Signs — They'll Be Selling Lots Of Homes In The Northwest Suburbs!

New townhomes provide total living

The first families have started moving in at Knollwood, in northwest suburban Lake Zurich, where a total of 450 townhouse condominiums and apartment condominiums are being built in a community that offers various amenities for total living.

Among the first group of families settling at Knollwood is a family that recently came from Italy and offers some interesting observations on living in Italy as compared to communities such as Knollwood.

Simon and Patricia Castellano reside at 1161 Geneva Lane with their three daughters, Jennifer, 9; Lisa, 7 and Simonetta, 1. The Castellanos were house-hunting for about two years before they chose a 4-bedroom townhome at Knollwood.

According to Castellano, on comparing residential living here and in Italy, "There is no such thing as total living in Italy such as we enjoy at Knollwood. The average family just could not afford it. It would cost about $100,000 there to live like this," he observed.

"The open country is great here, and so spacious. We have room to spread out yet it's close to the train and the expressways. In the winter the girls can skate and slide right here on the grounds. I might even buy a snowmobile. It's a great place for bicycling now, too. And in the morning I can fish even before I go to work if I want to. I just don't like congested areas and that's one of the big reasons why we like Knollwood," Castellano points out.

He adds, "I was living in a condo in Milan. They don't have anything to offer on the grounds. We lived in a 3-bedroom condo. Then we came here and looked and looked. There are very few brick townhouses. Then we saw Knollwood. It has the impression of more strength, and then there's less maintenance. You never have to paint."

"The maintenance factor is what really sold me. I used to come home and have to shovel snow in the winter. It was really upsetting. The car would get stuck in the driveway and it was all very difficult. Now, with maintenance-free living I know a professional staff will take care of all this for me."

Two, three and four bedroom townhomes are available priced from $34,500. In addition, one two and three bedroom apartment condominiums are priced from $26,900.

On the premises residents enjoy a full range of recreational opportunities. A clubhouse includes lounge with fireplace; game room; card room, billiards and ping pong. A complete kitchen and men's and women's saunas round out the clubhouse. Private tennis courts, outdoor pool and two lakes on the grounds are also provided. Knollwood is also close to riding, hunting, golf courses, skiing, and bowling lanes.

One of the units receiving enthusiastic response from the public is the Wimbledon, the townhouse chosen by the Castellanos. This is a 4 bedroom, 2½ bath design with over 1800 feet of living space plus the basement which is readily convertible into a finished recreation room. It comes complete with attached garage; carpeting; full basement; air conditioning and appliances.

The Wimbledon has a convenient entry foyer and guest closet; it leads into a formal living room with patio doors to the outside. The adjoining dining room is a full 11'x13' and ample for formal dinner parties. The country kitchen, 23'x9'2" is ideal for casual entertaining. Appliances are provided, including a continuous-clean oven and range; range hood; dishwasher; disposer; refrigerator and double sink. The separate adjoining breakfast room has an outside view of the rolling countryside. A convenient broom closet is also included in this design, along with a powder room on the main level.

The upper level of the Wimbledon has four bedrooms. The master bedroom suite has many features that are appealing. It has a dressing room with vanity; its own walk-in closets and a private ceramic bath with shower, the second, third and fourth bedrooms are ideally suited to the larger family and have generous storage space. A second ceramic bath also serves the other bedrooms. The Wimbledon is priced at $50,500.

Located in the village of Lake Zurich, Knollwood is close to all conveniences and just nine minutes to Chicago North Western commuter trains; near expressways and tollroads; schools; churches and shopping, with the new Hawthorn shopping center a few minutes away.

Knollwood is located on Honey Lake

General Telephone backs AT&T battle

Joining the opposition The announcement by American Telephone & Telegraph that it plans to fight the Justice Dept. charges of monopolizing telecommunications equipment and service in the nation is applauded by the General Telephone and Electronics Corp., parent firm of General Telephone Directory Co., Des Plaines.

The General Telephone companies represent the largest non-Bell telephone system in the nation, serving nearly 12 million telephones in portions of 33 states. Leslie H. Warner, chairman and chief executive officer of GTE said, "We are shocked and appalled that the Justice Dept. has decided to take this action against AT&T. If the Justice Dept. prevails in its attempt to break up AT&T, it will seriously undermine the high quality and efficient telephone service which has contributed so much to the growth and development of this country and is the envy of the rest of the world."

Warner criticized the timing of the legal action, and said it is unwarranted in view of the Federal Communications Commission investigation of relationships between AT&T, Bell system operating companies, Western Electric and Bell Laboratories.

The Justice Dept. suit calls for AT&T to divest itself of its Western Electric subsidiary and other properties to ensure competition. Several WE facilities are located in the Chicago metropolitan area, including a plant in Rolling Meadows.

The suit gained the approval of the Independent Voters of Illinois. The group has charged in previous Illinois Bell Telephone Co. rate case proceedings before the Illinois Commerce Commission that the affiliation between the Bell and WE enables the utility to inflate service charges paid by customers.

Medalist declares dividend

The board of directors of Medalist Industries declared a 10 per cent stock dividend to stockholders of record Dec. 20. The board also approved a cash dividend of 10 cents payable Jan. 15, 1975 to stockholders of record Dec. 20. The cash dividend will be paid on the present shares and on added shares from the stock dividend. Medalist All-American facilities are in Wheeling.

Young Engineers to meet

The 22nd annual Young Engineers Forum, sponsored by the Western Society of Engineers, will be held at the Chicago Builders Club starting Tuesday for a series of six dinner meetings. Area participants may obtain additional information from the society offices at 314 S. Federal St., Chicago.

Bell exec cites inflation

The serious effect of inflation and regulatory lag are problems confronting all utilities, Illinois Bell Telephone Co.'s general solicitor, Gordon Winks, said at a recent Illinois Commerce Commission hearing. Oral arguments before the commission have completed the record on the telephone company's proposed cost and efficiency adjustment plan. The commission must decide by Feb. 25, 1975 whether to grant the proposed rate adjustment plan.

New bank's deposits rise

Total deposits at the new Suburban National Bank of Woodfield in Schaumburg increased by 12 per cent in the past quarter, bank president William Leeson reported. On Sept. 30, total deposits reached $1,363,000, compared with deposits of $1,241,000 reported at midyear.

Total assets at the bank, which opened for business in January, increased from $2,245,000 at midyear to $2,416,000 on Sept. 30, a 7 per cent increase. Loan activity at the institution increased from $713,000 in loans outstanding to $1.5 million in the same period.

Hillary to speak

Sir Edmund Percival Hillary, a mountaineer who in 1953 was the first person to scale Mount Everest, will speak at the 12th Annual Business Leaders Dinner of the Protestant Foundation of Greater Chicago. The Dec. 4 dinner will be held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago, said John Volkner of Palatine, a vice chairman of the dinner.

S&L observes first year

First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago's Mount Prospect branch representatives are celebrating the institution's first anniversary through Saturday. Refreshments will be served to customers at the outlet, said George Nicolai, manager of the branch. Total savings growth topped $18 million in the past year at the branch office.

AM Puerto Rico plan set

Addressograph Multigraph's sales operations in Puerto Rico will be administered by the corporation's Mount Prospect-based Multigraphics Division. Edwin C. Brumling, vice president and general manager of the division, said Puerto Rican operations were formerly administered by AM's international division in Brussels, Belgium.

New pollution-control system

New pollution-control system was recently introduced by ARI International, a division of Air Resources Inc., Palatine. The Econ-Absorber system provides control of gaseous air pollutants. The result of four years of joint development efforts by Harshaw Chemical Co. of Cleveland, Ohio and Air Resources Inc., the system will be marketed by the newly formed ARI International Division of Air Resources Inc. and Feist-Incon GmbH of Hardsheim, West Germany.

Evelyn Hines

Evelyn Hines hits $2 million for second time

Evelyn Hines, sales associate with Century 21 - Arlington Realty, has reached the two million dollar figure in home sales for the second year in a row. The announcement was made by Herb Carl for Century 21 - Arlington Realty.

This represents the ninth consecutive year Mrs. Hines has qualified for the Million Dollar Sales Club and the second year as a two Million Dollar Club member. She is also an honorary lifetime member of the Illinois Realtors Million Dollar Club and has the highest sales volume of any of the 40 Sales Associates with Century 21 - Arlington Realty.

Mrs. Hines is associated with the firm's North Arlington Heights office at 550 W. Northwest Hwy.

Arlington Realty will celebrate its 25th year in February 1975. The firm has four offices in the northwest suburban area and recently joined the network of Century 21, the world's largest real estate organization. Century 21 has 53 offices in the Chicago area and 950 offices across the country. Because each office is independently owned, their slogan is "We're national, but we're neighborly."

Village On The Lake offers plan

A new home financing plan which enables qualified buyers to make a $990 down payment on a new condominium home selling from $26,290 to $43,290 has been announced by United Development Company for its Village on the Lake development in northwest suburban Elk Grove Village.

Robert Frommer, president of United, said that 25-year 9.4 per cent mortgages with the $990 down payment are available immediately for all one-, two-, and three-bedroom condominium units at Village on the Lake.

"There are no closing costs or points to be paid by the buyer in this unusual program," he said. The financing was arranged by United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co., which itself is a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty, the nation's largest diversified financial organization.

Frommer noted that the $990 down payment means, for example, that the buyer of a two-bedroom condominium home priced at $34,990 will be paying only 2.8 per cent down.

The new program is aimed at buyers who can afford the monthly payments but are not able to make larger down payments necessary in the current mortgage market.

"There are many people today with good incomes who have put their savings into high-yielding securities like Treasury bills or who have money invested in stocks or bonds which they don't want to liquidate at today's depressed prices. They can easily make the monthly mortgage payments, which would be $263.21 principal and interest for the 2-bedroom unit. One- and three-bedroom units are also available under the $990 down-payment program.

For buyers who can afford a higher down payment but want lower monthly payments, United Development Company is still offering 7-7/8 per cent, 25-year mortgages with a 5 per cent down payment. This plan will continue to be offered as long as funds last.

Frommer declared that both financing plans are substantially more attractive than the conventional 9.4 per cent interest loans plus 2 to 5 points with down payments in the 20 to 40 per cent range that prevail today, where they are available.

Village on the Lake is located on Blesterfield Rd. in Elk Grove Village. Take the Northwest Tollway to Arlington Heights Rd. and go south to Blesterfield. Go west two blocks to the model and information center, open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. Sunday.

Debtor can deal with that stack of bills

Suppose you're faced with a stack of bills — more than you can pay. Late payment charges, penalty assessments, and nasty dunning notices pile in along with the bills. Possibly creditors and collectors are calling for their money. Your paycheck may be in danger of being garnished. If you're considering asking for outside help, examine alternative costs for getting back on an even financial keel.

As an example, suppose you owe $5,000, and interest averages 1.5 per cent a month (18 per cent a year). Over three years, interest alone would amount to $1,507.50 without penalties. You would need to pay $180.70 each month for 36 months to pay back principal and finance charges. Individual creditors might not go along with such a plan or would add late payment and collection charges to increase the total. With outside help running interference, you could extend payment terms and reduce penalty charges.

THREE POTENTIAL sources of aid include commercial debt adjusters, the Consumer Credit Counseling Service and Chapter 13 of the Federal Bankruptcy System. These three routes assume you desire to pay off your debts at the lowest possible costs. Straight bankruptcy, where a portion of one's debts may be discharged, involves a different set of decisions.

Commercial debt adjusters advertise widely that they assist people in debt to pay off their creditors. But, they apportion 15 per cent of the money collected as their fee where regulated by states, and their success in satisfying creditors is marginal at best. Using the example figures, the adjuster's fee at 15 per cent of $5,000 amounts to $750. Added to the amount owed plus interest, the total amount to be paid off over three years totals $7,483.65. Divided equally over 36 months, regular payments would amount to $207.88 a month — more than $27 a month more than the base of principal plus interest.

Consumer Credit Counseling Service enjoys the active and cooperative support of the business community. Its counselors arrange extended pay plans, sometimes without late payment charges and other penalties but with continuing interest on most accounts. Their voluntary fees range from zero to $5 a month. At an average of $3 per month their support would increase monthly payments to $183.78 for 36 months.

Managing your family's money

by Merle E. Dowd

Chapter 13 of the Federal Bankruptcy System also is known as the wage earner's plan. Two major differences distinguish the Chapter XIII system from other efforts:

Chapter 13 functions as part of the federal court which enforces its operations. Other plans, including the CCCS and commercial debt adjusters, depend on the cooperation of creditors to go along with extended pay plans.

Continuing interest on unsecured debts and late charges stop during the operation of a confirmed Chapter 13 plan. Up to three years are available to stretch out payments. A filing fee of $15, about $250 for attorney's fees, and an 11 per cent administration fee offset cancellation of interest and disallowed claims, if any.

For the example figures, consider that $1,500 of the total $5,000 debt represents secured creditors, those holding a lien on a car or furniture, for example. Interest continues on secured debts unless the collateral is returned. Thus, total costs would amount to $482.25 for interest on secured debts, $15 for filing fee, $250 attorney's fee, and $550 court administration cost for a total of $1,297.25. Over 36 months, regular payments of $174.09 would clear the debt plus costs of $6,267.25.

SEVERAL FACTORS deserve further consideration in determining which route to go. If a person's debt load is in the $2,000 to $4,000 range, the CCCS would cost less than Chapter 13 due to court filing fee and attorney's fees.

However, if several small personal loans are included, finance charges could be far higher, as interest on the first $300 is at 3 per cent monthly, and over $500 the rate might drop to 1 per cent a month. If three loans of $500 each are involved, interest on the full $3,000 would increase to about $1,100. In such a case Chapter 13 will probably cost less.

TROPICAL PLANTS from Guatemala, Honduras and Hawaii are among the offerings available at Wheeling Nursery's new "Tropical Emporium" at 120 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling.

Tropical Emporium opens

"Tropical Emporium" is the name of the new 10,000 square foot addition at the Wheeling Nursery, 120 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The new greenhouse will offer tropical plants from the corners of the world ranging from 69 cent terrarium fare to $300 12-foot trees.

According to Al Solomon, manager of the nursery, the new section will specialize in personalized service — advice on fertilizing, spraying, repotting. "We will be available to give advice and diagnose plants at the nursery," he said.

In addition to the wide variety of plants, the Wheeling Nursery has a vast stock of pottery from Italy, Japan, Germany, Belgium and the United States. Ceramics, clay, wood and plastic comes in motifs as unique as sea captains' heads and old fashioned fire trucks to items as simple as wicker baskets and stand-by clay pots.

The nursery is open year-round from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. with 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. hours in the summer.

Thanksgiving...the American Heritage

Freedom and abundance are part of this hard-won heritage . . . ours as long as we are prepared to work for them and, if necessary, fight for them. Let us give thanks for what we have . . . to re-affirm our faith in freedom and our determination to preserve and cherish it, that is the true meaning of Thanksgiving. May it be a happy one for you and yours!

Russ Clyde

Clyde appointed sales manager

Russ Clyde has been appointed sales manager of the Schaumburg office of Rich Port, Realtor.

The announcement was made by Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, who said that Clyde would have complete responsibility for the sales and administrative operation of the Schaumburg office.

Caruso went on to say that Clyde's immediate goal is to expand the office and to handle the ever-growing needs of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area. He also will be involved in training existing sales personnel as well as recruiting and training of new personnel.

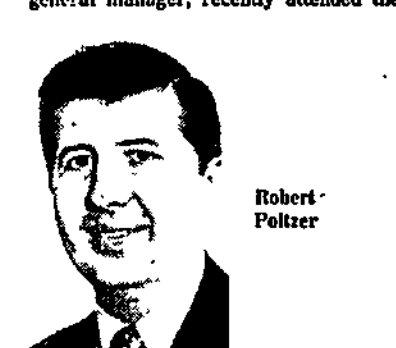

A 12 year real estate veteran, he attended Northwestern University, Evanston and Elmhurst College in Elmhurst. In addition, he attended the Illinois Realtors Institute, successfully completing the three stage study course, earning his GRI designation. The Institute is sponsored by the Illinois Association of Realtors.

An antique car buff, Clyde is a member of the International Model T Ford Club and the Model A Restorers Club. He's also a past president of the Model T Ford Club International and of the local midwest chapter.

The Schaumburg office of Rich Port, Realtor is located at 26 North Roselle Road.

2 Gladstone men attend conference

Vincent Bolger, partner in the firm of Gladstone, Realtors, and Bob Poltzer, general manager, recently attended the second annual Real Estate Training Directors Association Conference held at Tan-Tar-A, Lake of the Ozarks.

The two day conference included an analysis of effective training methods with particular emphasis on technique. A management consultant conducted this portion of the program, illustrating an effective method for training new associates called "Conference Concept" which differs from the standard classroom procedure. Discussions also included a critique of comprehensive existing training programs; an audio visual seminar featuring the latest technological advances and proper implementation of these tools in a sales training program; and a workshop on management training programs featuring assistant manager development as well as development of job descriptions.

Representatives from 28 real estate firms throughout the country attended the conference. Poltzer noted, "The exchange of ideas by the brokers in attendance was refreshing and many will be incorporated in our present real estate training procedures." He observed a highly professional standards of training among the realtors and believes that more programs of this type throughout the country raise the professional standards of the real estate business even higher.

Gladstone Realtors has offices in Franklin Park, Villa Park, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Berkeley and Westchester.

Holiday time is 'awards' time for Chicago sports

This is a day for family get-togethers. Sitting around the banquet table, relatives usually bow their heads as someone gives thanks for the many blessings that have come throughout the year.

After the feast, many Chicagoland families will watch the pro games on TV. They'll see Denver, Detroit, Washington and Dallas — all still contenders for the playoffs. And it should remind them that all they've got is a loser team — the Bears.

Chicagoans will probably enjoy the games, but only a fraction of their pleasure can match that of the fans of these four teams. Let's face it — it gets tiresome having to watch other fans deriving the complete enjoyment of backing winners.

You might say that this has become part of the sick sport of being a Chicago fan — watching the other guy have fun. The other part is trying to figure out how the Chicago team will blow the game, the series or the playoff or — if we're lucky — the championship.

If the giant family of professional teams this area has ever got together, they'd have to bow their heads in shame for the transgressions they've perpetrated against the people who make them fat cats — the paying customers. They should be thankful people still fork out money to see this collection of losers.

Philadelphia used to have a corner on the market of stumble bum teams. Now we've got this disgraceful distinction.

Chicago fans' heads have been bowed low by so many defeats over the years that most spectators have become stooped over.

Nevertheless, take heart, sports fans. I may have found a cure for stoop-litis. Let's pass on this humility we've had to bear when outsiders have scoffed at our hapless teams. Let's heap the blame where it totally belongs — on the pro clubs.

Since we can't be thankful for the lousy efforts they've given us over this past year, let's show them what we're going to do about it. The big trophies have escaped them for years, so let's hand them some awards that will remind them of that fact.

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

The awards have to be something special. Something that will stick in their minds for a while. Something that will let them know how we truly feel about their zero output.

And so in keeping with this festive turkey day, how about giving them each the "Bird" award?

I know that many fans have been giving out such honors symbolically for years. Now it's official. Think of it as a sports salute to their ineptitude.

Here are some most worthy "Bird" recipients:

• Abe Gibrin — for the way he's brought along his team. Says the rotund one of his 3-8 record, "I just can't figure it out!" We have, Abe. The only place you could make it as head coach would be with a team of Weight Watchers rejects.

• Bobby Douglass — for his regressing over nearly six pro seasons. Says the strongest, toughest, runningest quarterback (?) in the league, "This wasn't a lost season. You learn from any experience." So much for the fallacy that QBs need five years to develop. It might take him 10 just to learn what the phrase "consistent pass completions" means.

• Tom Orger — for getting our hopes up only to desert the team after one season. It just proves that you can't trust a wealthy guy who plays with Fire.

• Bill Frink — in hopes he'll lose his job with Channel 7 now that Virgil Carter can concentrate on becoming a fulltime TV announcer. With just a little training, Virgil will show up Frink. Just about anybody could do better than him.

• Billy Reay — for never winning the Stanley Cup in over a decade of trying. He should have been canned long ago when you consider all the Black Hawk talent he's had during that time.

• Keith Magnuson — for acting more like a hood than a hockey player on the ice. Being tough's one thing; being smart enough to avoid getting caught in silly fights is another. How many times has this hothead hurt the Hawks with costly penalties in crucial situations?

• Bob Love — for missing nearly one-fourth of the season because of selfishness. Had he been with the Bulls from the beginning, they'd have a commanding lead on the rest of the division.

• The Cougar team & Co. — for leading their fans to believe that last season's playoff showing made it worth buying season tickets for '74-'75. The Cougars are the worst in their division and holders of the second worst record in the league.

• Chuck Tanner & Roland Hemond — for their lack of leadership. Their excuses were justified in '73 when a hospital wing could have been filled by White Sox with injuries. Not so in '74.

• Richie Dick — Rich — Richard — Whatever Allen — for not staying retired. It seems that money means more than one's word, even for such a great player as Allen.

• Carlos May — for his all-out lack of hustle.

• Jim Marshall — for carrying on the tradition of being a zero Cubs' manager. But it's not totally his fault, he's just patterning himself after Whitey and Leo.

• Jose Cardenal — for being the biggest hotdog in the city since Joe Peplone left.

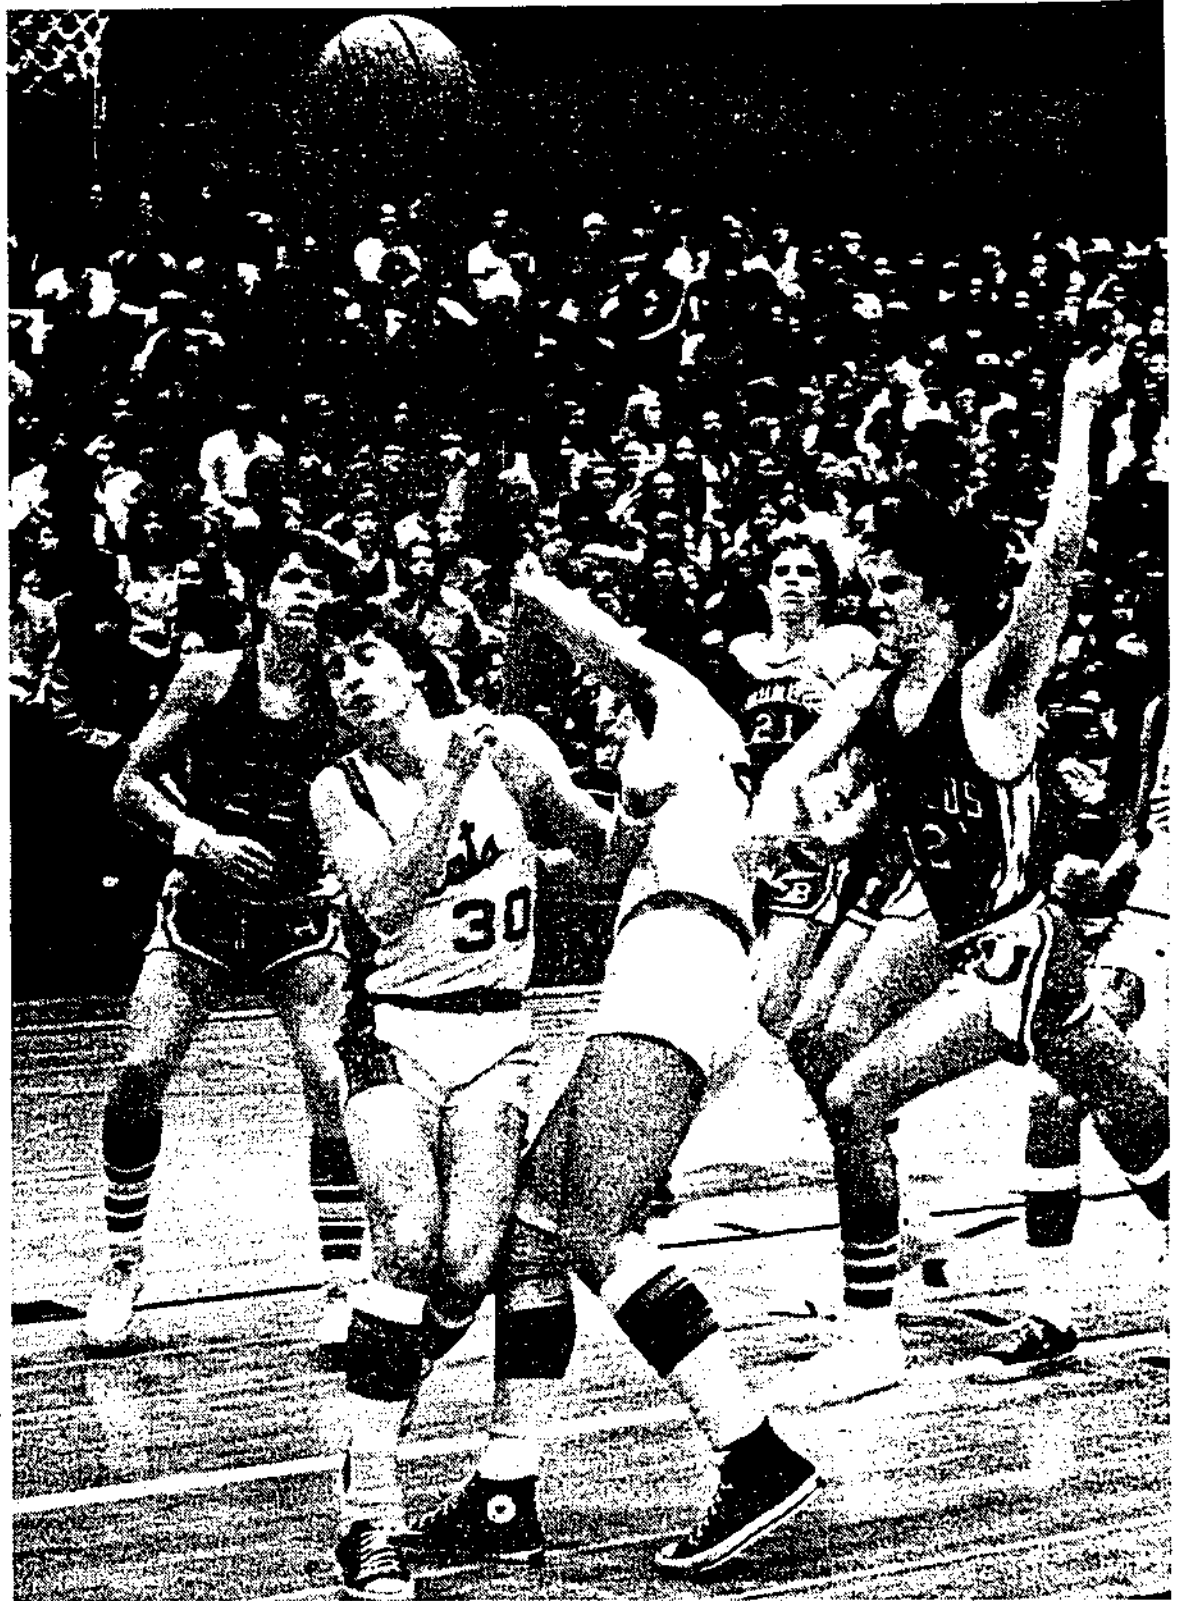

• Frank Pellico — for using the Cubs' organ to play a sacrilegious tune — J.C. Superstar — whenever Cardenal makes a move. The city's only superstar — love him or not — was Allen during the past three years.

• Jack Brickhouse — for every sickening saccharine sentence he's uttered when critical words should have been made of the Cubs' play.

Despite the frustrations this year has brought, I hope you enjoy this Thanksgiving. And if you eat so much of that stuffed bird that there's no room for dessert, you can spend the time with a little table game — finding other pros to give a "Bird" to.

Send your ideas to the Herald. Also send some money to help pay for these trophies. The design I have in mind is unique, but I doubt if any reputable company would manufacture it.

You fans will just have to make your own by hand and personally give them to those who deserve it the most.

Low-key approach leads to crown

What does it take to rule the gridiron?

A secret weapon maybe . . . or perhaps some fantastic strategy? A whole roster of extraordinary athletes possibly . . . or a super series of game plans?

So far only five grand prizes for prep football have been doled out in Illinois and the grandest of them all rests in a high school very close by. The community has been strong on sports for ages but until last week claimed baseball and speed skating as its long suits. Football was something to spell the kids between bike racing and hockey seasons.

What kind of team was it, then, that captured this charter edition of Class 5A football laurels? Well, most likely it was a group of very ordinary and normal young men. Sports-minded, true. Talented, yes. Well-coached and prepared, definitely.

But the insignia "S" worn by these youngsters stood for Spartans, not Supermen.

Glenbrook North won the 1974 state high school championship for big schools by turning back East St. Louis 19-13 in the windy, shrouded dusk surrounding Illinois State's football arena last Saturday.

Up until game time there were probably no more than a handful among the nearly 15,000 spectators who really felt this Northbrook-based group had a chance against the blazing speed . . . the sheer awesomeness of a downstate squad that had buried one of Chicago's finest only a week earlier.

The partisan Spartan fans were hopeful, of course. But even the majority of these had most likely been reduced to a state of wishful thinking by advance publicity, the more than 100 points rolled up by the Flyers in three previous games (GBN had scored 46 in the meantime) and of course, the mystique, the acknowledged psychological aspect of competing against an all-black team.

For all intents and purposes, East St. Louis wasn't completely black. They did list one white player on their 40-man roster. Moreover, they were subject to the frailties of human behavior in much the same way as each of Glenbrook's 11 previous opponents.

In so many words, it meant that the Spartans may have been two to five touchdown underdogs in the minds of any of the knowledgeable football fans present. But in their own hearts, Glenbrook was equal to the task.

Keith Reinhard
Staff Sportswriter

The game itself was beautiful. Beautiful in the fact that it was very evenly matched . . . to the point of going into overtime. That the balance of power . . . the momentum . . . shifted constantly; that there was the opportunity for tactics to play an important role; that the weather was more kindly than could be expected at this late date in the year; that the spectators were generally well-behaved under a situation that might have produced negative radial waves; that the officiating was outstanding by its inconspicuousness.

And it was finally beautiful for all those Glenbrook fans and so many others from around this area who did identify with them . . . because they won.

So it comes back down to the question, basically, of how: How did they beat the overwhelming odds?

"It would be a hard thing to pin down," answered Chuck Hansen, one of Spartan head coach Hal Samorian's long-time assistants. "Poise, pride, intelligence, humility, belief in one's self. You can throw out a lot of nice words . . . a lot of overused labels but I don't think there is a simple explanation . . . there never will be."

"Sure, we knew East St. Louis was greatly favored and probably deserved to be, based on statistics," he continued. "We knew they were big, strong and fast too, but we were also aware of some things that other people were overlooking."

For one, being the underdog wasn't necessarily a new experience. Evanston was favored to knock off the Spartans early in the playoffs. When that didn't occur East Leyden's speed and defense were expected to do the job.

And when that didn't happen and GBN finally came home, a powerful Willowbrook club was sure to handle them. By the time Normal loomed on the horizon, the dark horse role had become old hat.

"Obviously, we had played other big, quick teams before the finals but we felt that there was still something to spare," Hansen continued. "We had been pushed but not to our ultimate capacity. We had not been playing over our heads at any time. Because the players sincerely believed this and had done so all season long, they were able to go into that final game on no less than equal terms."

Beyond that Hansen found little else with which to make a magic formula. Samorian's team had no more than average size, good but not brilliant quickness, and with the notable exception of one 6-3, 195-pound two-way senior named Jack Moller — no genuine super stars.

"Our offense has actually been kinda struggling all season, in fact," Hansen admitted. "It's done a good job but we've sometimes expected more."

What GBN did do is mesh together extremely well as a unit, play absolutely devastating defense and contain enough of that elusive poise to shake off every adversity.

"The whole GBN program is low-key too and that may have been a factor," Hansen suggested. "There have been very few big halftime speeches by any of the staff and practice sessions are conducted usually with a minimum of over-excitement."

This stems from Samorian, who is an easy-going coach by nature. A true veteran of the game (he's been at GBN since 1958 and was at one time a Mid-Suburban League coach when his school helped form that conference back in 1963), "Sam" was praised by Hansen for his ability to keep the opposition off balance.

"Play-to-play, he's very conservative but I feel a lot of the success this year is due to his ability to come up with the great and unexpected call in crucial situations."

A most immediate example of this was a pair of completed passes in the championship contest — one for 21 yards to set up their first TD and the other a 50 yarder that forged the regulation deadlock: Both were second down calls.

Finally, Hansen provided a word or two about that one outstanding individual on the field: Jack Moller.

"He would tend to typify Sam's style since Jack is about as low pressure a type of athlete as you're going to meet. He's got a great sense of humor and he's also a top notch student but one of Moller's most important assets, and the reason that he's so well liked and respected, I guess, is that he's never developed a big head."

"The last few weeks he's received an awful lot of attention and acclaim and it's all rolled right off his back."

The other asset mentioned by Hansen was Moller's tremendously competitive disposition. "One of our coaches told another that Jack could probably play a full game of football in the morning and come back to contribute significantly in a basketball game at night. The other disagreed and said the only break he'd need between the two games was enough time to change uniforms."

Whatever the key, congratulations to you Glenbrook North, Hal Samorian and Jack Moller. And on behalf of a lot of people . . . thanks for the memories.

Maine East wins girls' gym meet

Maine East's 'A' team handled Glenbrook North in a recent gymnastics meet, 91.40 to 83.55.

The girls of head coach Betty Axelson swept the top two spots in each event en route to the victory. And, in two of the events, they finished 1-2-3. Melody Miller accounted for three firsts.

Here are the results:

Vaulting — Ellen Barrett was first (7.45), Chris Bartolucci was second (7.25) and Cindy DiVito was third (7.05).

Balance beam — Miller was first (7.8), Mary Winkel was second (7.45) and Karen Davis was third (7.4).

Uneven bars — Miller was first (8.1) and DiVito was second (7.85).

Floor exercise — Miller was first (8.1), DiVito was second (8.05) and Winkel was third (7.75).

Thanksgiving Eve basketball highlights

Area quintets land five holiday triumphs

A Herald Staff Report
Five area basketball teams could celebrate Wednesday night.
That was the end result of a busy night of Thanksgiving Eve activity.
Rolling Meadows, St. Viator, Maine West, Wheeling, and Buffalo Grove collected victories in the holiday hardwood scuffling.
Ten games made their way into the record book, but Hersey's 10 p.m. battle in the Glenbard West tourney was completed past the Herald deadline.
Here's the way the evening unfolded:

WARRIORS WIN IN OT
Maine West overcame a 14-point deficit against Forest View with just 3:20 remaining and walked out of the Falcon gym with a 78-73 triumph in overtime.
While Forest View managed just one point during the final three minutes of regulation play, Maine West poked away on Steve Zuccarini's free throw, two charity tosses by Paul Dick, an eight-footer by Zuccarini, a bank shot by Glen Heiden, Dick's layup and a pair of free throws by Bill Makuch that cut the margin to 69-66 with 1:11 left.
A pair of free throws by Heiden with :52 remaining sliced the lead to 69-68 and while Forest View's Mark Russo was cashing a lone free throw at :44, Warrior Dick broke free on a second-effort shot with seven seconds left to throw the game into overtime.
Norb Ploszaj opened the extra period by cashing a bonus free throw situation for Maine West and Zuccarini twisted for a layup to boost the Warriors on top, 74-76.

Makuch hammered home two more charity tosses for a 78-70 west advantage before Falcon Van McLeod and Makuch traded buckets over the last 20 seconds.
The game was tossup during the first half with neither team being able to take command. Forest View, behind McLeod's thefts and fast breaks, finally ran to the top, 61-47 after three quarters and upped the margin to 69-55 before the Warriors charged.
Dick and Heiden paced the Warriors in scoring with 21 and 20 points, respectively. Russo and McLeod shared Forest View's scoring parade with 22.

MUSTANGS CLIP FENTON
In the opening game of the Maine North Thanksgiving tourney Rolling Meadows defeated Fenton, 68-51, last night.
Two smooth points in the game for the Mustangs, once in the second quarter and again in the fourth, provided the gap they needed to beat the Bisons for the first time ever, losing in three previous attempts.
"The second quarter was our smoothest," explained Ken Arneson, Mustang coach. "We stuck with our offense and

St. Mary opens cage campaign

St. Mary's Buffalo Grove opened its basketball schedule against St. Raymond's Mount Prospect, but was unable to claim a victory.
The Bison bounced back the following week, however, when all three grades swept past St. Collette's in Rolling Meadows. Greg Bazany topped all eighth grade scorers with 24 points and Lou Bambali led the seventh graders with 15 points and 16 rebounds.
Last week against St. Emily's, in Mount Prospect, the eighth grade lost a tough one in overtime, 50-48. The seventh grade made a great comeback early in the fourth quarter with fast breaks, but was unable to beat their opponents. The sixth grade had a similar fate. Each team now has a 1-2 record. St. Mary's next outing is against St. James in Arlington Heights at Buffalo Grove High School gym on Dec. 1. First game starts at 12:30.

rolled on the pass instead of the dribble."
Arneson feels that his team's main problem right now is that they don't stick with the plans long enough to see if they work.
At 3:38 in the second quarter, the Mustangs led by two points, 22-20, right before they started to pull away. By the end of the half they had control, 36-25.
The closest the Bisons got in the second half was nine points. At the end of the final period the Mustangs again played their offense and ran up the score for their final 17-point margin.
The Mustangs came very close to their goal of scoring 65 while giving up only 50, but Arneson still isn't pleased with his team.
"We've got a long way to go. We have to move the ball better," said Arneson.
The Mustang coach was pleased with his team's improved defense, led by Tom Holl who held one of Fenton's chief threats, John Lewis, to just eight points.
Steve Breitbell was the leading scorer with 18 points, followed by John Hogan, who scored 14.

LIONS WIN AGAIN, 57-43
Four wins in their last five games and a 2-0 start on the new season... why, that's almost a clean bill of health.
And it's also the improved status of St. Viator basketball. The Lions put away Immaculate Conception, 57-43, Wednesday evening in Arlington Heights. They've recorded four consecutive regular season triumphs, dating to last season.
Two straight wins ties Viator's entire output last season when they were 2-20 and, as the terminology goes, "rebuilding."

With 18 points from Bill Heffernan and 17 by Glenn Girard last night, the Lions are set to host Palatine on Saturday evening. The hot shooting Pirates carry a one-point loss to Maine East and 18-point victory over Glenbrook North.
Showing they need more work, the Lions also gave some evidence of guts against Immaculate Conception which came from nine points down to trail, 42-37, early in the last period.
Then Viator polished off the Knights with 11 straight points, beginning on Bill Foreman's free throw. Two from Heffernan gave the Lions an eight-point lead. Assist passes from Paul Kastner to Girard and Heffernan made it 49-37 with 4:21 left.
Heffernan salted away two more free throws and Mike Hermanson's only basket completed the spurt, staggering IC to submission.
Kastner scored 12 points, 10 before halftime. Foreman had six and Hermanson four. As subs, Hermanson and Mike Fliton helped stabilize the Lions who trailed, 11-8, after one period but soared to a 23-23 halftime lead on crisp passing.
The Lions were 15-of-24 at the line including eight-of-nine by Heffernan.

WILDCATS BLITZ WEST LEYDEN
Wheeling outscored West Leyden 18-4 in the opening stanza and then coasted to an 85-45 conquest in opening round tournament play at Woodstock Wednesday night.

Paced by 6-5 junior Keith Schildt, the Wildcats were never even mildly threatened in roaring to their second straight victory of the season and earning a slot in the semi-finals of the tourney Friday.
Coach Ted Eckert's outfit will now tangle with St. Edwards at 8 p.m. Friday evening following a 67-59 win by St. Eds over hosting Woodstock.
Schildt poured in 24 points and was supported offensively by Ed Kruk with 15 and big center Steve Criss with 12. The 'Cats led by 20 points at halftime and padded their margin to 16 by the third-quarter mark finishing then with a 27-point flurry.

GROVE LOSES HEARTBREAKER
Playing without its two guards, Elk Grove lost a tough one against highly regarded Addison Trail in the latter's holiday tourney, 64-62.

Although leading at halftime 37-30, the hustling Grenadiers were without Joe Parmentier in the early moments of the third quarter when he was tagged with his fifth foul.
Head coach Bill Parmentier lost his other fine guard - Greg Kelley - at the start of the fourth quarter, also because of fouls. Without these two fine outside shooters, Addison Trail took charge.
Elk Grove lost its seven-point lead in the third quarter when it was outscored 15-8. The Grens went into the final period tied, only to lose a heartbreaker to the much taller Blazers.
Steve Carson led the Grove with 14. Jeff Smith followed with 12 and Kelley had 10 while he was in there.

One girl, 89 young men awarded Maine West varsity sport letters

One young woman and eighty-nine men athletes have earned Maine West varsity sports letters for their work in football, soccer, cross-country or golf. The lone girl is Christine Heil who lettered as a varsity soccer manager.

Three other team aids received varsity letters including Phil Brady in soccer plus Mike Laughlin and Rich Triebe in football.

BISON WIN THRILLER
Buffalo Grove won a thriller in the Mundelein tourney, defeating Carmel 54-52. No other details were available.

MAINE SOUTH ROCKS KNIGHTS
The showdown between Prospect's Paul Withey and Maine South's Pete Boesen never came off.
Withey watched from the sidelines with an injured ankle as Boesen poured in 33 to rocket the hosting Hawks to an 82-61 triumph before a packed house out to witness the Maine opener.

It was Prospect's second straight loss of the young campaign and was made to look even more convincing after another member of the Knight front line, Doug Bonthron, fouled out late in the third period.

It allowed the tall Maine South club to rule the boards easily going down the stretch. Trailing by one point with 2:45 to go in the third stanza, the guests were shutout aside over a four minute span while the Hawks fabricated a commanding 61-49 advantage and then coasted the rest of the way.

Up until the departure of the 6-6 Bonthron, coach Bill Slayton's club had held their own, principally on the scrapping of guard Mike Quade and forward Dave Mann. Prospect led through most of the first quarter before Maine jumped on top through two straight three-point plays by Boesen.

In the second period the Knights regained the lead early and built it up to 37-28 before missing the front end of three straight one-and-ones. They trailed the Hawks 39-38 at intermission.

One more spurt in period three, with Mann hitting twice inside and Al Black poking through a pair of free pitches and a 17 footer had the visitors on top for the last time 45-42 before Mike Chazan countered for Maine with three straight buckets, two from long range.
Mann paced Prospect with 20 points, while Quade and Black had 16 apiece.

FREM'D DROPS OPENER
Willowbrook's taller team took three quarters to wear down a small but scrappy Fremd team in the latter's season opener at the Glenbard West Tournament, 60-48.

Frem'd won the first quarter, 7-6, and only trailed 24-21 at the half. Then the Villa Park quintet began hitting the boards with more authority in the third quarter, taking a commanding 40-29 advantage into the final eight minutes.

Besides the lack of height, the Vikings were a little jittery at first, according to Coach Leon Kasuboske. Their field goal percentage for the game proved that point - 28.2 (17 of 48).

Jim Recher poured in eight field goals to lead Fremd with 16 points. Nobody else reached double figures.

Tim Gross, a returning letterman like Recher, pulled off 10 rebounds. Paul Gillette had seven.

Kasuboske was pleased with his team's defense. Willowbrook ran a lot in its impressive opening win against defending state champion Proviso East, but the Warriors weren't allowed to play fast-break ball this game.

The Vikings will play at 2 p.m. Friday. The tourney winds up on Saturday.

HOFFMAN LOSES BOARDS, GAME
Hoffman Estates was outbounded 40-18 in losing to Lake Park in the Addison Trail Holiday Tournament, 55-39.

When the Hawks really needed a basket or a rebound in key spots against the taller Lancers they didn't come, according to Coach Jerry Segebrecht.

Joe Gajewski was "Mr. Everything" for Hoffman. The 5-foot-10 guard led the team with 12 points, paced the Hawks in rebounds with eight and found time to also be the playmaker.
Jim Villers had eight points with Jim Foster and Steve D. Currier with six each.

The Hawks won't be in action until Dec. 5 when they take on Wheeling in a jayvee game.

Blues drop tough one

The Des Moines Blues took a tough defeat, 4-3, at the hands of the Hoffman Estates Club's traveling team. Both teams added to the excitement by scoring alternating goals.

Stark Rosell led the Blues with their first goal on assists by Billy Berner and Tony Cardona. The other two goals were scored by Tony Cardona with assists credited to Scott Martini and Jeff Grish.

It was nip and tuck all the way as the home league's Cass Ford and Kunkel Realty battled to a 4-4 tie. Greg Beth, the league's high scorer came through again for Kunkel with a hat trick and an assist. Brian Beth scored Kunkel's other goal and Bob Seaborn their other assist.

Cass Ford's Steve Fritz scored two goals and one assist. Don Smith and Mike Evans each scored a goal. Cass Ford remains in first place.

Hoffman Estates football

The Hoffman Estates Commandos wound up their season with a 19-0 win over the Bears from Independence, Mo. The Bears were champions of the Independence Pop Warner Football League.

The Commandos established their dominance on the first play from scrimmage when they swept around left end for a 25-yard touchdown. They came right back with a 70-yard touchdown pass from Frank Vlasaty to Larry Mead. Dennis Steinhof got the final touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

The defense held the Bears to minus eight net yards. They also intercepted three passes, one each by Frank Russo, Larry Hernandez and Larry Ber.

The Commandos finished with a 10-0 record and outscored their opponents 180-13.

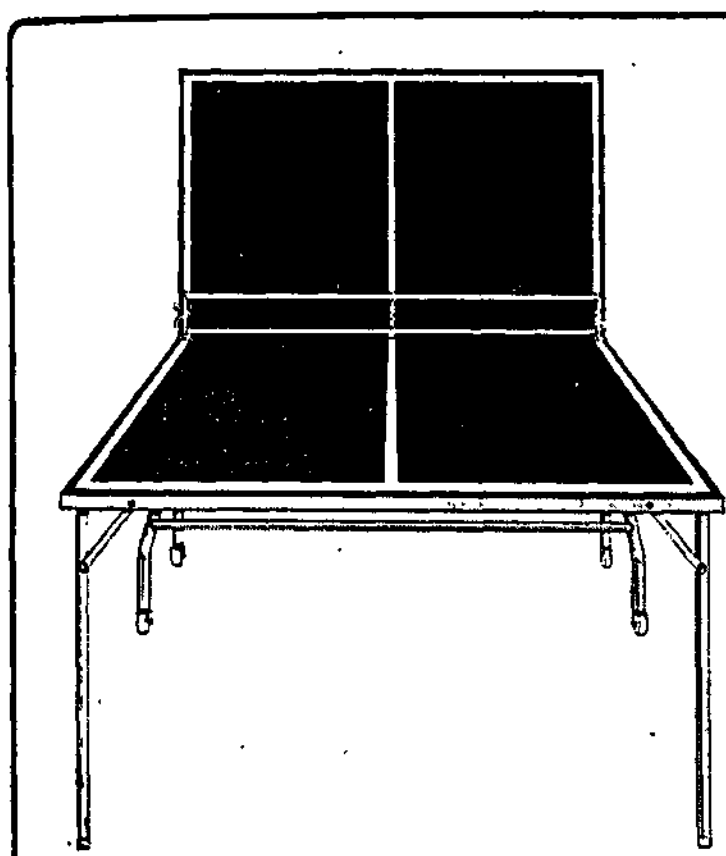

At Beverly Lanes

The Polka Dots were in good form Tuesday at Beverly Lanes with Bucky Storm rolling a scratch 475-174 series followed by high games of Linda Pieska 172, Donna Dwyer 168, Sally Koss 161 and Ruby McMillan 145.

Split conversations were made by Carol Laverde 3-10, Dorene Simmons 2-8 and Lill Iriza 7-8.

Team No. 2, Northpoint Jewlers, had the high series for the week at 104.

Forest View tankers 3rd in relays

Swimming Editor

Forest View swam to five second place finishes and placed third in team scoring, behind Libertyville and Niles North, at Tuesday's Adlai Stevenson varsity swim relays.

In other non-conference meets this week, Rolling Meadows scored its second consecutive victory, topping North Suburban entrant McHenry, 94-75, on Monday.

In underclass competition, Forest View's sophomores tied Niles North for second place behind Libertyville at the Adlai Stevenson Relays. The Falcons and Niles each tallied 56 points, Libertyville mopping up the pack with 146.

Mark Johnson, Ted Kraus, Roger Ullman and Leo Veseling gave the young Falcons their single winning effort with a 2:15.2 in 200 backstroke relay.

Back on varsity level, the same names kept popping up as the Falcons nudged McHenry, 78-76, for third place at Adlai Stevenson. Libertyville won with 106 points and Niles North earned 102.

Mike Zahakaylo, Tom Ciesielski, Jim Rohn and Mark Buczek swam 1:54.3 as runners-up in 200 medley relay. Zahakaylo, Buczek, Paul Post and Oke Pearson were second with 1:41.0 in 200 freestyle relay.

The Falcons were also runners-up in the longer 400 and 600 freestyle. Pearson, Mark Oliver, Jon DeLew and Kevin Redig swam 3:47.3 in the middle distance. That same quartet clocked 5:58.9 in 600 free relay.

Buczek, Zahakaylo, Jim Kantecki and Dave Nero were second in varsity 200 backstroke relay, swimming 2:04.0.

On Monday, Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke and Gary Grunwald each won two individual events and also participated on the victorious 200 medley relay unit as coach Phil Pardun's Mustangs defeated McHenry by 21 points.

The only available clocking was Stahnke's winning 2:18.2 in 200 individual medley, that setting a new Meadows' varsity record. Brother Ken Stahnke swam second in the event. Tom also won 100 butterfly.

Grunwald swam victorious times in 50 and 100 freestyle. Both Stahnke brothers, Grunwald and Rick Siebert gathered to win 200 medley relay honors. Siebert swam second in 50 and 100 freestyles.

Ken Stahnke in 100 breaststroke and Glen Adams in 500 freestyle were Meadows' other first place finishers. Adams also swam second in 200 freestyle as did Dan Nate in 100 backstroke.

Meadows' sophomores were victorious, 113-65, over McHenry.

Everyone takes a break this Thanksgiving day, but the schedule resumes with a busy weekend. Top area competition will be the St. Vitor Relays at 2:30 p.m., Saturday. Buffalo Grove and Wheeling are entered.

Friday, Arlington swims a 7 p.m. non-conference meet at Thornwood West. Meadows will entertain Central Suburban League entrant Niles East at 1 p.m. in the Buffalo Grove Aquadome.

The remainder of Saturday's schedule finds Forest View at the 2 p.m. St. Patrick Invitational plus Prospect and Elk Grove at the Wauwatosa (Wis.) Relays, a 1 p.m. meet.

Divisional play begins Tuesday for volleyball

Each point will begin meaning a lot this Tuesday when the Mid-Suburban Conference starts important divisional play in volleyball.

This is how the schedule shapes up: Palatine at Buffalo Grove, Fremd at Hersey and Wheeling at Arlington in the North and Elk Grove at Conant, Forest View at Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows at Prospect in the South. All games begin at 5:30 p.m. Schaumburg has a bye.

In the second week of cross divisional games, the winners in 'A' action were Hoffman Estates, Wheeling, Forest View, Buffalo Grove, Arlington and Hersey.

Beth Riser paced Hersey's 15-12, 15-11 victory over Schaumburg with her all-around play as well as her superior spiking ability.

The fine play of Mary Welovich helped make the difference as Forest View defeated Fremd, 15-3, 15-13.

Carol Perley of Buffalo Grove proved the best spiker for the Bison as they beat Rolling Meadows, 15-6, 15-10.

Other 'A' action saw Hoffman over Palatine, 15-12, 15-4; and Arlington over Elk Grove, 16-14, 15-12; and Wheeling over Conant, 15-7, 15-13. No names were available.

The 'B' meets went like this:

Palatine over Hoffman Estates, 11-15, 15-12, 15-12; Wheeling over Conant, 15-10, 15-12; Forest View over Fremd, 15-12, 2-15, 15-5; Rolling Meadows over Buffalo Grove, 15-7, 11-15, 15-8; Arlington over Elk Grove, 15-0, 15-1; and Hersey over Schaumburg, 15-9, 15-11.

Maine West wins volleyball opener

Maine West opened its volleyball season impressively, coming up with strong third games to defeat Deerfield Tuesday.

Coch Rayleen Tipton's girls fell behind after the first varsity game as Deerfield won 15-11. Then they battled back to win 15-10 and 15-11.

The junior varsity team lost the middle game en route to a 15-11, 9-15, 15-8 victory.

The two Warrior teams will try to make their records 2-0 Wednesday at Niles West, beginning at 4:15 p.m.

Elk Grove grabs hockey triumph

Ed. Note: Because two area teams were playing here, the names of the goal scorers for both should be included.

Elk Grove High School defeated Buffalo Grove 12-3 in action in the Northwest Suburban High School Hockey League. It was Elk Grove's second straight win of the season.

Elk Grove scored first in the opening minute on a goal by John Campbell, assisted by Bill Tucker and Joe Uhlarik.

Buffalo Grove scored two goals in a row to take a 2-1 lead. Gary Pratchard's goal tied the game on assists from Larry Mitsch and Bob Muff. Uhlarik scored the third goal unassisted to give Elk Grove a 3-2 lead after the first period of play.

In the second period Elk Grove scored four goals to put the game out of reach. Mike Walsh scored the fourth goal assisted by Larry Mitsch, Bill Tucker the fifth goal assisted by John Campbell; "Moose" Rodseth the sixth assisted by Gary Pratchard and Bill Tucker. Joe Danca scored the seventh goal assisted by Rodseth.

The third period was controlled by Mitsch and Bob Brunn as Elk Grove received five penalties. Gary Pratchard scored the eighth goal unassisted, Uhlarik scored the ninth goal assisted by Bob Brunn. Mitsch scored the tenth assisted by Bob Muff and the 11th assisted by Brunn. Brunn scored the final goal assisted by Uhlarik.

Goalie Steve Cimino played an outstanding game, stopping a penalty shot in the second period. Also playing outstanding games were Tony Saltarski, Terry Gloss and Mike Kwon.

Next game is scheduled for Wed., Nov. 27 at 7:00 p.m. vs. Forest View at the Arlington Ice Spectrum.

JEANNY DONDLINGER tries on band uniform she will wear in the Rose Bowl Parade when she marches with the Hersey High School Band on New Year's Day. In Luxembourg, Jeanny lives with her father, two sisters and two brothers in a large 100-year-old farmhouse.

TONY CONTRERAS talks to his American Mom, Phyllis Anderson, as she shoves a pizza into the oven for dinner. One of five children reared on a ranch in Honduras, Tony currently attends Buffalo Grove High School as an AFS cultural exchange student.

They learn from one another

Suburban families host AFS students

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Jeanny Dondlinger of Luxembourg is quite impressed with Chicago.

"It's clean," she smiled adding that the pollution is not as bad as she had been told to expect.

"And it is not so crowded either," she described Arlington Heights where she is currently residing for a year while attending Hersey High School under the sponsorship of American Field Service (AFS).

Jeanny finds the American diet a bit more varied and piquant than the bland meat and potato daily menu she is accustomed to eating in Luxembourg.

For instance, "I'd never eat jelly with meat." But what Jeanny really meant to say was Jell-O. The two are difficult for her to distinguish in English.

JEANNY'S HOST FAMILY, the Roger Robsons, only laughed ... and so did Jeanny.

She has easily adapted to her American school and family since first arriving here in August.

With an interest in music that is universal, Jeanny privately teaches piano and will accompany the Hersey High School band to California where they have been invited to march in the Rose Bowl Parade.

Tony Contreras regretted only one thing when he left his native country of Honduras to attend Buffalo Grove High School. His mother wouldn't let him pack his blue jeans. She made sure they were in the wash when he was ready to leave.

"Not my son. He's not going to wear jeans in the United States," she was emphatic.

BUT MR. AND MRS. Gayle Anderson, who are hosting the foreign exchange student for the school year, bought him a pair as soon as he arrived.

Tony misses the wide open spaces of his father's large ranch though he is anxiously anticipating the first big snowfall. At his home in Honduras there is no need even for a furnace.

This year there are 12 AFS students attending high schools in the area. And though families who are actively involved with AFS are "hooked" and, indeed, bestow lavish compliments on the program, there is a real need for better community support.

Due to a lack of volunteer host families, some high schools, including Elk Grove and Forest View, have no exchange students presently-enrolled and consequently can send none of their own abroad.

For every foreign student attending an American high school, two from that school are eligible to go overseas.

"IT'S A COMBINATION of not enough publicity, people being actually aware of the program, and wanting to take on the responsibilities of another teenager," said Mrs. Donald Holm of Arlington Heights, area representative for the 12 high schools in Districts 207 and 214.

"I really can say it's a fantastic experience. It's the reason I'm still active in the program," continued Mrs. Holm, who one year hosted a girl from Argentina. Another year her own daughter went to India on the program.

"Living with another person from a foreign country helps you to understand yourself better," said Mrs. Robson, Jeanny's American Mom. "You tend to presume that everyone lives the same way. And that's just not so," she continued.

The Robsons, who have two daughters and a son living at home, also have another boy, 17, who is presently an exchange student in Sweden.

"IT'S LESS OF A problem finding host families in small towns where it's considered quite prestigious than in the more affluent suburbs," said Mrs. Robson, adding, "I think suburbanites are just too much into themselves."

Though the rise in the cost of living might have somewhat adversely affected participation, it is not the primary reason for the lack.

"Apathy was even worse last year," said Mrs. Holm. "Parents tend to feel 'Why host a foreign student when I can send my own child to Europe with one of the school or church sponsored trips?' But what they don't realize is that their child will receive only a tourist view."

Host parents are expected to treat their foreign visitor like one of their own children. The cost to the family includes food, of course, and any incidental expenses such as dry cleaning and possibly some clothing items.

THE STUDENTS themselves are given $16 a month spending allowance from AFS — which doesn't go very far these days.

Any medical expenses incurred are paid by AFS. Host families are eligible, however, to take $50 a month as a charitable tax deduction.

"Just like a parent ... you give him what he needs as you do for your own children," said Mrs. J. C. McDonald, who is currently mother to Tor-Tetter Johnsen from Norway, a senior this fall at Maine West High School. He rooms with the McDonald's real son, Greg, 16.

"It does help to have a child at home of driving age since AFS students are not allowed to use a car while they are here," said Mrs. Anderson, whose own son attends school with Tony.

"Tony is a very independent boy and he'd be put back a peg if he always had to rely on me to take him around."

MR. AND MRS. Marshall Peterson of Mount Prospect are leaving in January for Chile to visit their former exchange student, Pablo, who lived with them last year.

"When he left he said, 'Mom and Dad, now you have to come and see me,'" said Mrs. Marshall. The family remains active with the local chapter and occasionally hosts foreign AFS students residing in the Chicago area over a weekend.

Though the AFS home office is in New York City, it is the area representatives and adult chapters active with individual high schools that coordinate the program.

Prospective families are interviewed and carefully matched in interest and background to an incoming student.

"We try to find a family that will be most compatible but not so much alike as to take away from the different experience," said Mrs. Holm.

"ACTUALLY ALL THIS placement is really quite involved. For instance we'd never place a short foreign exchange student in a very tall family for fear he would feel inferior."

Neither the school or family may request a certain exchange student though a family may designate either a male or female.

Local school chapters also select American students who will be spending their senior year abroad. They are chosen on merit alone, regardless how active their own family is with AFS.

The cost of sending a student overseas, $1550, is divided between the parents and the local AFS chapter. Together the chapters sponsor a pizza drive as the one big fund-raising event of the year the first day of November.

APPLICATIONS for families who are interested in hosting AFS foreign students for the next school year (1975-76) are now being accepted. Persons interested should contact the high school for the area in which they reside or Mrs. Holm at 255-7471.

Persons who do not wish to host a student for an entire year are still invited to join an adult AFS chapter.

THE PIANO IS played often since Jeanny Dondlinger has come to live with the Roger Robsons of Arlington Heights. At the piano with Jeanny, left, are Kim Robson and her sister, Terri, as Mrs. Robson watches.

AN ORIENTAL CHRISTMAS is one of the decorating ideas for a holiday housewalk sponsored by Hunting Ridge Garden Club, Palatine. Enjoying a preview are Arlene Guzman, Joan Timberlake and Barbara Strom-vall. The tour of seven area homes, each trimmed in a different theme, is Thursday, Dec. 12, from noon to 4 p.m. with refreshments at last home. Tickets, $2, must be ordered by Sunday from Marge Greco, 359-5064.

Better switch than 'bitch'

Dear Dorothy: I was cheated at a grocery a week ago and I'm still upset. Like others, I'm not always sure the bills are in my purse. This time, however, my husband asked if I had a $5 bill. All that was in my purse was a $10 bill and two $1 bills, and that's the way I went to the store.

But when I went to the checkout counter, the clerk gave change for a $5 bill. He denied I'd given him a $10 bill, and I was flustered and embarrassed. The manager said he'd check, but seemed unconcerned and suspicious of me. What does one do in a circumstance like this?—Mrs. J.R.

Nothing, other than pointing out to the manager that good stores have a rule that any bill more than $5 be kept on top of the register until change has been made. If he is too dumb to get the point, you'll have to find yourself another store.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to respond to the SOS about a stained toilet bowl. I inherited a terribly stained one with this house, and the mineral deposits yielded to nothing. However, my plumber gave the answer — scrubbing with a pumice stone. I thought it might damage the porcelain, but it didn't. It got rid of the stains like a dream.

Pay special attention to deposits under the rim, where the water must come in during flushing. Working with a mirror, one can clear deposits from the 'little holes' to insure adequate flushing. After this, regular use of standard bowl cleaners will keep the bowl sparkling. Glad to help.—Adrienne R. Shapiro.

Shade and valance to match

Did you ever think of dressing up a window with a shade and matching window cloth valance? This tailored window treatment can transform a small, ordinary window into one that becomes a most important color accent in a room, says the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

Dear Dorothy: Thought you might like to pass on how I ripen green tomatoes. I put them into a brown paper bag and place in a dark place for a week or 10 days. They ripen beautifully. Partly ripe tomatoes shouldn't be left as long.—Sally Patterson.

Perspective necessary on Christmas spending

Sometimes we all become a bit too presumptuous and need to put things into perspective.

Like the notorious IRS man who sends citizens an intimidating notice that their tax returns have been audited and that they owe more money.

There's a tale, possibly apocryphal, about the day some friends of mine were summoned to the IRS office. As the husband sat quaking in his seat, the tax man gave them a dressing down for improperly filing their tax returns.

The wife, not one to be shoved around, indignantly shot back at the IRS agent in emphatic tones:

"Young man, I pay your salary. You are my servant. And don't you ever forget that!"

INDEED, WITHOUT tax-paying citizens, the IRS agent — or at least his salary — would be non-existent. Thus, he of necessity has a vested interest in seeing that people pay their taxes, but at the same time he must not lose sight of the truth in the woman's statement.

Much the same can be said for merchants of Christmas wares.

Some commercialists seem to have the idea that Christmas is of, by and for them. They unthinkingly vocalize their resentment of any suggestion that people might consider spending less for Christmas. The spirit of giving is an affront to them if it means giving money to help poor people instead of buying commodities for those who don't need them.

Obviously, any large movement in that direction — though highly unlikely — would seriously affect a merchant's economically, and they have a right to make a living.

BUT THOSE multi-billion-dollar Christmas sales would never have existed for merchants in the first place without that almost-forgotten event of 2000 years ago and the subsequent idea of giving as a way of commemorating that event.

In fact, the enthusiasm of merchants for helping people "give" is a huge affront to many for whom that event is most deeply significant.

For those people it is the merchants who are infringing, not vice versa. So if those people — or anybody else — feel it is appropriate to alter current traditions in the celebration of Christmas, they have every right to do so, and without an ounce of flak from merchants.

When you are invited to a birthday party and served cake, you eat it graciously and don't scream for ice cream. And if the birthday celebrants next year decide not to have a party, you don't throw a tantrum.

by Monica Wilch Perin

MORE HUMBLED NOTES: As $80,000 worth of Christmas decorations were set ablaze in the Loop Holiday night, it was announced that "the Christmas season has officially begun." Sorry, but Christmas does not "officially" begin until Christmas Eve. In fact, we are not even yet into the "official" pre-Christmas season, which is Advent and which begins Dec. 1 this year.

Overheard at a local shopping center this week, as "Santa" made his way through the mall: (Wife) "Christmas gets earlier every year — they're starting before Thanksgiving now." (Husband, cynically) "Next it'll start before Easter."

Three Elk Grove Village Junior Women's Club scholarship recipients spoke at the Juniors' November meeting to share some of their summer workshop experiences.

Rosemary Karallus, art scholarship winner, showed sketches, crafts and samples of air brush techniques. The one-week art program she attended was held at Allerton House which is part of the University of Illinois.

Debbie Hayhurst shared a tape recording of instrumental and vocal concerts that were the result of her two-week music study program at East Bay Camp area in Lexington. The program gave Debbie private lessons and enabled her to sing in small ensemble groups called madrigals.

CAROL SWANSON'S speech scholarship at Eastern Illinois in Charleston enabled her to do research which was used in her debating team. She shared notes she had made of her impressions from the two-week program.

All three thanked the Juniors and expressed wishes that the scholarship be continued. The Juniors have allocated funds for similar awards to be given next March.

Gift ideas from the garden

Since the day after Thanksgiving traditionally opens the Christmas season, I've a few ideas on gifts, Christmas seasonings and other goodies you make or grow yourself.

I'm sure that this Christmas will be an austere one — with folks cutting down on cutting out entirely sending Christmas cards, slashing their gift list, even dimming their outdoor lighting and gala party plans.

Herb gardening is so big now, that a growing plant of one of the indispensable dozen — parsley, sage, rosemary, thyme, garlic, dill, tarragon, sweet marjoram, oregano, basil, savory, chives — would be a welcome earthy gift to any good cook or green thumb.

Or if you have a quantity of dried herbs stored up from the summer's garden, you can decorate baby food jars, or buy inexpensive spice jars at the hardware store for dried spice gift-giving.

You can make curry powder, poultry seasoning or seasoned salt from these recipes:

CURRY POWDER

1/4 cup coriander seed
1/4 cup ground turmeric
1 tablespoon cumin seed
4 inches stick cinnamon
5 whole cloves
1 tablespoon cardamom pods, shelled (about 1 teaspoon of seed)
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1 teaspoon ground ginger
2 bay leaves

Place all ingredients in shallow baking pan. Bake at 200 degrees for 25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend ingredients using mortar and pestle or an electric blender till well ground. Pour in small containers. Cover. Makes 1/2 cup curry powder.

POULTRY SEASONING

2 cups dried parsley
1 cup rubbed sage
1/2 cup dried rosemary, crushed
1/2 cup dried marjoram, crushed
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons onion powder
2 teaspoons ground ginger
Combine all ingredients. Pour into airtight containers. Seal. Shake before using. Makes 4 cups. Send note: Use in poultry stuffings. Or mix 1 1/2 tablespoons seasoning to 1/2 cup butter or margarine; spread over one cut-up chicken before oven frying.

SEASONED SALT

1 cup coarse pickling salt

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons garlic powder
1 teaspoon curry powder
1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed
2 1/2 teaspoons paprika
1 1/2 teaspoons dried oregano, crushed
1 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Pour into airtight containers. Seal. Send note: Use in egg, cheese, fish and meat dishes. Makes 1 cup.
Russian tea makes an easy, exotic holiday gift:

RUSSIAN TEA

1 9-ounce jar orange-flavored breakfast drink powder (Fang or the like)
1/2 cup iced tea mix with lemon and sugar (very important)
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Spoon into gift containers. Cover tightly. Makes 2 cups mix. Send note: To make spiced tea, stir two tablespoons of this mix into one cup of boiling water.

Personally, I stay away from giving Mason jars of put-up vegetables to friends as Christmas gifts. They may be precious to me, but canning concoctions are not as welcome gifts as other homemade foodstuffs because of the subconscious fear of food poisoning from improper canning procedures. Homemade salad dressings are another grey area of marginal acceptance. Also, avoid giving what I call "chain gifts" — something that must be continued on and on — unless the recipient is a branched fruit freak or really digs sourdough bread starters.

GIFTS OF HOMEMADE cookies, fruit breads, jams, candy and fruitcake are almost an institution. And with the high price of sugar, flour and other ingredients, food gifts, can no longer be considered "cheap" gifts. Still, watch for recipes that use honey, corn syrup or molasses instead of sugar; margarine instead of butter; and go easy on the flour. Make fruitcake in foil or paper cupcake liners. Jelly in wine glasses and put candy in apothecary jars to make a little look like more.

"Snowdrift" paraffin — simply cooled, melted paraffin whipped with a rotary beater or electric mixer — makes a nice finishing touch to the top of the jelly glass.

Christmas breads — banana, cranberry, pumpkin and apple bread — are simple to make and give the impression the baker is a superb pastry chef.

Thanksgiving

A TIME TO BE GRATEFUL...

A time to pause and give thanks for this great land carved from a wilderness by our forefathers. A land entrusted to us to guard and care for... A land that has provided us with our growth and strength. Let us give thanks now for this land and at the same time pray for guidance in protecting it so that future generations may also enjoy its abundance twofold.

Supersuburbs? We're just not ready for it

What's a town without a space needle?

The plan to build a super, sky-high space needle in the Barrington area is still alive and the man who is proposing it says it will be bigger and better than ever.

But suburbanites say they'll believe it when they see it. They've heard this guy promote his incredible idea before and the darn thing still isn't off the drawing board.

Actually, Barrington businessman Merrill J. Foster has been talking up his taller-than-a-giant-beanstalk building for eight years now, ever since the idea crept up on him "accidentally on purpose."

"It's kind of wild as I look back on it," says Foster of that day in 1968 when officials of his company, Marine Industries (a producer of speedometers for boats), sought a promotion gimmick and a long-term investment. "It just came from outer space," Foster added.

FOSTER'S COMPANY at that time owned a portion of Northwest Highway in Barrington. It gave the village the road but someone, jokingly, said the firm still owned the air rights. Idea after idea spewed forth until someone came up with a restaurant, with something on top of that and something on top of that. "Somebody said, 'let's draw it up,'" says Foster. "The papers got it (again accidentally on purpose?) and the cat was out."

The cat, it seems, has more than one life. The main obstacle has been "getting around the politics," says Foster. Of course, financing the building was and is even more difficult. In 1968, he says, the cost of erecting the building was $20 million. Then it went to $42 million, then $67 million to the current $90 million.

The latest plan for the building is only slightly different from Foster's original thinking. If built it would exceed the height of the Sears Tower, topping out at 1,500 or 1,600 feet with an antenna on top. It would be about 4.5 million square feet, making it the biggest building in the world (the Pentagon in Washington is the biggest), Foster contends.

THE BROUHAHA over location of the space needle may be resolved soon with the building probably being located just off the Northwest Tollway at either Ill. Rte. 59 or Barrington Road. But first, Foster needs an investor.

"We have to get a big name to put on top, like a Sears or John Hancock," says Foster. "We're talking with a major insurance company now. We have to convince them that the advertising they'll get will carry around the world. We have to convince the people with money that the plan is feasible."

For a long while it looked like the place to be in the 1970s was the Northwest suburbs.

This was the time when revolutionary ideas spun from the minds of some very important people were to sweep us all into a new and exciting way of life.

Supergovernment more responsive to our needs — supercities within cities designed to fulfill our every whim — buildings that touch the sky — high-speed highways to hurl us toward all this improvement going on around us — they were visions aroused in our minds in the not-too-distant past.

Today most of those ideas are just a part of the history of the area, an indication of the thinking that went on . . . and little else.

What happened to some of those ideas? Why didn't they become a part of our lives? Can any of them be revived? Herald writer Barry Sigale examines six ideas that make up some of the super-ideas proposed for you and me.

Papa Bear looked at track, said 'thanks but no thanks'

Little was known of the details of that July 16, 1970 huddle between George Halas Sr. and his associates and Jack Walsh, the late Philip Levin and local officials of Arlington Park Race Track on a proposal to move the National Football League club to the Northwest suburban facility.

But, more than four years later, some of the now-revealed specifics of the discussions indicate the scope of such a franchise shift and give a glimpse of what it would have been like to have a professional sports team in the Northwest suburbs.

It apparently was the closest the area has come to becoming the home of an honest-to-goodness major league team until last year, when negotiations failed to bring the Chicago Cougars hockey team here.

THE MEETING was initiated by Walsh, former Arlington Heights Village president, and hosted by Levin, at that time president of Transnation Corp., New York-based owners of the racing complex.

Walsh was convinced that the best use for the remainder of the track property was for post-racing season sporting events rather than for commercial or industrial development. Levin agreed. The get-together seemed timely because of a feud the Bears were having with the management of Wrigley Field, then their home stadium.

Halas was told the suburbs could support his team, that the location was ideal and that he could make money from parking-lot concessions — something he was unable to do at Wrigley Field. The village engineering department worked up a study, superimposing the football field over pictures of the track setup and depicting seating arrangements for more than 50,000 fans. It was suggested that other teams could play there on a year-round basis (even the White Sox were rumored moving from 35th and the Dan Ryan).

But there was no deal. "IT WAS A problem of economics," says Walsh in recalling the talks. "Transnation really didn't see its way clear to the economics of construction. But, a lot of things just weren't ready. Ultimately, it was the method, not so much the question." He added that the subject of financing was discussed and that he mentioned the village, under statutory powers, might have been able to act as a vehicle to get money flowing.

Walsh says the meeting resulted in a "friendly discussion. Halas is a hell of a fine guy, very forthright, very astute, very sharp. He is strong-minded. I didn't find him reticent about expressing his opinion. He was a gracious and personable guy."

Track officials might agree with Walsh but the fact remains that they have had no discussions with the Bears since that July day in 1970.

Who knows if they'll hear from Halas again. George Halas Jr., the Bears' president, said the team considers Soldier Field only a temporary home and again is considering a move. But "we haven't thought about Arlington Park," he said. "Not in recent times."

Political clout? Megaburbia fizzled...

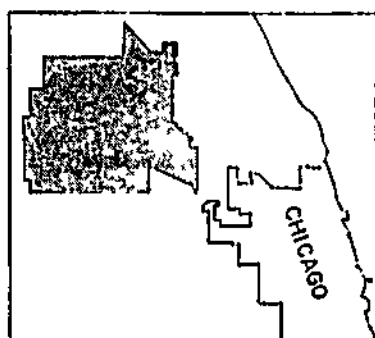

Someone, in 1968, commented to the then village president of Arlington Heights, John G. Woods, on the lack of cooperation between Northwest suburban communities. Woods replied, "You should have seen it 10 years ago."

Now it's 1974 and though some municipalities have united to solve common problems, they haven't participated to the extent Woods sought with his plan to consolidate 10 area communities into one supersuburb.

Called "Megaburbia," the plan was hatched in 1968 as "one of the most exciting ideas to hit the area in a long time." It also was billed as "an appalling, pie-in-the-sky" idea not worthy of the effort.

The concept was a simple one. By bringing the communities under one umbrella, a streamlined government offering better services and packing greater political clout would emerge.

Woods said the city would become the state's second-largest municipality and second to none in development potential. "Certainly," he said in 1968, "the economies of operation possible in such areas as fire, police, health, flood control and water and sewer service are enough to warrant serious and thoughtful consideration."

Woods presented an outline of his plan to the Northwest Municipal Conference. The reaction of area leaders was mixed.

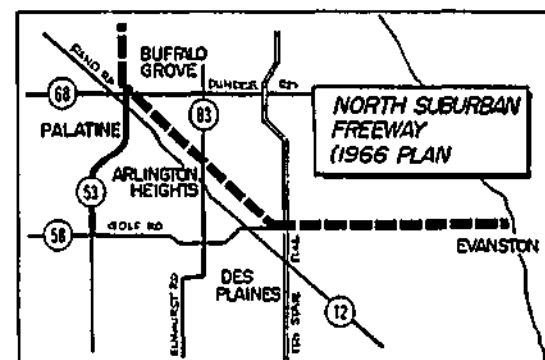

"The first reaction to the plan was one of shock," said Jack Pahl, former village president of Elk Grove Village and now commissioner for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. "But the ones there didn't raise any objections because John put it (the plan) in the framework of something 10 years in the future."

But when the plan reached the public it received a different reaction. "Local mayors took exception to it," Pahl said. "They passed a resolution against it. But the framework (the 10-year aspect of the plan) never was reported to the press," thus misinforming the mayors who made their judgments from newspaper reports, Pahl said.

One of Woods' main concerns was that public sentiment would be too strong against his plan, that it would not receive the approval of the people it was designed to benefit. Surveys showed area residents opposed the concept by a 9-to-1 margin, Pahl said. The idea died.

Today, says Pahl, there is more cooperation among municipalities. "We'll see more and more functional cooperation" among communities, he concluded. And there will be no Megaburbia.

Next time you're stuck in traffic, think of this Sometime, when you're stalled in one of this area's typical rush-hour traffic jams, it wouldn't be too out of place to get red in the face and growl about the lack of foresight by area planners who didn't provide enough high-speed roads for travel.

One such plan, called at various times the Rand-Golf Expressway, the Golf-Rand Expressway and, as it is best known, the North Suburban Freeway, was billed in the 1960s as the solution to all those potential auto snarls.

Obviously, it never was built.

BASICALLY, THE 1966 plan called for the construction of a six-lane highway as a link between Evanston and Ill. Rte. 53, a corridor that would run parallel to Rand Road. But delays, partially caused by a public outcry and additional studies, caused the idea to be scrapped five years later.

Residents were up in arms because they thought they would be displaced from their homes and their lives disrupted. The original plan called for the road to be built two or three miles north of Rand Road. It was to extend from Emerson Street (Golf Road) in Evanston to the Tri-State Tollway, then turn northwesterly to cross Ill. Rte. 83 at Camp McDonald Road, Palatine Road near Buffalo Grove Road in Arlington Heights and Arlington Heights Road just south of Hintz with an ultimate connection at Rte. 53 in Palatine.

The Illinois Dept. of Highways finally determined that no matter how the road was built it would bring hardship to someone. "The freeway would be somewhat costly and disruptive" is how the state put it, an understatement considering the estimated $365 million price tag put on the entire project.

THE STATE OFFERED several alternate plans but considering the shape of the Northwest suburbs there may be little hope for any of them.

Today, there is no mention of any area expressway in what the state refers to as its '95 plan, a 20-year outlook for area needs. There's mention of something called the Elgin-O'Hare Freeway and the Fox Valley Freeway and even a plan to take Rte. 53 and extend it to Wisconsin.

The only solution they offer motorists in the Northwest suburbs is to take public transportation — i.e. a regional bus system along Golf Road from Evanston to Elgin may be the only alternative, the state says.

...and so, so far, has Lincoln County

The vision for the concept called Lincoln County came to two area officials in 1970 when they realized that suburban Chicago wasn't getting enough of a voice in its own destiny.

Today, despite repeated frustrations surrounding decisions and policies dominated by Cook County Democrats, Lincoln County still is something talked about in hushed tones because annual attempts have failed to get the ball rolling again.

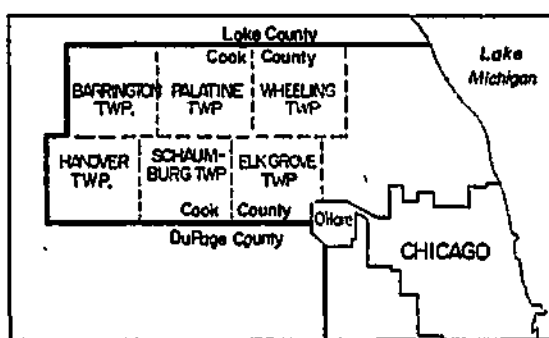

"We're waiting for somebody to breathe a bit of fresh air into it (the idea)," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, who, along with former Palatine trustee Merwin Soper, led the original Lincoln County push against seemingly insurmountable odds.

Jones believes Lincoln County still is a great idea but "it probably won't happen." The plan calls for the consolidation of the six Northwest suburban townships — Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington — into a separate county.

Citing Cook County as "ungovernable and too large," Jones contended that the new county would help loosen the grip on suburban life held by Chicago-controlled county politicians.

He said the final straw — "the thing that may bring it (the issue) to a head" — might be the proposed countywide pollution-testing program, which he said would cost some $3 million to $4 million at a rate of $30 to $40 a car. When the suburban motorist finds out about this, he said, "it's liable to cause the Lincoln County movement to gain some steam."

Ever since then — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Lincoln

County was "an impossible dream," proponents of the plan have tried to come up with a way to get around its opposition.

The election laws say that a majority of those voting during a general election must vote for the plan if it is to be passed. Since Chicago residents probably would not vote on the issue at all, it is a good bet that the measure wouldn't pass. There are more county votes from the city than the suburbs and a vote not cast is a "no" vote.

The only chance the idea would have then is if the election laws are changed, Jones said, allowing the decision to be made only by those voters casting a "yes" or "no" on the subject. Then he would be optimistic. "If there was an individual vote on the issue," he says, "the people out here would vote for it overwhelmingly."

'Planets' orbiting in Romano's dreams

LEE ROMANO

Barrington businessman Merrill J. Foster says Lee Romano "wants to steal my idea and my thunder."

Foster's Space Needle and Romano's Outer Planets futuristic city complex may be similar in some respects but they certainly have one thing very much in common . . . neither plan has gotten off the ground.

For Romano, it has been a constant battle with Schaumburg officials since he introduced in 1968 his original proposal to construct a $150 million-plus development at Higgins Road and Ill. Rte. 53. It was to feature a 113-story office building, a 65-story motor inn, 4,000 apartments and a seven-floor department store.

"A piece of perfection," was how Romano described his proposed venture in a statement to the village's zoning board of appeals. "A $150 Million Dream?" was the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Herald's headline question on its July 12 front page.

"I feel Schaumburg will be the hub of the future metropolis," Romano explained.

THE ARLINGTON Heights resident, who calls himself a "concept creator and planner," failed for several years to satisfy the conditions put forth by the zoning board but finally has come up with a slightly modified but larger concept that he hopes to begin by December.

To house about 30,000 people, the complex now is designed to include 34 buildings on a 238-acre parcel of land — 126-story office building, 80-story hotel, 90-story residential-office and 70-story residential buildings and other structures (none less than 21 stories) complete the total picture.

Since his initial proposal, Romano has gained some competition but it appears his structure may finally be erected.

One project similar to Romano's is Woodfield '76. It is supposed to be an even larger project than Outer Planets, which seemingly brings Romano's idea within the realm of possibility.

Said one observer, "Woodfield '76 makes Outer Planets look more realistic than ever."

Two women wounded in shooting

by TOM VON MALDER

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lela Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reported-ly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

After ditch cave-in Resident revives construction boss

by STIRLING MORITA

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

HALLQUIST WAS administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Nowicki when Schaumburg firefighters arrived at the scene. The firemen worked feverishly for 45 minutes to dig out the trapped Nowicki and then transported him to the hospital in a department ambulance.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kick. "He knew what he was doing."

Police said Trentino Canale, who was in the ditch with Nowicki, reported that the walls of the eight-foot ditch caved in, pinning his boss to a large auger. Canale freed himself from the wet clay and ran to the nearby Starline office.

Hallquist said Canale came into the office and said to call the fire department. Another employee called, and Hallquist ran to the ditch, west of the building.

"I WENT THERE, and there was no response. I didn't like his color at all," Hallquist recalled. "He was not breathing at all."

Hallquist administered resuscitation, and Nowicki started breathing on his own. When firefighters attempted to free the man, Hallquist helped keep the oxygen mask on Nowicki's face. "He was certainly helpful throughout the extraction," Kick said.

Kick added it was difficult to dig in the ditch because there was about a ton of "soupy" clay around the victim, the owner of Norwick Plumbing of Wood Dale.

Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

Tests show Heritage Park basin free of pollution

Tests at the Wheeling Park District's Heritage Park west retention basin prompted by a "fish kill" last summer show that the lake is free of pollution.

The tests were ordered by the park board after Craig Stryzysk, 15, of 308 S. Jeffery Ln., reported that he had found 300 to 400 dead fish on the basin's banks. The fish died between Aug. 1 and Aug. 12.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency inspected the discharges into the basin and took water samples from several areas of the lake.

IN A REPORT to the park board, Benn J. Leland of the EPA, said, "Our representative saw no dead fish nor any physical degradation of the pond. Furthermore, results of the tests on the samples showed no apparent violations of our water quality standards."

Leland said the EPA will take no further action unless there are additional problems at the basin.

Park board members initially thought the fish had been killed when one of the industries west or south of the basin dumped material into the sewers that drain into the basin. A 60-inch sewer pipe that drains the Dunhurst area and several industries empties into the basin.

Park Board Pres. Robert Ross has said that the fish may have died from natural causes when water plants in the basin bloomed. "You always get a fish kill when the lake blooms," he said.

PARKS SUPT. David Phillips said Wednesday that since August no other fish appear to have died. He said since the water tests were negative and it is not known what killed the fish, the park district can take no further action.

"We'll just have to watch the basin closely and see if any more fish are killed," he said. "If that happens, we'll have to look into the matter further and do something."

Stryzysk said he has been fishing in the basin for several years and that some of the dead fish were "good-sized."

He also said none of the scavenger fish

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Horald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

New Era drops request for townhouse rezoning

The New Era Construction Co. has decided to withdraw its request for rezoning to allow a townhouse development next to the Sandpebble Walk apartment complex at the northwest corner of Palatine and Wheeling roads.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday the builder decided to withdraw the rezoning petition because of technical difficulties raised that would have made it difficult to build the project within current zoning regulations.

Officials from New Era could not be reached for comment Wednesday, but Passolt said the firm will have to change its plan or wait until the village completes its revision of the zoning ordinance.

The village does not now have a zoning classification specifically for townhouses, but is in the process of establishing a category.

THE PROPERTY on which the development is proposed currently is zoned R-1 (single-family) and the developer had asked that it be changed to R-4 (multiple-family). That zoning, however, primarily is intended for high-density apartments, village officials said.

Bernard Brown, vice president of New Era, recently told The Herald his firm had no choice but to propose the project under R-4 zoning because the zoning ordinance had not been changed. He said his firm has been waiting for the change for several months.

He said village officials told his firm it could not build the project under its current planned development ordinance because it does not apply to townhouses. New Era was told this, Brown said, even though several townhouse developments have been and are being built under that zoning.

Village officials, however, said they have decided to end that practice. New Era has an option to buy the property and has proposed 78 three-and-four-bedroom townhouses.

Cedar Run residents asks 24-hour parking

Homeowners in Wheeling's Cedar Run subdivision have asked the village board to allow 24-hour parking on one side of Cedar Run Drive.

James W. Gallagher, 23, of 1319 Exeter Ct., representing the homeowners, told the village board Monday there currently are not enough parking spaces in the development and asked that the parking restriction on Cedar Run Drive be lifted.

He said a number of homes in the subdivision still are unoccupied and the parking situation will get worse when residents move in.

Village board members said the homeowners should submit a written request to the village. Safety, fire regulations and snow plowing will be considered before a decision is reached, they said.

Lollipop Lane open Dec. 8

The Wheeling Historical Society's annual "Lollipop Lane" will open from Dec. 8 through 15 at the Wheeling Chamber Park, 131 Wolf Rd.

An open sleigh, made around 1900, will be on display. The sleigh was acquired by Sister Mary Bridget of Addolorata Villa.

Hours will be 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Parks sponsor trip to Women's Universe

The Wheeling Park District will sponsor a trip to Women's Universe, Expo 74 at McCormick Place Dec. 11.

The trip, part of the park district's Feminine program, costs $4 plus lunch expenses. The group will leave Heritage Park at 10 a.m. and return between 3 and 4 p.m.

Those interested should register at Heritage Park before Dec. 9. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Stevenson addition architects chosen

Erickson, Kristmann and Stillwaugh architectural firm was selected to design the new addition to Stevenson High School by the Dist. 125 Board of Education.

The 24,000-square-foot classroom addition will be attached to the southwest corner of the building and is expected to be open by the 1976-77 school year.

Neptune's pool closed Thanksgiving, Friday

The Wheeling Park District's Neptune's Pool in Wheeling High School will be closed today and until 7 p.m. Friday.

Neptune's Den also will be closed today and will open from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Dangerous toys talk set

Judy Stone of the Consumer Product Safety Commission will speak Tuesday on dangerous toys at Twin Grove School, 1072 Ivy Hall Ln., Buffalo Grove.

The program, sponsored by the Indian Trails Public Library District, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Adults are invited to the library's monthly feature film presentation at 8 p.m. Dec. 8, at the library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Library meet rescheduled

The regular meeting of the Indian Trails Library Board of Trustees, scheduled for Christmas Day, has been rescheduled to Dec. 27.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Park projects scheduled to be done next year

Buffalo Grove Park District officials expect next year to complete several projects financed by a 1971 bond issue.

Once the projects are finished, said Park District Dir. Stanley Crosland, officials may begin considering another referendum to finance development of future park sites.

Crosland said the remaining funds, estimated at about 10 per cent of the $1.25 million bond issue, will be spent on The Raupp Memorial Museum and Cambridge park projects.

He said park officials were hoping to finish the projects by the end of this year but problems obtaining land and weather-related construction delays will make that impossible.

Crosland said the park district wants to develop a park site east of Buffalo Grove Road south of Dundee near the Cambridge-on-the-Lake development, but acquisition of part of the land still is tied up in court.

He said park officials have been waiting for more than a year to obtain the property, about three acres through condemnation proceedings.

Some $30,000 worth of developments will have to wait until the park district obtains the land, Crosland said.

He also said maintenance and minor improvements have been delayed due to what he termed "terrible weather."

Through offbeat courses

Students turning on to learning

by BOB GALLAS

Leaky facuets, guitars, sculpting, electronics and play productions are all becoming part of the regular school day at several junior high schools in the Northwest suburbs.

The schools are offering "mini courses," unusual or offbeat not-for-credit classes geared to student interests. The same classes are offered in two school districts, but on a credit basis, as part of the regular school day, graded the same as traditional courses, and are turning kids on to learning.

"It works well with our philosophy to expose students to a lot of ideas," said Donald Stipe, principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School. "With short courses you can do that," he added.

PALATINE HILLS, like other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, offers about 25 courses each year besides math, English, history and science.

Students can choose two 40-minute classes every 10 weeks, ranging from guitar and home handyman to co-ed shop and cooking.

At Thomas Junior High School, Arlington Heights, students can sign up for a special eight-week course five times a year. Teachers at the school say grading hasn't taken away any of the fun but has improved the courses.

"We wanted to give the classes more meaning," said Ruth Rowe, home economics teacher at the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school. "Before, the class met only once a week which wasn't enough time. It was just fun and games, a place to go."

"By inserting it in the daily schedule, the students are more receptive," Mrs. Rowe said.

BESIDES EXPOSING students to a variety of ideas and skills, the mini-courses also benefit the traditional courses, teachers say.

The classes allow the students mobility and a chance to let off steam, Stipe said. "It brightens up their day and gives them something to look forward to," he said. "You can't expect kids to sit still all day."

While critics of the mini-courses say the quick courses aren't long enough to teach anything, school officials say they don't have to.

"The students are just exposed to basics in class, but you should see what they bring back to school. Things they've done at home on their own," said Stipe. The principal pointed to case after case of needlework and handmade items displayed throughout the school.

"THE TEACHERS turn the kids on and give them just enough basics to go home and do it themselves," Stipe said.

The courses also have other advantages, teachers say. Students can find out early what they like and dislike, rather than finding out too late the career they've chosen doesn't appeal to them.

Stipe said it is difficult to gauge the success of incorporating unusual and different types of classes into the school day because the idea is so new. But he said early studies have shown the idea to have very positive effects on youngsters.

"The kids have a better self-image, and more confidence in themselves,"

OK to apply for housing funds urged

Michael Richardson, the city's director of planning and zoning, said Wednesday he is hoping for quick approval by the Des Plaines City Council of a recommendation to apply for federal funds available under the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act.

The city council will receive three reports next week dealing with the federal program, which could give the city up to $2.5 million over the next six years. The reports include a recommendation from the Housing Commission to apply for the first phase of the funding program, a suggestion from Richardson to develop a task force of community representatives on preparation of the detailed application for the program and a strongly worded Housing Commission minority urging rejection of the program.

Richardson said he hopes the proposal gains quick passage by the council and is not tied up in any additional delays.

HE NOTED THAT the city's application for the first year's funds, which amount to $139,000, must be completed by March 15, 1975.

"If we do not seek the money soon, we will be under a severe handicap to complete the application by the deadline," he said. "Under a somewhat complicated system, the city can seek 10 per cent of the $139,000 to help in the preparation."

Richardson said the city should hire additional staff to help in the preparation of the application. The detailed application calls on the city to prepare a housing-assistance plan and show how the funds will be used. While the money cannot be used to build housing for low- and moderate-income families, federal regulations call for the funds to be for public improvements for low- and moderate-income families or to prevent blight in neighborhoods.

The Housing Commission's minority report, which is signed by Commission Chairman Joseph Betto, Ted Sherwood and John Brennan, calls the program a "poor bargain for the city."

The strongest objectives are voiced over the fact that the program could obligate the city to abide by future court decisions dealing with regional housing plans for low- and moderate-income families.

THE REPORT urges that the city develop its own housing-assistance plan and not accept the federal money.

The report also notes the $2.5 million represents about three per cent of an estimated $75 million city budget over the next six years.

Richardson's task force proposal also suggests that one member from the beautification, environmental, historical, landmark, human relations and plan commission be named to the panel.

He also suggested representatives from the Des Plaines and Mount Prospect Park Districts be included on the task force. All city department heads would serve as ex-officio members of the group, he added.

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — horticulturalist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! Three cars damaged in chain collision

Three cars were involved in a chain-reaction accident Tuesday near Touhy Avenue and Westview Drive when one of the cars tried to change lanes but instead hit the car in front of it.

David C. Hoag, 26, of 145 Dover Dr., told police he was westbound on Touhy in back of a car driven by Richard E. Keshen, 46, of 138 Arizona, Hoffman Estates. Keshen was stopped to turn left and Hoag attempted to go around him, police said.

In trying to change lanes, the Hoag vehicle struck Keshen's car and pushed it into an oncoming eastbound car driven by Marion G. Hoas, 56, of 1701 W. Crescent, Park Ridge, whose car in turn struck a fire hydrant.

No one was injured in the accident. Hoag was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions and Keshen was cited for making an improper left turn. Both are scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Dec. 30.

Students in Don Kessel's seventh-grade science class are gaining a new respect for bridge builders.

As part of a class project, the youngsters are designing and building their own bridges from drinking straws, pins and string. The final products will be judged in the "If I Only Had a Second Chance Great Bridge Design Competition."

The students are building bridges with specifications set down by the class "city council," Kessel said.

"The council tells the kids what kind of bridge they want and how much material they can afford. It's up to the kids to design the bridge," he said.

ONE SET OF specifications calls for a bridge that allows two-way traffic for automobiles and pedestrians. There must be at least two inches' clearance between the bridge and the river and the students may use only 75 straws and pins.

"We'll test the strength of the bridge with weights. The one that is the strongest for the amount of material used wins the contract," Kessel said.

While the project helps students understand the concept of models, it also makes "interesting side trips into politics and economics," the Iroquois Junior High School teacher added.

"If the kids wanted to use more materials than allowed they had to petition the city council," he said. "They also had to put a lot of things in writing, like the schedule of construction."

STUDENTS ALSO spent time in the school library researching bridge spans and specifications for railroad rights-of-way. Principal Robert Klein acts as the city inspector, who checks the models periodically to ensure the bridges meet proper standards.

Kessel already has plans for demonstrating scientists' use of abstract models. In the next classroom project, students will assume the functions of various parts of a computer and simulate computer programming.

After Schaumburg ditch cave-in Wheeling man helps save life of construction boss

by STIRLING MORITA
A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

Palatine, Wheeling women wounded in shooting spree

by TOM VON MALDEN
Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lella Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kick. "He knew what he was doing."

Shotgun goes off, blasts trailer wall

Man saves construction worker's life

by STIRLING MORITA

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

HALLQUIST WAS administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Nowicki when Schaumburg firefighters arrived at the scene. The firemen worked feverishly for 45 minutes to dig out the trapped Nowicki and then transported him to the hospital in a department ambulance.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kick. "He knew what he was doing."

Police said Trentino Canale, who was in the ditch with Nowicki, reported that the walls of the eight-foot ditch caved in, pinning his boss to a large auger. Canale freed himself from the wet clay and ran to the nearby Starline office.

Hallquist said Canale came into the office and said to call the fire department. Another employee called, and Hallquist ran to the ditch, west of the building.

"I WENT THERE, and there was no response. I didn't like his color at all," Hallquist recalled. "He was not breathing at all."

Hallquist administered resuscitation, and Nowicki started breathing on his own. When firefighters attempted to free the man, Hallquist helped keep the oxygen mask on Nowicki's face. "He was certainly helpful throughout the extraction," Kick said.

Kick added it was difficult to dig in the ditch because there was about a ton of "soupy" clay around the victim, the owner of Nowicki Plumbing of Wood Dale.

Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

Driver cited in crash with county truck

A Roselle driver was ticketed by Elk Grove Village police for failure to yield right-of-way after a collision between her car and a Cook County Highway Dept. truck.

Mrs. Penelope Hess, 31, of 641 Brice Terr., Roselle, who was bruised in the collision, was ticketed for failure to yield when making a left turn after the accident at Arlington Heights and Higgins roads Wednesday. She is to appear in Elk Grove Village Circuit Court Dec. 18.

According to police reports, Mrs. Hess, westbound on Higgins Road, drove into the path of a truck eastbound on Higgins, when she attempted to make a left turn southbound on Arlington Heights Road.

The truck was driven by Michael Paltucci, 33, 53 Woodview Dr., Algonquin.

Police said Mrs. Hess's auto knocked over a traffic sign in the center island after the collision. She was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center by an Elk Grove Village ambulance where she was treated for a bruised right leg and released.

Shopping cart shoved through window

A $200 plate glass window was shattered Tuesday by a shopping cart at the Walgreen Drug Store in the Grove Shopping Center on Arlington Heights Road in Elk Grove Village.

According to police reports, vandals shoved the cart through the window shortly after closing. The broken window was discovered at 10:20 p.m. by an employee still in the store.

For village, Bensenville

Emergency water plan approved

An emergency water-distribution system between Elk Grove Village and Bensenville has been approved by Elk Grove Village officials.

Similar agreements to share water also are being planned by Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Schaumburg.

Elk Grove Village officials who approved the proposal Tuesday said the interconnection will be constructed without cost to either municipality.

Peter Kaleta, staff engineer, explained that R. W. Murray Co. of Illinois, developer of the Elk Grove Industrial Park, will bear the cost of the Bensenville interconnection.

Developers of the industrial park plan to extend Mark Street east into Bensenville where they also plan to develop an industrial site, Kaleta said.

WATER LINES and other underground improvements must be put in at the time the street is extended, he added.

"Since Bensenville has its water system in to that point also it makes good sense for our communities to interconnect," he said.

Village Engineer Don Cigala said water limitations use plans have not been made.

"The systems would not be merged and used only in an emergency situation, such as an endangered water supply because of a major breakdown, or big fire," Cigala said.

Cigala said Bensenville also has a connection and agreement with the city of Elmhurst. He added a similar agreement is contemplated with Schaumburg and Mount Prospect.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zetek said he has had preliminary discussions about a water system connection with Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"We've had a brief talk about emergency interconnection in general, and seem to agree it benefits both communities," Zetek said. "The interconnection would be at Busse Road and Oakton Street, when both communities develop to that point," Zetek said.

Teichert said Mount Prospect has a similar agreement with Arlington Heights and would not be adverse to an agreement with Elk Grove Village.

Correction

Voters in High School Dist. 211 approved $8.5 million in bonds last October for construction of a sixth high school, not $15.5 million as reported Wednesday by The Herald.

Dist. 211 has issued about $9 million in bonds, which were approved in a referendum for the sixth school in 1970. The district needed the additional $8.5 million to supplement these funds because the cost of the school has increased with inflation.

Dist. 211 is eligible for $5 million in state funds for construction of the new school. If the district accepts the money, $5 million of the bonds approved in October will not be sold.

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

Thanksgiving Morn

By 10 o'clock all must be ready; for in those good old times we eat dinner at noon. Yes, and we go to bed at dark.

In the morning at 5 o'clock a smell of new gingerbread, confused with the fragrance of Johnnycake, wakes us all. The little mother has rolled out first; skipped into the kitchen; raked open the fire and "set things going." You will smell sausages frying. In a moment, O, Lord! what a comfort there is in a nose! And that is why our Yankee noses were all so long. There were so many good things to smell. If we got to poking them into matters of religion and politics, it was only an afterthought.

There was no snow on that day that I remember and there had been none — not even a hard frost to pull down the red leaves and the yellow ones. Indian summer did not come as a separate gleam of sunny days after a spell of cold, but was a prolongation of the genuine October glory.

Bless my soul! But one can never in these days know what an old-fashioned autumn was or was like. There is now an everlasting toot, or screech of engines, tearing peace in two and splitting up the harmony of Indian (Continued on Page 4)

Village board wrapupPact OK'd for public works garage addition

Elk Grove Village officials awarded a $306,160 contract to Bergen Construction Co., Palatine, for an addition to the public works garage on Landmeier Road.

The cost of the 22,500-square-foot addition was trimmed about 20 per cent by the capital improvements committee and public works department in an effort to bring the project in line with available funds.

Bergen submitted the lowest of 15 bids. The basic bid of $643,900 included 13 alternatives such as indoor-outdoor kennels and extensive site work.

During a review, the kennel, site work, an overhead monorail, concrete salt bins and exterior lights and wiring were dropped from the plan for a total cut of $137,740.

Trustee Ronald Chernick said the kennels and site work will be done by the village at less cost and the other items will be added as soon as the budget allows.

In addition to the construction cost, architectural fees of $38,634 and $50,616 for contingencies and tests were approved, bringing the total cost to $505,110. Construction is expected to start this year with completion next summer.

St. Viator commended

The board adopted a resolution commending the St. Viator High School football team for a successful season, including sharing the championship of the East Suburban Catholic Conference and advancing to the quarter final round of the state high school football tournament.

Late principal praised

A resolution was passed commending the late Robert Haskell, principal of Elk Grove Village High School, for his dedication to the community and work with youths.

Wellington parking banned

Parking will be prohibited on the east side of Wellington Avenue for 1,030 feet south of Biesterfeld Road.

Zoning amendment delayed

Lack of a recommendation from the plan commission delayed village board action on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance regarding double frontage lots.

The ordinance prohibits construction of permanent structures or fences close to street lot lines. The amendment would allow those homeowners whose front and back yards front on streets to construct fences on the rear lot line. The plan commission is expected to make a recommendation by the Dec. 3 village board meeting.

Board to meet Dec. 23

The trustees rescheduled the Dec. 24 board meeting to Dec. 23. The board meets at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave., the first, second and fourth Tuesdays of every month.

Zetek is conference head

Village Pres. Charles Zetek will be installed as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference Jan. 15 at The Lancer Steak House in Schaumburg.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis will be installed as secretary.

by BOB GALLAS

Leaky faucets, guitars, sculpting, electronics and play productions are all becoming part of the regular school day at several junior high schools in the Northwest suburbs.

The schools are offering "mini courses" unusual or offbeat not-for-credit classes geared to student interests. The same classes are offered in two school districts, but on a credit basis, as part of the regular school day, graded the same as traditional courses, and are turning kids on to learning.

"It works well with our philosophy to expose students to a lot of ideas," said Donald Stipe, principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School. "With short courses you can do that," he added.

PALATINE HILLS, like other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, offers about 25 courses each year besides math, English, history and science.

Students can choose two 40-minute classes every 10 weeks, ranging from guitar and home handyman to co-ed shop and cooking.

At Thomas Junior High School, Arlington Heights, students can sign up for a special eight-week course five times a year. Teachers at the school say grading hasn't taken away any of the fun but has improved the courses.

"We wanted to give the classes more meaning," said Ruth Rowe, home economics teacher at the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school. "Before, the class met only once a week which wasn't enough time. It was just fun and games, a place to go."

"By inserting it in the daily schedule, the students are more receptive," Mrs. Rowe said.

BESIDES EXPOSING students to a variety of ideas and skills, the mini-courses also benefit the traditional courses, teachers say.

The classes allow the students mobility and a chance to let off steam, Stipe said. "It brightens up their day and gives them something to look forward to," he said. "You can't expect kids to sit still all day."

While critics of the mini-courses say the quick courses aren't long enough to teach anything, school officials say they don't have to.

"The students are just exposed to basics in class, but you should see what they bring back to school. Things they've done at home on their own," said Stipe. The principal pointed to case after case of needlework and handmade items displayed throughout the school.

"THE TEACHERS turn the kids on and give them just enough basics to go home and do it themselves," Stipe said.

The courses also have other advantages, teachers say. Students can find out early what they like and dislike, rather than finding out too late the career they've chosen doesn't appeal to them.

Stipe said it is difficult to gauge the success of incorporating unusual and different types of classes into the school day because the idea is so new. But he said early studies have shown the idea to have very positive effects on youngsters.

"The kids have a better self-image, and more confidence in themselves,"

3 windshields broken, $750 damage done

Vandals on a windshield-shattering spree in Elk Grove Village damaged three autos Tuesday night causing $750 worth of damage to cars in the Park-N-Shop center parking lot at Arlington Heights and Higgins Roads.

Police said all three cars were parked in the south side of the lot while the drivers were in the Elk Grove Bowl.

Lawrence Spiegler, 20, of 9100 Keating St., Skokie; William Schlager, 19, of 300 Thorndale St. and Dennis J. Wegryn, 29, of Elk Grove Village reported damage to their cars.

Two women wounded in shooting spree

by TOM VON MALDEN

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Letta Edgerton, 46, of 738 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Pettykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 635 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reportedly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Contex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1573 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

Seek no national support

SCOPP plans to hold convention

SCOPP, Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress, will hold a convention in early January to select its slate for the village election. David Johnson, temporary chairman, said Wednesday.

Johnson also said the new party will not seek support from either national political party in its April contest against the Schaumburg United Party (SUP).

Johnson said SCOPP will remain independent of both the Republican and Democratic parties of Schaumburg Township.

"My feeling is that national parties should remain neutral (in local elections)," Johnson said. He said his organization would not seek formal support from the national parties, although individuals working for SCOPP may have national party affiliations.

The Schaumburg Republican Municipal Central Committee of the township GOP organization has voted against taking part in the April village elections. Democratic Committeeman John Morrissey Tuesday said his party has not ruled out involvement in the village elections, but indicated support would be considered only if it were sought.

FORMATION OF SCOPP was announced last month. Johnson said the nominating convention will slate candidates for the village presidency, clerk's office and four trustee posts.

SUP, which has dominated village politics and now holds all elective offices, has named its ticket to be headed by Trustee Raymond Kessell for village president.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher, SUP leader, chose not to seek reelection to a fifth four-year term.

Procedures to be followed by SCOPP in selecting convention delegates and nominating candidates have yet to be completed, Johnson said. Meetings on that as well as platform policies are being held, the next scheduled for late next week, Johnson said.

SEVERAL PERSONS have discussed running for office with SCOPP members, Johnson said, but he declined to name them. "I would think they would make themselves known when they choose or at the convention," he said.

The village elections, particularly the village president's spot, may draw more attention and potential candidates in light of the $14,680 salary and compensation proposed for the position next year, Johnson added.

The president's office, to become a part-time position next year, would be the highest paid elective part-time office in the area if the proposed salary is approved by the village board.

"I think it might attract more people to run, but they still would have to be interested in public service," Johnson said. "It's a pretty good paying part-time job."

Vigilante move against vandalism threatened

A Schaumburg man told the village board his neighbors are on the verge of starting a vigilante committee to stop vandalism which has plagued homes on Pleasant Drive near Library Lane.

Joe Giunta, 302 N. Pleasant Dr., said youngsters have been blowing up mailboxes with firecrackers and tossing the small explosives at houses.

"They are up in arms. I fear something will happen," said Giunta.

He said the police department has been notified of the incidents and has responded to each complaint, but that they said they cannot stop the incidents without someone witnessing the acts.

Village Pres. Robert Atcher suggested Giunta meet with him and Police Chief Martin Conroy and see "if we can get any more patrolling in the area." He added that it was more of a parental responsibility to stop the vandalism and that vandalism is a difficult thing for police to prevent.

Conroy said Wednesday there have been many complaints, but that there was vandalism throughout the village. Vandalism is a nationwide problem, he added.

He said if a child sees a policeman, he's going to behave and that it's after the policeman is gone when the child may toss a rock at a window.

A new program started by Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 appears to be curbing school vandalism, Conroy said. The school district hires off-duty Schaumburg policemen to patrol different schools each night in hopes of discouraging break-ins and window breakage.

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Village board wrapup

Volkening farm annexation OKd

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher told the Schaumburg Village Board Tuesday that he hoped "a favor to the community" would be remembered when the Volkening farm is presented for a zoning change in the future.

The board approved annexation of the 160-acre Volkening farm near Walnut Lane and Schaumburg Road. Atcher said the Herman Volkengings agreed to the annexation so a proposed hospital site would be adjacent to village boundaries.

One of the conditions before Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center officials would agree to purchase a 40-acre tract just west of the Volkening farm was that the hospital site be annexed to the village — which could not be accomplished until the site was adjoining village boundaries.

"They're (the Volkengings) doing a favor for the community, and I'm just crossing my fingers this will be remembered," Atcher said, adding that he hoped the Volkening farm would not suffer the same fate as the Heritage Center property when it comes up for rezoning.

A development for the Volkening farm, which will include single-family housing, is being designed by The Planning Collaborative Ltd., Oak Brook.

Firefighters commended

Atcher presented certificates of commendation to seven members of the Schaumburg Fire Dept. for their roles last month in saving a Roselle Police Officer's life.

The certificates were sent by Roselle Police Chief James Monroe. Recipients were Lt. John Connolly and firefighters Thomas Saldiel, Dennis Bohn, John Dixon, James Pierce, Donald Kopecky and Vernon Malby. All except Kopecky and Malby were cited by the fire department for responding to the ambulance call while off-duty.

Munroe said the seven were instrumental in saving the life of Patrolman Cliff Colsten who was trapped inside his squad car when it was involved in an accident on Irving Park Road. "I think that if nothing else, this incident has demonstrated once again the value of mutual aid and that we do care about the life and safety of each other," Munroe wrote in the letter.

Jones Rd. section disannexed

The village board approved an ordinance disannexing Jones Road north of Higgins Road from the Village of Schaumburg.

The trustees waived first and second reading of the ordinance and voted unanimously for the disannexation. The Hoffman Estates Village Board is to consider annexation of the stretch of road.

Part of the road was in Schaumburg, and another section in Hoffman Estates. Recently, the two villages cooperated in a reconstruction project on the street. Trustees said the road should be totally in Hoffman Estates because its residents mostly used the roadway.

Pumpkin Hill action coming up

An ordinance for annexation and zoning of the 1,115-unit Pumpkin Hill development will be considered at the next village board meeting Tuesday.

Trustees approved first-reading of the ordinance. Algonquin Road Developers are seeking a zoning change to business special use for planned-unit developments and annexation for the 84-acre project at Algonquin and Quentin roads.

Streetlights for Weathersfield?

Street lighting in a special assessment package for the Weathersfield area of Schaumburg would cost homeowners about $1.24 million if approved.

Atcher said some Weathersfield residents had inquired about the costs of installing street lights as a deterrent to vandalism. There are about 1,000 homes in the area, and 385 lights would be needed at a cost of $2,800 each. The total cost for lighting just on Braintree Drive between Schaumburg and Wise roads would be $2,400.

Football team honored

Youngsters on the Commandos football team of the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. were honored by the village board Monday for their winning record this year. The team had a perfect 13-0 record.

Students to do newsletter

Journalism students at Harper College have agreed to prepare the village newsletter, Trustee Edward Hennessy said Monday.

Hennessy, chairman of the public information committee, said the students expressed interest in the offer made by the committee. Committee member Karen Corrigan, who formerly edited the newsletter, is moving from the village.

In another matter, Hennessy said his committee also suggested the village board offer a pin or token to persons who have contributed numerous times to the village blood drive. No action was taken, but the board expressed support for the proposal.

5 from Timbercrest must have sewer repairs or face suit

Five Timbercrest residents will be added as defendants in a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District against the Village of Schaumburg if they do not agree to sanitary sewer system repairs.

Jack Siegel, village attorney, told the village board Tuesday night that Circuit Court Judge Emmett Morrissey ordered that persons refusing the repairs be added to the case. The district is suing the village to correct storm drains that were mistakenly attached to the village sanitary system.

Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina said six home owners have agreed but five others have balked. Originally, there were 26 houses built by Mor-Well Builders, Timbercrest's developer, that were found to need corrections two years ago. Siegel said it was Mor-Well's contention that it didn't make the connections. The attorney said he hoped the remaining number of residents would comply. "It's out of our hands now," he said.

Installation of a sump pump will alleviate the problems at a cost of about $300 or $400, for each house.

Correction

Voters in High School Dist. 211 approved $6.5 million in bonds last October for construction of a sixth high school, not $15.5 million as reported Wednesday by The Herald.

Dist. 211 has issued about $9 million in bonds, which were approved in a referendum for the sixth school. In 1970, the district needed the additional $6.5 million to supplement these funds because the cost of the school has increased with inflation.

Dist. 211 is eligible for $3 million in state funds for construction of the new school. If the district accepts the money, $3 million of the bonds approved in October will not be sold.

Until budget study begins

Environment unit pay plan delayed

The question of pay for members of the environmental control commission in Hoffman Estates has been set aside until budget preparations begin early next year.

The village board agreed to table the matter Monday after little support for the proposal was generated.

Trustee William Cowin, finance committee chairman, said the matter was raised by environmental commission chairman Mark Karney. Cowin said the finance committee was not endorsing the pay proposal but raised the matter for discussion.

The nine-member commission, appointed by Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and the village board, works without pay as do several other committees, including the board of health, youth commission and board of police and fire commissioners.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL control commission was created this year by the village board. A provision for compensating the commission members was included in the ordinance creating the panel. Cowin said, but it states that compensation shall be what the village board deems appropriate.

Currently only the village plan commission and zoning board of appeals members are paid. Members of those panels receive $12.50 per meeting while their chairmen receive $25 per meeting. Youth commission chairman Frank Alexa also receives $50 per monthly meeting.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, in a memorandum to the board, said only three other area municipalities have environmental control commissions, two of which have paid members. Schaumburg commission members are paid $100 yearly with the chairman paid $150 yearly. In Arlington Heights payment for the chairman is $15 per meeting for two monthly meetings and $10 per meeting for members. Palatine commission members receive no pay, Longmeyer said.

MOST TRUSTEES indicated Monday payment to the commission would require similar compensation for other boards which now serve free. "I don't think we can make an exception for one over the other boards," Trustee Edward Hennessy said.

Trustee Melvin Timmons agreed, saying he "could not find a reason why" the environmental commission should be paid while other boards don't.

The discussion was tabled when Trustee Bruce Lind suggested the matter be studied when budget hearings for the next fiscal year begin in early 1975.

Land gifts for reservoir to save village $3 million?

A U.S. Soil Conservation Service official said Wednesday the Village of Schaumburg may be able to save $3 million by seeking land donations for a 114-acre flood-plain reservoir.

Bob Martin of the conservation service said the village could ask developers to contribute land around the western branch of Salt Creek rather than buy the property, at an estimated cost of $3 million.

Village board members expressed concern Tuesday night that the village would have to buy the property as part of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood-control program.

Village officials will learn of Schaumburg's responsibilities in the program at a meeting with soil conservation district officials Dec. 11 in Palatine.

Schaumburg Park District is negotiating to purchase land near Plum Grove and Schaumburg roads for a nature area, which would remain open space. Some of the proposed Spring Valley Nature Area is around a portion of the west branch.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said he received a letter from the conservation district that the village's contribution to the project would be the 114 acres on both sides of the Salt Creek branch. The estimated value of the land was placed at $1.14 million in the letter. Atcher said at today's land prices the value would be about $3 million. He added he hopes to get the land from donations.

Bullet hits fender on village truck

A bullet struck the side of a Village of Schaumburg truck Tuesday afternoon apparently as it traveled southbound on Roselle Road by the Town Square apartment complex, police were told.

Don Crosby, a water department employee, told police he was driving by the apartment complex about 12:45 p.m. when he heard something strike the right front fender of the vehicle.

He drove to the public works garage, where he discovered that a bullet had struck the same area of the truck, police said. It appeared to be a .22-caliber bullet, authorities said.

City drops tax enacted to pay for loan

Rolling Meadows officials have decided to eliminate the portion of a city tax levy enacted to meet this year's payment on a $321,000 loan to buy a municipal incinerator site.

The decision was made Wednesday by Mayor Roland J. Meyer, Treasurer Robert Cole and City Mgr. James Watson, who agreed at a city hall meeting that enough funds are available to reduce or abate the part of the levy intended to cover the loan payment.

The decision will mean a savings of about $8 or $9 on next year's tax bill for the average homeowner.

A tax levy was approved in September to pay for 6.7 acres which may be the site of a garbage incinerator. The city took out a four-year $321,000 loan from the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

Although residents will not have to pay for the installment in their 1975 property tax bill, it is uncertain whether the city will be able to abate other local taxes as has been the policy in the past. Meyer Wednesday said he hopes other taxes can be eliminated but no decision was made.

THE CITY COUNCIL has approved a $985,687 general tax levy. A December 31 abatement resolution may include part of that levy, but just how much has not been determined. City officials expect to have a more clear picture of any additional abatements by Tuesday night's meeting of the finance committee.

The actual homeowner tax rate will not be available until next spring, when Cook County will apply the levy to total assessed property values in the city to arrive at a rate per $100 assessed valuation.

At Tuesday night's finance committee meeting, Watson, also finance officer, is expected to present data to determine just how much of a surplus can be planned for the carryover into the next fiscal year. Watson has compiled an estimate of city operating expenses, including payrolls but not capital expenditures, for the remainder of the 1974-75 fiscal year, until April 30. His projection totaled almost $1.7 million. By Tuesday, he plans to break that figure down into fund-by-fund categories, showing the amount to be spent for payrolls and normal operating expenses for each city department.

Those figures will be compared with revenue fund totals compiled by Cole, which showed total cash on hand and revenue anticipated for the rest of the year of about $2.2 million.

THAT LEAVES THE city with about $593,800 in cash now available or due during the year for capital expenditures and for the surplus to be carried over into 1975-76.

When Meyer, Cole and Watson met Wednesday, they reviewed requests for capital expenditures from public works, police and fire departments.

Public Works Supt. John Hennessy submitted the highest request, asking for expenditures of $404,200. Not included, but approved at Tuesday's council meeting, was a $21,754 payment for sewer and water main installations, taking Hennessy's total up to almost $430,000.

Eliminated from Hennessy's request were an additional 225,000 garbage bags, which he sought to buy soon because price increases are anticipated; three vehicles; a steam cleaner for mechanical equipment; a garbage truck chassis, to be deferred until next year; and a cab for a backhoe which Meyer and Watson said would be used rarely.

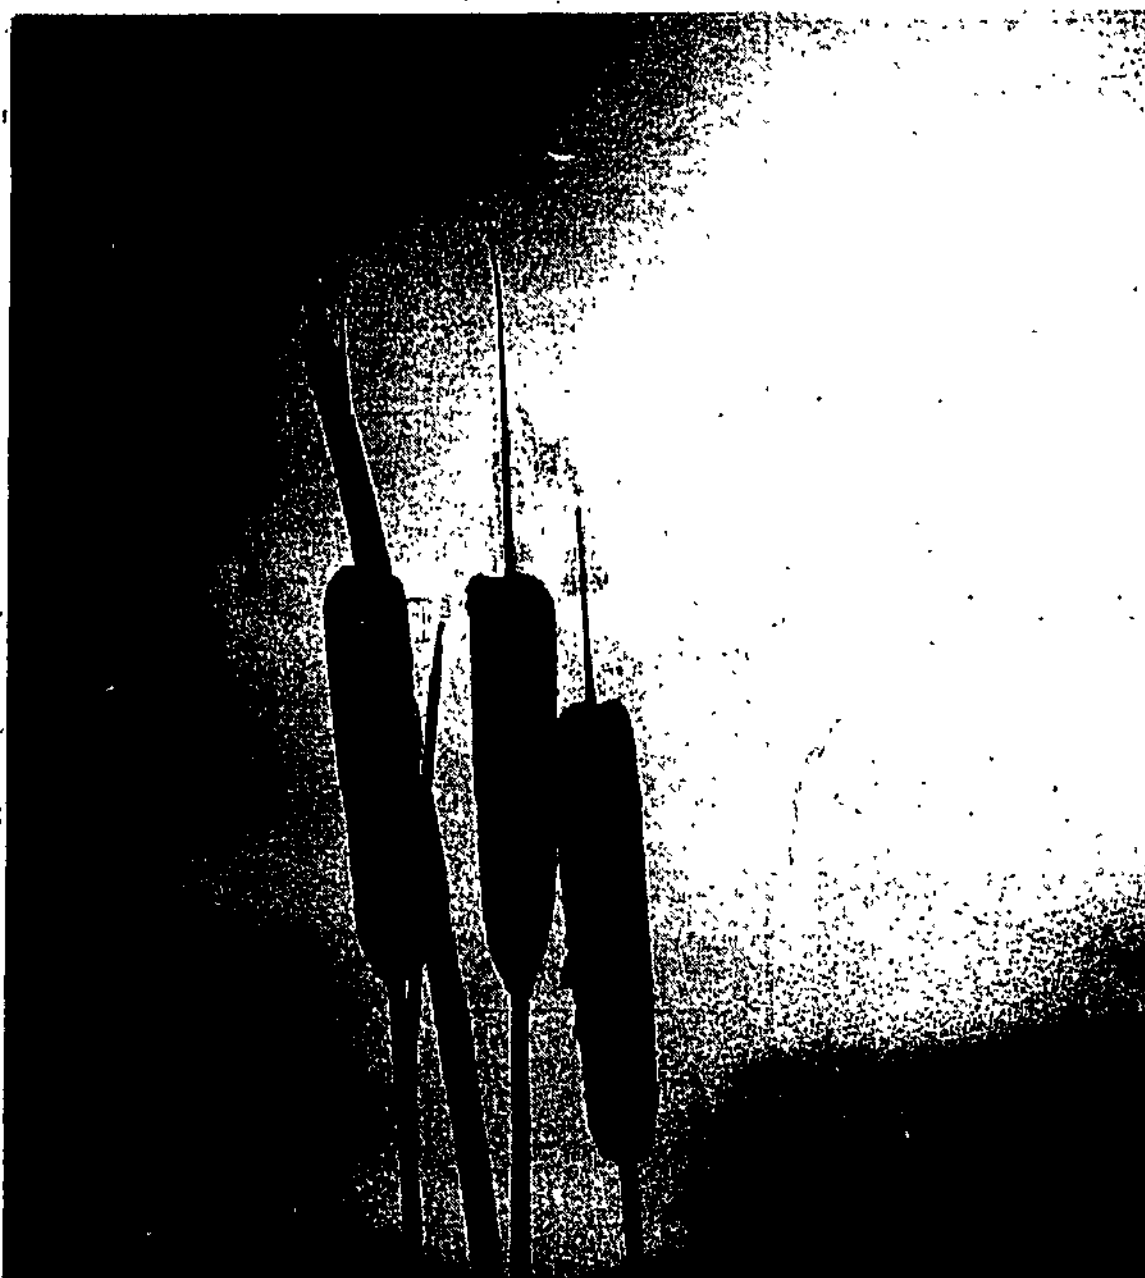

Two sewer construction items were removed from Hennessy's request, but were not necessarily eliminated. A sewer along Salt Creek can be financed from federal revenue sharing funds.

IF BIDS EXCEED the $150,000 estimated cost, it could be delayed. The other sewer project has already been bid, and quotes were much higher than anticipated. But the city does not expect to pay for the project until next year, and may rebid it or negotiate for a lower price.

A police request for funds for four squad cars and a portable radio was not altered. Meyer, Cole and Watson also left intact the fire department's request for $33,800 for an ambulance, paramedic equipment, an air compressor and now drapes for firemen's quarters. The ambulance cost, estimated at $25,000, will actually be about half that figure if the city obtains matching funds from the federal government, as is expected.

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

Thanksgiving Morn

By 10 o'clock all must be ready; for in those good old times we eat dinner at noon. Yes, and we go to bed at dark.

In the morning at 5 o'clock a smell of new gingerbread, confused with the fragrance of Johnnycake, wakes us all. The little mother has rolled out first; skipped into the kitchen; raked open the fire and "set things going." You will smell sausages frying, in a moment. O, Lord! what a comfort there is in a nose! And that is why our Yankee noses were all so long. There were so many good things to smell. If we got to poking them into matters of religion and politics, it was only an afterthought.

There was no snow on that day that I remember and there had been none — not even a hard frost to pull down the red leaves and the yellow ones. Indian summer did not come as a separate gleam of sunny days after a spell of cold, but was a prolongation of the genuine October glory.

Bless my soul! But one can never in these days know what an old-fashioned autumn was or was like. There is now an everlasting foot, or screech of engines, tearing loose in two and splitting up the harmony of Indian (Continued on Page 4)

Palatine resident hit

by TOM VON MALDER

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lella Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reported-ly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

Bluebirds first group to tour new building

A troop of Bluebirds, the youngest division of Camp Fire Girls, was the first to tour the Crossroads of Commerce building under construction by Kenroy, Inc., on Algonquin Road near Ill. Rte. 53.

The Bluebirds, from the Maine-Niles townships district, visited the building Wednesday. Kenroy spokesmen said they also would welcome school groups, especially those interested in architecture.

The exterior of the building is completed, and some of the interior is occupied. But the interiors of several floors still are in various stages of completion. The tour includes visits to the 10th floor.

Groups interested in the tour should call Kenroy offices at 396-3910.

Bid to remove diseased tree stumps approved

A negotiated bid for removing stumps of diseased trees in Rolling Meadows was approved by the city council this week.

Fowler Tree Co. quoted a price of $4 cents per stump-inch in negotiations with the city's public works staff. The city received only one bid in advertised sealed bidding procedures. The bid of Davey Tree Co. was $1.40 per stump-inch.

Sewer, water payments OK'd

Payment of $21,754.66 for sewer and water mains installed on city property was approved by the village board.

The funds are to be paid to Rossetti Contracting Co., the installer, and Fletcher Engineering Co., the city's consulting engineers.

The city will reserve two per cent of the approved payment pending final inspections and city council acceptance of the work.

Christmas trees will be sold in Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, Kirchhoff Road and Meadow Drive, beginning Dec. 8.

The council approved the annual Rolling Meadows Jaycee tree sale, to end Dec. 24, with the requirement that all debris be removed by Dec. 28.

Python variances approved

The council approved building code variances requested by Python Designers-Builders, Inc. for its second-phase office center project in the industrial park off Algonquin Road.

The variances will allow reductions of fire code requirements and were approved by the city fire department. In reviewing the request, the department noted fire detection and prevention devices to be included in the building, which made the variances permissible.

Python will be allowed to reduce fire resistance ratings for walls in limited areas and eliminate smoke detectors in all locations except at return air-duct openings on each floor.

General Time sign allowed

The council also approved a sign variation requested by General Time Corp. and approved appointment of members of the finance, ordinance and judiciary committee to review a sign variance request from Plum Grove Bank.

OK sought to kill small fish at Three Fountains

Apartment owners at Three Fountains on the Lake development in Rolling Meadows are seeking state permission to kill small fish in a lake at the complex to improve the lake's environmental balance.

The Three Fountains condominium association has asked for permission from the Illinois Pollution Control Board to kill the fish.

The measure, suggested by the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, is being studied by state environmental officials, who will make a recommendation to the pollution control board.

Timothy Anderson, 5500 Carriageway Dr., president of the association, said the small fish would be killed with antimony.

Ice on area ponds not safe for skating

Winter weather soon will be freezing local ponds, but the Rolling Meadows Park District warns against skating on new ice until conditions are safe.

Stephen Person, park superintendent, said that a long period of sub-freezing temperatures is necessary to build up a suitable thickness of ice for skating. The park district places barrels on Kimball Hill pond, its outdoor skating area, when the ice is not safe. You may skate when no barrels are present on the ice, he said.

The park district will make periodic reports on the condition of its outdoor ice as the season continues.

Recycling days to aid church women's unit

The Rolling Meadows recycling, ecology and beautification committee will hold its Dec. 7 and Dec. 21 recycling days to help women's groups of Rolling Meadows churches.

Families bringing recyclable items to the public works building on those Saturdays should mention the name of the church they represent. At the end of the day, each church's women's group will receive a percentage of the recycling profits.

The committee will hold a similar program for local PTAs in January and February.

ELECTRIC CIRCUITS and repair of appliance cords are studied by students at Thomas Junior High School in Arlington Heights as part of a "mini-course" offered in numerous junior highs allowing students to take classes geared to their interests. John Weaver and Sheri Friebus work with a circuit board.

Guitar, sculpting, co-ed shop

by BOB GALLAS

Leaky facuets, guitars, sculpting, electronics and play productions are all becoming part of the regular school day at several junior high schools in the North-west suburbs.

The schools are offering "mini courses," unusual or offbeat not-for-credit classes geared to student interests. The same classes are offered in two school districts, but on a credit basis, as part of the regular school day, graded the same as traditional courses, and are turning kids on to learning.

"It works well with our philosophy to expose students to a lot of ideas," said Donald Stipe, principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School. "With short courses you can do that," he added.

PALATINE HILLS, like other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, offers about 25 courses each year besides math, English, history and science. Students can choose two 40-minute classes every 10 weeks, ranging from guitar and home handyman to co-ed shop and cooking.

At Thomas Junior High School, Arlington Heights, students can sign up for a special eight-week course five times a year. Teachers at the school say grading hasn't taken away any of the fun but has improved the courses.

"We wanted to give the classes more meaning," said Ruth Rowe, home economics teacher at the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school. "Before, the class met only once a week which wasn't enough time. It was just fun and games, a place to go."

"By inserting it in the daily schedule, the students are more receptive," Mrs. Rowe said.

BESIDES EXPOSING students to a variety of ideas and skills, the mini-courses also benefit the traditional courses, teachers say.

The classes allow the students mobility and a chance to let off steam, Stipe said. "It brightens up their day and gives them something to look forward to," he said. "You can't expect kids to sit still all day."

While critics of the mini-courses say the quick courses aren't long enough, to teach anything, school officials say they don't have to.

"The students are just exposed to basics in class, but you should see what they bring back to school. Things they've done at home on their own," said Stipe. The principal pointed to case after case of needlework and handmade items displayed throughout the school.

"THE TEACHERS turn the kids on and give them just enough basics to go home and do it themselves," Stipe said.

The courses also have other advantages, teachers say. Students can find out early what they like and dislike, rather than finding out too late the career they've chosen doesn't appeal to them.

Stipe said it is difficult to gauge the success of incorporating unusual and different types of classes into the school day because the idea is so new. But he said early studies have shown the idea to have very positive effects on youngsters.

"The kids have a better self-image, and more confidence in themselves."

Agency finds village needs more firemen

by DIANE MERMIGAS

An insurance rating agency has found that the Palatine Fire Dept. is substantially undermanned and predicted that an around-the-clock protection system, to begin Jan. 1, will worsen the problem unless more firemen are hired.

Marvin L. Austin, supervisor at Insurance Services Office, an independent rating service, said the department would be spreading its full-time firemen "too thin" in the new system. The system only will be effective if it can be started with nine additional full-time firemen, Austin said.

Village Mgr. Austin would not comment on the possibility of hiring additional firemen before the new system begins.

ABOUT NINE more full-time firemen would give the department a sufficient force to begin the program, the agency report said.

The report said the fire department now has 84 per cent less manpower on duty than it should have during the day, and 79 per cent less manpower than it should have on duty in the nights compared to state standards.

The evaluation agency concluded that the fire department's daytime manpower would be 88 per cent below what it should be if the new around-the-clock fire system was started even with 13 full-time firemen.

The fire department presently has 11 full-time firemen although the village will hire two more full-time firemen in mid-December as budgeted for this year. This will give the department a total of 13 full-time firemen to begin the program.

THE NEW "24-7" fire system will require a minimum shift of four full-time firemen on duty at each fire station for 24 hours at a time. Volunteer firemen would continue responding to major fire calls and would be paid for each call they respond to.

Austin said the new working hours will spread the full-time firemen "too thin," although the new program is being started because there are no firemen on duty in the fire stations on the weekends.

The department's present system requires five full-time firemen to work an eight-hour shift on the weekdays. There are two eight-hour shifts a day, from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 2 to 10 p.m., and three volunteer firemen are on duty on the weeknights. There are no firemen on duty at either of the two fire stations during the weekends when firemen respond to fire calls from their homes.

Harwig requested that the agency evaluate the fire department before the 24-hour service begins.

THE INSURANCE Services Office of Illinois, which rates fire departments every 10 years to determine area residents' insurance rates, evaluated the Palatine Fire Dept. in October.

Austin said he was not certain whether the greater manpower deficiency under the new system would be enough to give the fire department a worse fire rating. The fire department presently has a rating of six for its service in the village and 9 for service in unincorporated areas of Palatine Township. Ten is considered the worst rating. Higher ratings result in higher fire insurance premiums for residents.

The Insurance Services Office rates fire departments on the adequacy of manpower, equipment, water supplies, training, placement of stations in relation to the area's population and building density.

THE PALATINE department will be rated again in 1977. Austin said Harwig will probably ask the agency to evaluate the new "24-7" fire system once it has been developed.

"I think that Palatine is trying to maintain its present fire rating or at least improve its rating, while making this change in its fire protection system," Austin said.

"The new proposed system that Palatine has could improve its fire rating in time as more full-time men are added and as their facilities and services are expanded," Austin said.

A Thanksgiving to remember A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for sump (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted a sump. Sump is a lost art. A kettle of sump, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

Thanksgiving Morn

By 10 o'clock all must be ready; for in those good old times we eat dinner at noon. Yes, and we go to bed at dark.

In the morning at 5 o'clock a smell of now gingerbread, confused with the fragrance of johnnycake, wakes us all. The little mother has rolled out first; skipped into the kitchen; raked open the fire and "set things going." You will smell sausages frying, in a moment. O, Lord! what a comfort there is in a nose! And that is why our Yankee noses were all so long. There were so many good things to smell. If we got to poking them into matters of religion and politics, it was only an afterthought.

There was no snow on that day that I remember and there had been none — not even a hard frost to pull down the red leaves and the yellow ones. Indian summer did not come as a separate gleam of sunny days after a spell of cold, but was a prolongation of the genuine October glory.

Bless my soul! But one can never in these days know what an old-fashioned autumn was or was like. There is now an everlasting toot, or screech of engines, tearing peace in two and splitting up the harmony of Indian (Continued on Page 4)

Palatine resident hit

by TOM VON MALDER

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lella Edgerton, 46, of 738 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Potykowski, 238 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Potykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Potykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reportedly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

Inverness to get village police protection

The Palatine Village Board has entered into a $24,000 contract to provide police protection for the Village of Inverness until April 30.

Under the terms of the contract the Palatine Police Department will provide eight hours of regular patrol in Inverness and respond to calls 24 hours a day.

Additional patrol or investigative hours beyond the eight hours of regular patrol will be billed to Inverness on an hourly rate. The contract takes effect Dec. 1.

Inverness has been receiving police protection from Palatine for three years under a $60,000 a year contract that expires Nov. 30.

Palatine officials believed they were losing money under this contract and hope the hourly charge for additional patrol and investigative hours will solve the problem.

Action barred until after Jan. 13 merger

Disannex from rural parks costly

Palatine Rural Park District officials will not allow property owners to disannex from the district until after the Jan. 13 park merger and then it will likely be too costly for most residents.

The decision was made by the rural commissioners after residents of several areas in the district recently proposed disannexation in order to avoid paying higher taxes or annex into a park district closer to their boundaries.

Rural park district officials said there would not be enough time to complete the paperwork necessary for disannexation prior to the district's tentative merger with the Palatine Park District Jan. 13. Disannexation petitions are required by law to be on file with the park district for 30 days.

REPRESENTATIVES OF the Rolling Meadows Park District said it would take at least one month to draw up a disconnection petition to present to the rural park board. Disannexation petitions are required by law to be on file with the park district for 30 days, so it would take at least two months until the area could be disconnected from the rural park district.

Roger Bjorvik, attorney for the rural park district, said that if residents in the unincorporated area wanted to disannex from the combined park district after the merger, "they would still be responsible for paying part of the bonded indebtedness of the combined district."

"The residents, who would annex into the Rolling Meadows district, also would be responsible for paying the normal taxes in that park district," he said. Paying both taxes is expected to be so costly for most residents that it would discourage them from such a move.

But residents of the area, which eventually will include 350 to 400 houses, will assume the bonded indebtedness of the combined Palatine park district after the merger even if they annex into the Rolling Meadows district. Residents could have an approximate tax rate of 77 cents per $100 assessed valuation if they became part of the Rolling Meadows Park District while still paying off the merged Palatine park district's bonds, said Raymond Neukrantz, president of the Rolling Meadows park board.

IF THE TWO Palatine park districts do not merge, Neukrantz said he has been assured by the president of the Palatine rural district that the parcel will be disannexed from the rural district "without any problem," he said.

Representatives of the Rolling Meadows district have requested that the rural park district disannex a large parcel bounded on the north by Emerson Street and Kirchhoff Road, on the west by Quentin Road, on the south by Algonquin Road, and on the east by Ill. Rte. 53. The land then would be annexed to Rolling Meadows. Rural officials refused to consider the disannexation until after the merger.

"Residents in the unincorporated areas who live close to our park district have asked me many times how they can permanently become a part of it. I am working on their behalf to see if we can annex some of this area into Rolling Meadows," Neukrantz said.

Lions sell fruitcakes

The Palatine Lions Club still is selling fruitcakes for the holiday seasons.

Three-pound fruitcakes are being sold for $4. The fruitcakes can be ordered by calling 358-4330 or 358-3274. Proceeds from the fruitcake sale will be used by the Lions for activities for the blind with the village.

Correction

Voters in High School Dist. 211 approved $8.5 million in bonds last October for construction of a sixth high school, not $15.5 million as reported Wednesday by The Herald.

Dist. 211 has issued about $9 million in bonds, which were approved in a referendum for the sixth school in 1970. The district needed the additional $8.5 million to supplement these funds because the cost of the school has increased with inflation.

Dist. 211 is eligible for $5 million in state funds for construction of the new school. If the district accepts the money, $5 million of the bonds approved in October will not be sold.

Christmas tree sale opens here Saturday

Three types of Christmas trees will be on sale at the Palatine Jaycee Christmas tree lot when it opens Saturday at the Palatine Community Park exit drive on Palatine Road.

The Jaycees will be selling 500 Scotch pines and 500 Norwegian pines for $7 and up. There also will be 200 soft needled white pine trees for $8 and up.

The Christmas tree lot will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekends and 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays until Christmas.

A turkey will be raffled by the Jaycees each week. Registration forms for the turkey raffle are available at the Christmas tree lot.

The Jaycees will be collecting green stamps in a drop-off box on the lot. The stamps are being collected to support a camp for mentally and physically handicapped children in Shelbyville. The Jaycees hope to collect 20,000 books of $4.11 green stamps from residents. For each book collected the Sperry Hutchinson Co. will donate $2.

Proceeds from the Christmas tree sale will be placed in the Jaycee general fund to support community projects during the year.

A 66-year-old Palatine woman is in serious condition after being struck Monday by an automobile while crossing at Ashland Street and Palatine Road.

Bertha Dallmeyer, 103 S. Ashland St., was taken to Northwest Community Hospital by Palatine Fire Dept. paramedics. Bonnie S. Bryant, 25, of 700 Jones Rd., Hoffman Estates, was ticketed by Palatine police for failure to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian in an unmarked crossing. She is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Dec. 12.

Appeal drive at 2/3 of $31,000 goal

The 1974 Mount Prospect Combined Appeal drive is more than two-thirds of the way to its $31,000 goal, but the president of the drive said it will be "touch and go" as to whether we make the goal.

Harold J. Predovich, president of the Combined Appeal, said that a total of $23,144, or 68 per cent of the goal, has been collected. "But the drive is beginning to flatten out rather rapidly," he said. "We are almost $8,500 ahead of where we were last year, but last year we hadn't flattened out as quickly."

Predovich said that while the average gift this year is larger than in the past, the number of people contributing to the campaign has declined significantly.

FOR EXAMPLE, last year at this time eight per cent of those people contacted had contributed, while this year only five per cent of those contacted have contributed.

In the Mount Prospect residential campaign, $8,900 has been collected, the same amount collected last year at this time. But Predovich said that 8 per cent fewer people have contributed while the average gift is up from $9.90 to $10.60.

In the Prospect Heights residential campaign, Predovich said the campaign now is $35 ahead of last year with $1,475 collected. The average gift is up about $1 over last year, but about 14 per cent fewer people have contributed.

"There are fewer people contributing," Predovich said. "Those who are contributing are contributing more. This thread is running through the entire residential campaign."

In the retail business campaign, however, the average gift is $70 compared to last year's $45, and the participation is up as well. A total of $4,028 has been collected this year, representing 77 per cent of the $5,200 goal.

PREDOVICH SAID response so far has been poor in both the professional and municipal sections of the campaign. He said he is uncertain about contributions from the schools, which have been traditionally a strong part of the campaign.

"We're up at this point in the schools, but I am fearful that we may not get as much as last year," Predovich said. "In one district, pledges we have received are less than last year, and we have yet to get them from the others."

A special part of this year's campaign, said Predovich, was a drive sponsored by the employees at the Clearbrook Center, one of the agencies funded by the Combined Appeal. That drive raised $1,300 with $177 going to the Mount Prospect campaign.

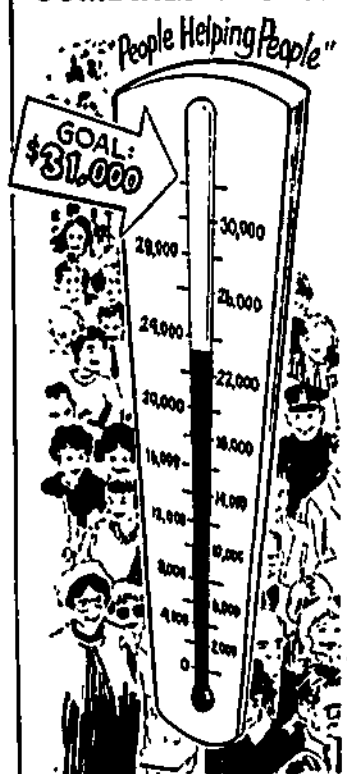

Noting that contributions to the Combined Appeal usually drop off as the holidays approach, Predovich asked residents to remember the campaign over Thanksgiving.

"We are very grateful to those people who have supported us," he said. "As long as they continue to support these agencies, the services they provide will be available to us."

Agencies funded by the drive include the Camp Fire Girls, Clearbrook, Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, North Cook County 4-H Club, Northwest Mental Health Assn., Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded, Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts, Northwest Suburban Day Care Center, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, the YMCA, the Chicago USO and the Salvation Army.

Contributions can be sent to Post Office Box 294, Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056.

MT. PROSPECT COMBINED APPEAL

Palatine resident hit

by TOM VON MALDER

Two women were wounded, one seriously, Wednesday in a shooting spree on W. Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Doctors at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines plan to operate today to remove a pellet or bullet fragment that struck Lella Edgerton, 46, of 738 Lake View Dr., Wheeling in the head.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Edgerton was "holding her own" in fair condition. Mrs. Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet or bullet shattered the passenger's side window. A fragment of the pellet or bullet and some glass struck Mrs. Edgerton, police said.

Police later confiscated a .22-caliber pistol owned by a youth who was sought for questioning in the shooting, according to an unconfirmed report.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reportedly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being sought to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

A Thanksgiving to remember

A century ago, aromas and warm laughter filled country kitchens

Today is Thanksgiving, the one holiday of the year that is all America's own. Residents of the Northwest suburbs, like persons across the nation, will get into their cars and drive to their relatives for some store-bought turkey and an afternoon of football on color television sets.

More than 100 years ago there was another kind of Thanksgiving, a Thanksgiving of a simpler time. The feast came from the fields and the relatives came by buggy to celebrate and give thanks with their families.

Edward Payson Powell — Unitarian minister, author, amateur horticulturist, lecturer and philosopher — wrote about that time. Powell, great-grandfather of Herald business writer Lea Tonkin, reminisces about his boyhood Thanksgivings in an unpublished book, "Ye Golden Days of Ye Old Farmhouse," which he wrote before he died in 1915. Following is an excerpt from that book:

by Edward Payson Powell (1833-1915)

Thanksgiving Eve

Did you ever see a Dutch oven? Ah, that was a sight! It was one-half of the chimney, with a huge door that shut it tight.

The oven was in one side of the huge kitchen. The old-fashioned kitchen was a room and it meant something. It was full to the brim. All along the rafters or beams were strings of apples, drying. Bags of herbs hung on another beam; and sausages! Oh, such strings! You would hit your head as you went along if you did not think at just the right spot. I remember it is not nice at all — the slap of a soft bunch of fresh sausages on the nose! There is corn trussed up to dry quickly after husking so as to make it fit for samp (corn mush).

It is now fifty years, I am sure, since anyone has tasted samp. Samp is a lost art. A kettle of samp, if you could have looked into it, was the color of gold, only a good deal richer; and the smell! There is nothing on earth left to compare it with. It must boil all day; and simmer all night. Tomorrow it is eaten in huge bowls of milk.

Thanksgiving Morn

By 10 o'clock all must be ready; for in those good old times we eat dinner at noon. Yes, and we go to bed at dark.

In the morning at 5 o'clock a smell of new gingerbread, confused with the fragrance of Johnnycake, wakes us all. The little mother has rolled out first; skipped into the kitchen; raked open the fire and "set things going." You will smell sausages frying, in a moment. O, Lord! what a comfort there is in a nose! And that is why our Yankee noses were all so long. There were so many good things to smell. If we got to poking them into matters of religion and politics, it was only an afterthought.

There was no snow on that day that I remember and there had been none — not even a hard frost to pull down the red leaves and the yellow ones. Indian summer did not come as a separate gleam of sunny days after a spell of cold, but was a prolongation of the genuine October glory.

Bless my soul! But one can never in these days know what an old-fashioned autumn was or was like. There is now an everlasting toot, or screech of engines, tearing peace in two and splitting up the harmony of Indian (Continued on Page 4)

Wheeling man helps save life of construction boss

by STIRLING MORITA

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Center Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpelt Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 700 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

HALLQUIST WAS administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Nowicki when Schaumburg firefighters arrived at the scene. The firemen worked feverishly for 45 minutes to dig out the trapped Nowicki and then transported him to the hospital in a department ambulance.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kiek. "He knew what he was doing."

Police said Trentino Canale, who was in the ditch with Nowicki, reported that the walls of the eight-foot ditch caved in, pinning his boss to a large auger. Canale freed himself from the wet clay and ran to the nearby Starline office.

Hallquist said Canale came into the office and said to call the fire department. Another employee called, and Hallquist ran to the ditch, west of the building.

"I WENT THERE, and there was no response. I didn't like his color at all," Hallquist recalled. "He was not breathing at all."

Hallquist administered resuscitation, and Nowicki started breathing on his own. When firefighters attempted to free the man, Hallquist helped keep the oxygen mask on Nowicki's face. "He was certainly helpful throughout the extraction," Kiek said.

Kiek added it was difficult to dig in the ditch because there was about a ton of "soupy" clay around the victim, the owner of Norwick Plumbing of Wood Dale.

Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

THREE MOUNT PROSPECT firemen Wednesday checked for flames in a garage at 510 E. Rand Rd., after a blaze in the garage was extinguished. The cause of the 10:26 a.m. fire is unknown, but it apparently started near an air compressor. Damage was about $1,500 to the garage and contents. Firemen also were called out to a $1,000 fire at a trailer, 500 W. Touhy Ave., owned by Jinia Love. The probable cause was a short in an electrical can opener, which set a counter afire.

Santa visits Randhurst

Santa Claus will arrive Friday morning at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

He is expected around 9:25 a.m. The Hersey High School Band will entertain beginning at 8:30 a.m. WGN's television personality, Ned Locke, and Cookie the Clown will arrive at 9 a.m. and entertain until Santa's appearance.

Christmas stamps on sale

Two 10-cent traditional Christmas postage stamps are now on sale at the Mount Prospect Post Office, 202 E. Evergreen.

One stamp features "The Perseus Altarpiece," which was taken from a large oil painting now on exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. Details include an angel in flight.

The second stamp is based on an 1853 lithographic print by Currier and Ives. The design, called "The Road — Winter," shows a man and woman in a horse-drawn sleigh moving through a wintry scene.

The post office will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, including carrier mail service and the lock box section. Collection service will be at white star boxes only. Only special delivery and perishable mail will be delivered on the holiday.

Stamps may be purchased at the vending machine in the outer lobby of the post office.

Extensioneers party

The Mount Prospect Extensioneers will hold their annual Christmas party Dec. 12 at the Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main.

A catered luncheon will be served at 12:15 p.m. Cost is $1 to members who must make reservations by Dec. 8.

The program includes singing by the Hersey High School choral group and by Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert J. Epley.

The Extensioneers will hold a meeting Dec. 5 from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor, will speak on senior citizen grants.

New pastor appointed

The Rev. Anastasy Tzonis was appointed the new pastor of Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church of Mount Prospect.

Formerly of the Holy Trinity Orthodox Church at Clayton, Wis. The Rev. Mr. Tzonis attended St. Vladimir's Seminary in New York. He formerly served St. Nicholas Church in New York, St. Peter and Paul Church in Philadelphia and St. Michael's Orthodox Church in Sitka, Alaska.

He will deliver sermons on 10 a.m. Sundays at Prospect High School, 801 E. Kensington.

The Rev. Mr. Tzonis can be reached at 321 E. Algonquin Rd. in Arlington Heights, 393-3090.

Club seeks donations

The Mount Prospect Extensioneers are seeking donations of sundry items to give the Chicago Christian Industrial League.

The club members need the following items to assemble men's kits: shoe laces, toothpaste, toothbrushes, razors and blades, soap, washcloths, pens, pencils, stamped stationery and other usable items.

Donations may be brought to Louis's Barber Shop, 9 E. Prospect. Items must be brought before Dec. 14.

The club members also are donating six handmade quilts to the league.

Reduced price meals offered

Nazarene Nursery School, 1501 Linnean Rd., Mount Prospect is offering free and reduced prices on meals for children enrolled at the school and unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the school food services program.

The school has a sliding scale used to determine eligibility according to family income and number of persons in the family.

For more information parents of enrolled children should contact officials at the school. All application information is confidential.

Student back from London

Paul Marcotte, a junior journalism major at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, will return to his home in Mount Prospect, in early December after spending four months in London with the university's "Semester in Britain" program.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marcotte Sr., 1707 Catalpa Ln., Paul is among 40 students living and studying at Peace Haven, an international friendship house used as the university's London headquarters. Students study with both American and British professors and often pursue independent projects in the field of their major.

Baha'i offers film

The Mount Prospect Baha'i Community, in commemoration of three Holy Days in November, will present a film, "Abdul-Baha: Glimpses of Perfection," Friday.

The presentation will begin at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lee Hoffman, 420 N. Maple, Mount Prospect.

Baha'is are celebrating the 157th anniversary of the birth of Baha'u'llah, the prophet and founder of the Baha'i faith.

Two other Holy Days being celebrated are the Day of Covenant and the Ascension of 'Abdul-Baha, the son of Baha'u'llah.

The public is invited to view the film composed primarily of photographs taken during 'Abdul-Baha's visit to America in 1912.

Santa arriving at plaza

Santa Claus will arrive at Mount Prospect Plaza at Rand and Central roads on Friday in a scaled-down model T-Ford.

Santa will stay in his headquarters at the center of the mall until Dec. 23. Mrs. Claus also will appear and will help take pictures of children with Santa.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. to noon, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Santa will open his doors from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Assn. will sponsor special lunches with Santa in a private dining room at the Scandia House on Dec. 7, 14 and 21.

Luncheons are limited to 50 children and their parents each day.

Santa will entertain with favorite Christmas stories and songs. Each child will receive a toy.

Tickets may be purchased at Santa's headquarters. Groups of 25 or more may make special arrangements by calling Adele Jeschke, public relations director for the shopping center at 253-0644.

How much are children learning?

Test scores situation 'confusing'

by JUDY JOBBITT
A news analysis

Confusion reigns in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 over just how much children are learning.

Two sets of contradictory figures show students are "average" and "above average" — and both sets are right.

Parents in Dist. 21 have complained that standardized test scores show children are only doing average work in a community with above-average resources.

The scores are determined by student performances on tests that cover material they "should know" in their year and month of school. Dist. 21 students scored at or slightly above their grade levels on the national tests, showing they know what they should — or a little more.

However, another set of figures — percentiles — which compare Dist. 21 student scores to scores throughout the nation, show they are doing better than most of their peers.

STUDENTS IN THE third grade scored 75 per cent; fourth grade scored 58.57 per cent; fifth grade scored 63.85 per cent; sixth grade scored 59.42 per cent; seventh grade scored 54.3 per cent and eighth grade scored 54 per cent.

Poe and Riley elementary school students scored in the 80-90 percentile. Irving, Longfellow, Tarkington, Frost and Alcott elementary schools showed scores between 60-80 per cent.

Low test scores were recorded in Field, Hawthorne and Twain elementary schools, with Field and Twain scoring in the 40th percentile.

Iowa Basic standardized tests measure achievement in vocabulary, reading comprehension, language skills, work-study skills and mathematics skills.

THE REASON why some schools showed lower test results is the district includes scores from all students, including those with learning difficulties and bilingual students, said Supt. Kenneth Gill. Those students are more heavily concentrated at some schools than at others.

He said the district also has an influx of bilingual students in the spring when migrant workers move back into the district. The standardized tests are given shortly after most of these students arrive.

Intensive efforts by the district to raise low scores have been effective in the past, Gill said. When an area needs improvement, he said, two things must be accomplished. First, low-scoring students must be given help, and second, the district must change the curriculum at the lower grade levels to improve future scores.

DIST. 21 STUDENTS showed above-average achievement in vocabulary and work-study skills in all grades. Reading scores were one month behind average in grades 5-7, language skills were one month behind in fourth grade and two months behind in sixth grade, and math skills were low in grades 4-6.

Gill said the district noticed low scores in computation before last year. This year the district is piloting a math series to introduce a math curriculum that emphasizes computation skills without losing the conceptual skills presented in the "new" math. He said it takes about two years to show results of a different curriculum designed to improve a skill area.

THE DISTRICT HAS set up a task force to investigate the low-skill areas. But the staff has been cautioned not to "wreck the whole program to teach just basic skills," Gill said.

Gill said he is concerned with teachers' reactions to recent criticism about test scores. Many teachers felt they must concentrate solely on basic skills to the exclusion of other academic areas, he said. This type of overreaction could damage the district's over-all curriculum, he said.

The standardized tests do not check on areas such as art, music, social studies or science, he said. "What else is taught and not tested needs to be maintained and improved, too," he added.

Field School is applying for a federally fund program to improve basic skills. Field scored in the 40th percentile or below in all skills except work-study.

The district also is bringing in two consultants from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, to analyze the test scores. Wesley Many, assistant dean of the college of education, and Harold Collins, a specialist in statistics, have done similar studies in other school districts.

13th Jaycee Turkey Trot today

Cross-country races will be the feature of the day today when the Mount Prospect Jaycees sponsor their 13th annual Turkey Trot at Mount Prospect Country Club.

Eight races are scheduled for various age groups beginning at 9 a.m. and running through 11:30 a.m. An entry fee of $1 will be charged each entrant, and trophies will be awarded the winners.

The categories for the races include girls ages 12-14, girls 14 years and older, junior high school boys, freshman and sophomore boys, junior and senior boys, college men, men over 28 and men over 40.

Distances for the races range from one to four miles. Each participant will receive a cloth patch from the Jaycees.

Slumping auto sales to hurt village

The tightening tentacles of inflation and recession are squeezing the Village of Arlington Heights.

Finance Director Kenneth M. Bonder has warned that slumping automobile sales may soon be reflected in falling sales tax revenue. And Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has recommended that the village "retrench in every way possible without hurting basic services."

"I won't say we're running nervous, but we are trying to pull back — trying to give the village every ounce (of money) to meet the unexpected," Hanson said.

The comments were made Tuesday during a midyear review of the village's 1974-75 budget. Based on administration projections, the village will stay within its $3.56 million budget for municipal services through April, but with very little, an estimated $130,000, left over to start the next fiscal year.

THE FINANCIAL forecast sets the stage for hearings on the 1975-76 village budget expected to begin about mid-January. Village officials say they anticipate next year's budget meetings to be the most difficult in years. "I predict a very 'trying' situation in the next 24 months," Hanson said.

Explaining the impact of new-car sales on village revenue, Bonder said it takes three months for the village to receive revenue from the state-collected sales tax. And that auto sales which dropped off in October and November could lower sales tax income the village will receive in December and January.

Arlington Heights expects to receive $1.9 million in sales tax revenue during the present fiscal year, 30 per cent of it is dependent on automobile and gasoline sales. The sale of food and drugs also contributes about 30 per cent, retail merchandise sales about 20 per cent, manufacturing sales 10 per cent, and other miscellaneous sales 10 per cent, Bonder said.

"Our biggest producer of sales tax is cars, there's no doubt about that," said Hanson.

The village's sales tax income is more than double what it receives from property taxes.

VILLAGE PRES. Ralph Clabour said that while the number of new car sales may be down, higher prices on the cars that are being sold will help keep the sales tax up.

Hanson said the village plans to spend nearly $700,000 less of its utility tax money than originally planned this year. The money, which would have been spent on high-cost capital improvement projects, will be held back because the projects are not under contract, he said.

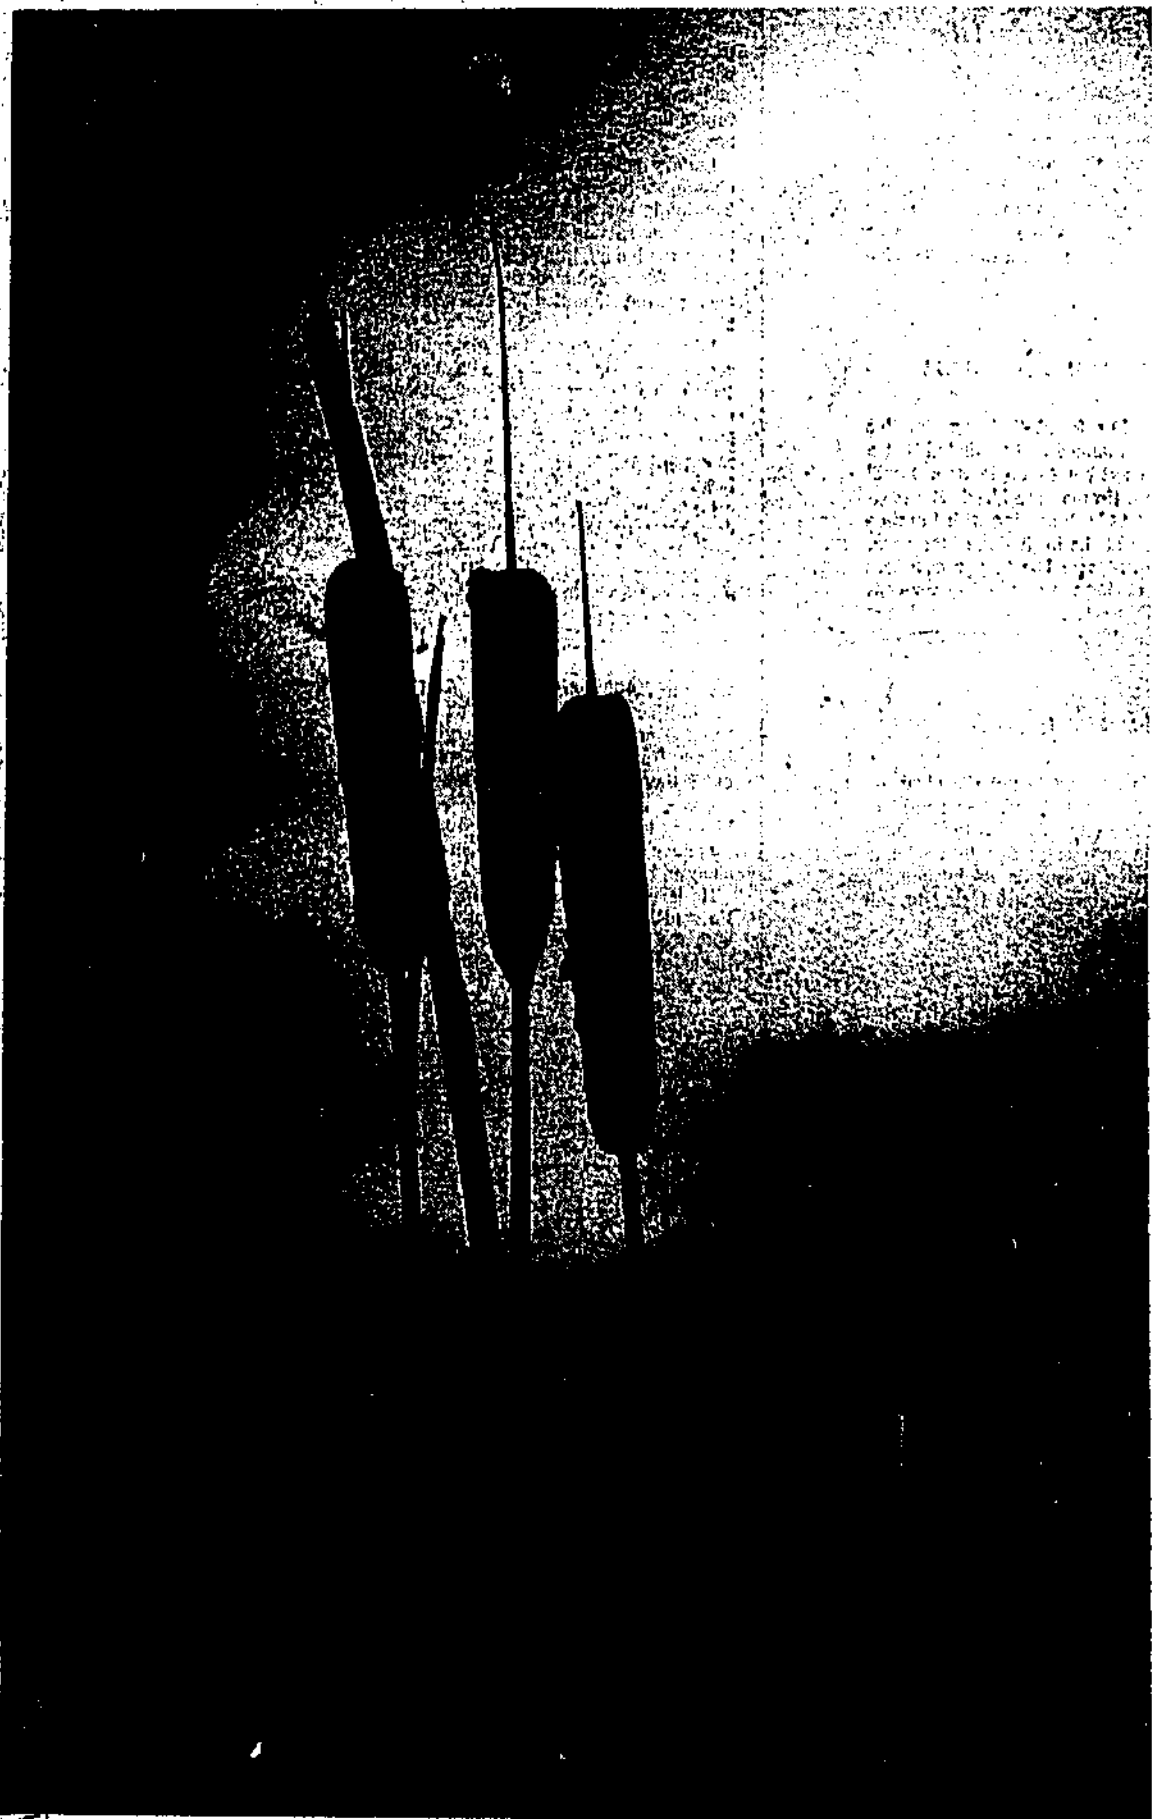

Utility tax income rises automatically, Bonder said, whenever higher gas, electric power and telephone rates are put into effect, and the village still anticipates more than $1 million in utility tax this year.

Other sides of the village's financial picture also show changes.

Investment accounts that last year earned 12 per cent interest, are now drawing 8 to 8.5 per cent, Bonder said.

"There is no question that we are heading into a severe financial crunch," said finance committee member David Griffin.

THE SECOND WOMAN, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was shot in the hand — apparently by a glancing blow — but did not require treatment, police said.

Police said Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand. They had been walking in the area of the Sears Catalog Outlet store, 835 W. Dundee. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard five shots before she was hit.

Police Lt. Thomas Conte denied that a pistol was confiscated and said police were not sure what type of weapon was used, although it appeared .22-cal. pellets or bullets were involved.

Conte said neither woman saw a gunman and also denied the report that a suspect had been questioned.

According to that second report, police have recovered a .22-caliber pistol belonging to an 18-year-old man. Reportedly, the youth was being sought by police and the gun was being tested to see if it was the weapon involved in the incident.

The hospital spokesman said police were awaiting the results of tests to determine what type of weapon was used in the shooting.

Park District cuts another $33,000 from its budget

The Arlington Heights Park District board has cut another $33,000 from its $1¼ million budget to avoid a deficit.

Most of the $33,000 was carved from the district's payroll account. The district hasn't fired or laid off any of its employees, but it has not replaced employees who have already left and has not hired people for new positions, said Thomas Thornton, park district director.

The board has also decided not to give an annual five per cent merit salary increase to employees. Some employees will receive five per cent salary increases, others will receive 2½ per cent increases, and others will receive no increase, said Katherine Muller, park board member.

Mrs. Muller said cuts have been made in the new maintenance equipment for the district.

The park board now has cut about $222,000 from this year's budget after having periodically considered throughout the year in what accounts less money could be spent. The district already has spent approximately $635,000 of its budget in the first six months of the 1974-75 fiscal year, Mrs. Muller said.

Thornton expects the park board to continue "finding areas in the budget where less money could be spent" as the fiscal year continues.

"We are dedicated to keeping a balanced budget where our expenses won't exceed our actual funds and we are working hard at this," Mrs. Muller said.

Through offbeat courses

by BOB GALLAS

Lenky fauets, guitars, sculpting, electronics and play productions are all becoming part of the regular school day at several junior high schools in the Northwest suburbs.

The schools are offering "mini-courses," unusual or offbeat not-for-credit classes geared to student interests. The same classes are offered in two school districts, but on a credit basis, as part of the regular school day, graded the same as traditional courses, and are turning kids on to learning.

"It works well with our philosophy to expose students to a lot of ideas," said Donald Stipe, principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School. "With short courses you can do that," he added.

PALATINE HILLS, like other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, offers about 25 courses each year besides math, English, history and science.

Students can choose two 40-minute classes every 10 weeks, ranging from guitar and home handyman to co-ed shop and cooking.

At Thomas Junior High School, Arlington Heights, students can sign up for a special eight-week course five times a year. Teachers at the school say grading hasn't taken away any of the fun but has improved the courses.

"We wanted to give the classes more meaning," said Ruth Rowe, home economics teacher at the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school. "Before, the class met only once a week which wasn't enough time. It was just fun and games, a place to go."

"By inserting it in the daily schedule, the students are more receptive," Mrs. Rowe said.

BESIDES EXPOSING students to a variety of ideas and skills, the mini-courses also benefit the traditional courses, teachers say.

The classes allow the students mobility and a chance to let off steam, Stipe said. "It brightens up their day and gives them something to look forward to," he said. "You can't expect kids to sit still all day."

While critics of the mini-courses say the quick courses aren't long enough to teach anything, school officials say they don't have to.

"The students are just exposed to basics in class, but you should see what they bring back to school. Things they've done at home on their own," said Stipe. The principal pointed to case after case of needlework and handmade items displayed throughout the school.

"THE TEACHERS turn the kids on and give them just enough basics to go home and do it themselves," Stipe said.

The courses also have other advantages, teachers say. Students can find out early what they like and dislike, rather than finding out too late the career they've chosen doesn't appeal to them.

Stipe, said it is difficult to gauge the success of incorporating unusual and different types of classes into the school day because the idea is so new. But he said early studies have shown the idea to have very positive effects on youngsters.

"The kids have a better self-image, and more confidence in themselves."

VFW auxiliary sets party for Wednesday

The women's auxiliary to Arlington Heights VFW post 981 will hold its annual Christmas party at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The madrigal singers of Palatine High School will entertain and there will be a gift-bag.

Auxiliary members should bring their child welfare donations to the meeting.

Those planning to attend the party should call Nancy Kautz, 255-2456, Blanche Anzalone, 358-5329, or Joyce Munsinger, 397-8704.

Wheeling man helps save life of construction boss

by STIRLING MORITA

A Wheeling man acted quickly Wednesday afternoon to help save a construction worker knocked unconscious by a ditch cave-in in the Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park.

Tom Hallquist, 1575 Sandpebble Dr., rushed from his office in the Starline Express Co. building, 709 Estes Ave., and revived Ed Nowicki, who was seriously injured and buried up to his neck in wet clay about 1:25 p.m.

Nowicki, 51, of Wood Dale, was listed in critical condition Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He suffered chest and leg injuries.

HALLQUIST WAS administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Nowicki when Schaumburg firefighters arrived at the scene. The firemen worked feverishly for 45 minutes to dig out the trapped Nowicki and then transported him to the Train station to get wooden shutters

The Arlington Heights Beautification Council will install black wooden shutters around windows at the Arlington Heights train station.

Gleny Maier, chairman of the council, said five pairs of shutters would be needed. Beautification Council members will make the shutters from precut cedar. The total project will cost less than $50, she said.

The council hopes to have the shutters completed and installed next spring, Mrs. Maier said.

Hecker submits low bid for streetlights

The Village of Arlington Heights has opened bids for new streetlights in the Scarsdale subdivision.

Hecker and Co. of Des Plaines submitted the low bid of $393,549, which is expected to be approved by the village board Monday night.

Scarsdale residents have said they will not oppose the new sodium-vapor lights, which will replace the vintage lighting poles that stand in the subdivision. The new lights will be on concrete poles similar to those put on several years ago in the Stonegate subdivision.

hospital in a department ambulance.

"He (Hallquist) did a fantastic job," said Lt. Raymond Kiek. "He knew what he was doing."

Police said Trentino Canale, who was in the ditch with Nowicki, reported that the walls of the eight-foot ditch caved in, pinning his boss to a large auger. Canale freed himself from the wet clay and ran to the nearby Starline office.

Hallquist said Canale came into the office and said to call the fire department. Another employee called, and Hallquist ran to the ditch, west of the building.

"I WENT THERE, and there was no response. I didn't like his color at all," Hallquist recalled. "He was not breathing at all."

Hallquist administered resuscitation, and Nowicki started breathing on his own. When firefighters attempted to free the man, Hallquist helped keep the oxygen mask on Nowicki's face. "He was certainly helpful throughout the extraction," Kiek said.

Kiek added it was difficult to dig in the ditch because there was about a ton of "soupy" clay around the victim, the owner of Norwick Plumbing of Wood Dale. Hallquist said after the ambulance left, he went back to the office, took a shower and resumed his truck dispatching duties.

"I just hope he has a happy Thanksgiving, that's all," Hallquist said.

Youth panel to pick leader next month

The Arlington Heights Youth Council is expected to choose a new chairman next month.

Members of the Arlington Heights Community Services Committee will be looking among present council members for a new chairman within the next month.

Richard Durava, chairman of the community services committee, said only two residents have expressed interest in heading the youth council, or in filling two vacancies on the council. Durava said a member of the council "may serve as a better chairman than one we can find anywhere else."

The community services committee is interviewing candidates for many village board commission vacancies, and has been slow to make recommendations to the village president on appointments, he said.

The youth council has been unable to conduct meetings for six months because of the chairman's vacancy. Former Chairman Thomas Martin resigned in August.

Katherine Muller, a member of the Youth Council, has charged the village with deliberately stalling on appointing a chairman to stymie budget requests for social services. The council has been unable to prepare budget requests that must be ready for hearings in December.

The Youth Council actively programs last year and later presented heavy opposition to proposed cuts.

A recent health director's report recommends that the Youth Council and the Senior Citizens' Commission be replaced by an advisory commission on human resources. The report says the village should not duplicate social services that already are being offered by other governmental agencies.
